PREFACE

It is the aim of this grammar to offer a practical and thorough course in Spanish, suitable alike for schools and colleges, and to make the presentation of the subject conform to the most advanced methods of teaching a living language.

It will be noticed that throughout this work the headings of lessons and of subjects have been printed in Spanish, as well as in English. This has been done in order to acquaint the student with Spanish grammatical phraseology and to facilitate conversation in Spanish, if desired, upon the grammatical matter introduced in the various lessons.

The subject of Spanish pronunciation is treated as fully and as definitely as is practicable in a book of this kind. It is to be regretted that as yet so little scientific study has been devoted to Spanish phonology.¹

In the presentation of inflection and syntax it will be observed that the paradigms and rules relating to a given subject are grouped together in a lesson or in contiguous lessons, the object being to give to the student a comprehensive view of each subject treated, and to facilitate later reference to the same. The study of the verb is begun early in the book.

Believing that the memorizing of words is the most important feature in the acquisition of a language, the authors have introduced comprehensive vocabularies with every lesson. These vocabularies contain all of the new words in the exercises of each lesson (except the headings and the paradigms, which are likewise to be learned). By memorizing these printed vocabularies the student will be spared the time and labor of looking up and writing down the new words of each exercise for himself, and will find the subsequent reading and writing of the exercises comparatively simple.

That the reading of connected prose may be begun as early as possible, exercises of this character are incorporated in each lesson. These exercises are illustrative of the grammatical matter of each lesson and deal with many phases of Spanish life, customs and history. In the last nine lessons, selections are given from the works of standard Spanish authors, thus preparing the student for later reading. By presenting passages of connected prose with each lesson and by incorporating several Spanish selections in the Appendix, the immediate necessity of a supplementary reading-book is obviated.

In order to accustom the student also to write connected Spanish, compositions or themes are given, based on the reading exercises of each lesson.

Oral exercises composed of disconnected sentences illustrating points of inflection and syntax are included in every lesson. The first few sentences of each conversation exercise are likewise devoted to inflection and syntax, and the rest are based upon the reading matter. These conversations are intended to serve only as suggestions to teachers, who may vary them as they choose. Any of the exercises may be omitted at the discretion of the teacher.

The Appendix contains grammatical and reading matter that is supplementary and additional to that of the first part.

The authors wish to acknowledge their indebtedness for valuable collaboration in the preparation of this and the original work, upon which it is based, to Dr. Miguel Ventura, of Barcelona, Spain, to Mr. Abelardo Pachano, of Ambato, Ecuador, to Mr. Antonio J. Rubio, of Havana, Cuba, to Mr. Fernando de la Cantera, of Manila, Philippine Islands, and especially to Mr. George I. Dale, Instructor in Romance Languages, Cornell University. They wish also to thank Lieutenant Colonel Cornélis DeWitt Willcox, Professor of Modern Languages, U. S. M. A., Major James A. Ryan, Associate Professor of Modern Languages, U. S. M. A., Mr. José M. Asensio, Instructor in Modern Languages, U. S. M. A., and Lieutenant John W. Lang, 29th Infantry, U. S. A., for their kindly criticism and suggestions and for help in the proof-reading.

INTRODUCCIÓN

(Introduction)

ORTOGRAFÍA Y PRONUNCIACIÓN

(Orthography and Pronunciation)

ALFABETO

(Alphabet)

1. The Spanish alphabet has the following thirty simple and compound letters. The compound letters are treated in dictionaries as separate characters, with the exception of rr.

Letras (Letters or Characters): a, b, c, ch, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, ll, m, n, ñ, o, p, q, r, rr, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

The Spanish letters have the following names (nombres): a, be, ce, che, de, e, efe, ge, hache, i, jota, ka, ele, elle, eme, ene, eñe, o, pe, cu, ere, erre, ese, te, u, ve, ve doble, equis, ye or y griega, zeta.

PRONUNCIACIÓN

(Pronunciation)

2. The pronunciation of many of the Spanish letters varies in the different parts of Spain and in the Spanish-speaking countries, but the Castilian pronunciation is generally conceded to be correct, and is the one presented in this grammar. Even in Castilian Spanish the pronunciation often varies with individuals, so that it is impossible to give fixed and unvarying rules for the formation of the sound of each letter. The following rules will serve, it is hoped, to give the student an approximately accurate knowledge of the subject, but observation and imitation are the best guides to correct pronunciation.

1. Vocales

(Vowels)

The Spanish vowels are a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes y. When y is a vowel (i.e. in the conjunction y, 'and,' and when final in a word, e.g. ley), it has the sound of Spanish i, and its pronunciation may be found under the treatment of the latter. Spanish vowels have only simple sounds, and differ from English vowels in that they have no double or vanishing sounds.

There are two plainly distinguishable sounds of the vowel a:

(1) In a tonic or pre-tonic syllable it has a somewhat open sound, and closely resembles that of the o of not (as generally pronounced in America), or frequently that of the a of ask (if correctly pronounced). nada, atacar.

(2) In a post-tonic syllable, especially when final, a has a weakened sound closely resembling that of the a of sofa (Eng.), but pronounced somewhat more openly. nada, ánima.

NOTE. — There are various other shades of sound for a. The principal one of these variants is that of a semi-closed a, somewhat resembling that of the French a in part. acción, casa.

There are two plainly distinguishable sounds of the vowel e:

(1) In an open syllable (i.e. one not ending in a consonant)¹ it generally has a somewhat closed sound, for which there is no exact English equivalent. Its sound is not so open as that of the first part of the English a of ate (disregarding the vanishing e sound), nor yet so closed as that of the French é of café. One should strive for a sound between these two. menos, queso, café, the e's of the two final syllables of intérprete.

(2) In a closed syllable (i.e. one ending in a consonant), or when followed by ll or rr, it generally has a somewhat open sound, for which there is likewise no exact English equivalent. It is not so open as that of e in met. ser, puerto, festivo, él, ella, perro.

NOTE. — There are various shades of sound for e. The e's of the two final syllables of intérprete, for example, are more closed than those of menos or café. However, the beginner need not concern himself with these fine distinctions.

The sound of the vowel i closely resembles that of the i of machine (Eng.). intenso, allí, si, había.

¹ For purposes of pronunciation a final s, in inflections, should not be regarded as closing an otherwise open syllable.

NOTE. — There are various shades of sound for i, as can be seen in mismísimo, of which each i is more closed than the preceding, but the beginner need not try to make these distinctions.

There are two plainly distinguishable sounds of the vowel o:

(1) In an open syllable¹ it generally has a somewhat closed sound, though not so closed as that of the first part of the o of go (Eng.) (disregarding the vanishing u sound). único, solo, no, yo, the o's of the last two syllables of morboso.

(2) In a closed syllable it generally has a somewhat open sound closely resembling that of the o of north. The o's in the first syllables of morboso, sombrero, pongo.

In some words a tonic o in an open syllable has also an open sound. lobo, lodo.

NOTE. — There are various other shades of sound for o, but the beginner need not concern himself with them.

u

The sound of the vowel u closely resembles that of oo in moon. mundo, puro, último.

When u is the first vowel of a diphthong it represents the consonantal sound of English w. puesto, guardar, fuí.

U is silent after g and q, before e or i, but gives to those consonants the hard sounds of g (in go) and of k respectively. In these cases u may be considered rather as an orthographic sign than as a vowel. guiar, quedar.

After g and before e or i, however, u is sometimes written with a dieresis, ü, when it has the consonantal sound of English w. averigüé.

NOTE. — There are various shades of sound for u, as can be seen in cucurucho, the first of which is medial, the second, closed, and the third, open; but the beginner need not concern himself with them. One must, of course, avoid the sound of the English u in use.

2. Consonantes

(Consonants)

b is not strong like the English explosive b, but approaches v, except that the lower lip touches slightly the upper one, instead of being caught under the upper teeth. When initial, b is a little more strongly pronounced. In Spanish, b and v are frequently pronounced alike, and are often interchanged in orthography. bata, Habana or Havana.

c is similar to hard c in cat, unless it stands before e or i, when it is pronounced like the th of theater. When c is doubled the first c is always hard like c in cat. cabo, ceba, cita, acción.

d, when between vowels or at the end of a word, is somewhat like the th in though, but not so strongly pronounced.¹ When initial it is nearer the d of day. However, in pronouncing Spanish d, the tip of the tongue always touches slightly the back of the upper teeth. Madrid, cada, decir.

f is somewhat like f in fun. figura, efe.

g is like hard g in go, unless followed by e or i, when it is pronounced like the Spanish j (see below). The hard sound of g before e or i is obtained by placing an unpronounced u after the g. gala, girar, general, guerra, sigue.

h is silent in Spanish. hado, hermana, hueso.

j is pronounced like a strongly aspirated, throaty English h. Those who know German may recognize the sound as almost like that of ch in Aachen. jaca, jota, ajo. When final, the j is nearly silent. reloj (sometimes written reló).

k is like an English k. (It is found only in a few foreign words.) kilogramo, kilómetro.

l is somewhat like l in lake. However, in pronouncing Spanish l, the corners of the mouth are drawn back more tensely, and the tongue is brought farther forward than in the formation of English l. lago, le, balde.

ll is like lli in million. llama, calle.

There is a tendency in Andalusia, in many parts of Spanish America and even at Madrid, to pronounce ll like consonantal y. cabayo for caballo, eya for ella.

m is similar to m in mat. mi, modo, tramar.

¹ In the ending -ado, the sound of d is entirely lost in every-day speech, except by the purists. -ado sounds like the ou of out (Eng.). acabado, soldado. It is better for foreigners not to omit the d entirely.

n is somewhat like n in now.

However, in pronouncing Spanish n, the tip of the tongue touches slightly the back of the upper teeth. nada, mano.

When followed by a guttural, n becomes somewhat nasal, e.g. encargar, monje, tengo.

ñ has the sound of ny in canyon, or gn in mignonette. The mark ~ over the n is called a tilde. cañón, señor.

p is similar to p in pound. poco, plata, Lope.

q is used only when followed by u. Qu is pronounced like English k, or hard c in cake. que, aquí, quedo, loquillo.

r is somewhat like the English initial r in red. When initial in a word, when final in a syllable other than the last, when preceded by l, n, or s, or by any consonant in the same syllable, it is slightly trilled. para, pero, rabo, perder, Enrique, Israel, malrotar, bravo, pronto.

rr is strongly trilled. This is a sound not employed in English, and requires practice to acquire. perro, gorra.

s is usually like s in saw. Though sometimes softened before a voiced consonant, it never has the sound of s in rose. ese, ostras, esbelto, esdrújulo.

t is somewhat like t in table, but pronounced farther forward in the mouth than t in English, the tip of the tongue touching the teeth. atado, está, trabajar.

v is pronounced somewhat like the second v in valve, but the lips are lightly touched together, and the sound resembles the Spanish b, so much so that the two sounds are often confused in orthography. When initial, v is a little more strongly pronounced. vano, desvanece, vida, Havana or Habana.

w is found only in words taken from other languages. In words of German origin it is pronounced like v; in words of English origin, like w. Wagner (= Vagner), whist (= wist), waterproof (= waterproof).

x is somewhat like x in ax, especially between vowels. In many words, particularly in the initial syllable ex- followed by a consonant, the x is often pronounced like Spanish s. examen, exacto, extremo, Extremadura.

y, when used as a vowel, is pronounced like Spanish i. When used as a consonant (i.e. when followed by a vowel in the same syllable), it is pronounced like y in yes. rey, y, yacer, yema, yugo.

z is pronounced like th in thick, never like the th in though. It almost never occurs before e or i. C before e or i has the same sound. azul, azarado, azúcar, zorra, zeta.

3. c and n are the only consonants, except those given in the alphabet as separate characters, that may be doubled in Spanish. acción, accidente, innovar, innumerable. Both letters are carefully enunciated. In the case of two c's, the first has the sound of k, and the second, of th.

4. All letters of the alphabet are feminine in Spanish, and usually stand with an article.

una b, la jota, una m.
Habana se escribe con (una) b.

5. The most important variations from the Castilian pronunciation, which are found in many parts of Spain, particularly in the south, and in Spanish America, are:

1. c before e or i is pronounced like Spanish s. cinco (= sinco), quince (= quinse).
z is pronounced like Spanish s. azul (= asul), azúcar (= asucar).
ll is pronounced like Spanish consonantal y. caballo (= cabayo), ello (= eyo), silla (= siya).
ll is in some localities pronounced like English j in jest. caballo, pitillo.
y as a consonant is sometimes pronounced like English j in jest. yo, ya.
l and r are often confused. arta for alta, robre for roble.
2. Many consonants, particularly s, are silent. la mujer (= la mujê), dos veces (= do vese).
Sometimes final s has the sound of th in lath. las mujeres (= laz mujerez).
3. Many other peculiarities of speech are regional. Most of those above mentioned are quite widespread. They are given in order to enable the student, if talking to one who is not a Castilian, to recognize these peculiarities and adjust them to the Castilian pronunciation that he has learned.

CAMBIOS ORTOGRÁFICOS Y FONÉTICOS (Orthographic and Phonetic Changes)

6. In conjugation, in inflection and in derivative words, a change of orthography is often made in order to preserve the original sound of the syllable. In the infinitive sacar, for example, c has the sound of k. When in the conjugation of the verb the ending e occurs, in order to preserve the original sound of the infinitive, one must write saque (and not sace).

c (= k) becomes qu before e or i.

qu (= k) becomes c before a, o, or u.

g (= g in go) becomes gu before e or i.

gu (= g in go) becomes g before a, o, or u.

c (= th in thick) becomes z before a, o, or u.

z (= th in thick) becomes c before e or i.

g (= Spanish j) becomes j before a, o, or u.¹

gu (= Spanish gu before a, o, u) becomes gü before e or i.

7. The following examples illustrate the varying orthography for the same consonantal sound:

Word examples

(a) ca, que, qui, co, cu ga, gue, gui, go, gu za, ce, ci, zo, zu ja, ge, gi, jo, ju gua, güe, güi, guo

(b) tocar, toque, toquilla, toco, locura pagar, pague, guiar, pago, gusto gozar, goce, rocío, gozo, azúcar coja, coge, cogido, cojo, jubón averiguar, averigüe, güiro, averiguo

DIPTONGOS Y TRIPTONGOS (Diphthongs and Triphthongs)

8. A diphthong is a combination of two contiguous vowels in the same syllable, and a triphthong is a combination of three contiguous vowels in the same syllable. Mute h is disregarded and does not prevent diphthongization. An understanding of the laws of the formation of diphthongs and triphthongs is necessary in order to understand the rules of the written accent. In verse there are special laws and exceptions that require particular attention. In prose, however, the following general laws will suffice.

¹ Spanish j does not usually change to g before e or i. Navajo, Navajito. In popular orthography, however, they are sometimes confused. One often sees on signs carruages for carruajes.

9. Spanish vowels are divided into strong vowels a, e, o, and weak vowels i, u. Y, when a vowel, may be considered as i. Whenever by inflection an unaccented i or the vowel y would occur between vowels, the i or vowel y is changed to consonantal y (leer, leyendo, not leiendo). rey, reyes.

10. Two strong vowels do not unite into a single syllable. ca-er, le-er, ro-er, pro-a.

11. The possible combinations for diphthongs in prose are then:

ai	ei	oi	aire	ley	hoy
ia	ie	io	diablo	pierdo	serio
au	eu	ou	aun	deuda	bou
ua	ue	uo	agua	puedo	monstruo
ui	uu ¹		ruido
iu	ii ¹		viuda

12. In diphthongs both vowels are sounded, but the strong vowel receives more stress. If both vowels are weak, the latter receives more stress. aire, puedo, serio, ruido, viuda.

13. If, in the combination of a strong vowel and a weak vowel, the weak vowel is accented, or if the first of two weak vowels is accented (such accent being indicated in both cases by an accent mark), the vowels stand in separate syllables. dí-a, continú-a, a-ún, flú-ido.

14. In order to form a triphthong there must be a strong vowel between two weak vowels. A triphthong is never formed with a weak vowel as the middle vowel.

15. The following combinations are found in triphthongs:

iai	guiáis	uai	averiguáis, guay
iei	guiéis	uei	averigüéis, buey

16. When a Latin word, in which there was an e or o in a stressed syllable, passed into Spanish, the e frequently became ie, and the o, ue in the Spanish derivative. This change is shown in Spanish words where the e and o of unaccented syllables become ie and ue respectively, if by inflection or conjugation the accent falls on the syllable in which they occur. Owing to Latin influence also, Spanish ie and ue of accented syllables often become e and o respectively when the accent shifts to another syllable. In verbs, e sometimes becomes i in both accented and unaccented syllables. These changes are very important in the conjugation of many verbs.

contar, cuento
fuerte, fortísimo perder, pierdo

siete, setecientos
seguir, sigo, sigamos

17. When a Latin e or o becomes a diphthong in Spanish at the beginning of a word, ie is changed to ye, and ue to hue, because no Spanish word may begin with the diphthongs ie or ue.

Latin, ovum; Spanish, huevo
Latin, errat; Spanish, yerra
Latin, equa; Spanish, yegua

ACENTO (Accent)

18. There are certain rules governing the accent in Spanish words, according to which the accent falls on certain syllables under certain conditions, and does not need to be written. Any deviation from the rules requires a written accent.

19. The principal rules are:

1. Any word ending in a vowel, or in the consonants n or s, is normally accented on the next to the last syllable (the penult). lobo, minuto, madura, pobre, verde, cree, feo, lobos, minutos, hablan, crimen, orden.

2. Any word ending in a consonant, except n or s, is normally accented on the last syllable (the ultimate). Final y is considered as a consonant for purposes of accentuation, and becomes so in the plural of words ending in y in the singular. verdad, azul, mortal, hablar, solaz, marfil, rey (pl., reyes), ley (pl., leyes), buey (pl., bueyes).

3. Monosyllables normally do not take the written accent. lo, muy, se, de, pues, sois, veis, crin, vez.

4. Since diphthongs and triphthongs form only one syllable, their presence in a word does not alter the rules for the accent. If the diphthong falls in the stressed syllable, the strong vowel of the combination of a strong and weak, or the latter of two weak vowels, receives the accent. The strong vowel of a triphthong is accented. (It should be remembered that two strong vowels do not form a diphthong.)

continuo	aire	heroico	viuda	guay
serio	pierdo	suerte	ruida	buey

20. The written accent is employed to indicate any violations of the above rules:

1. In all words accented on a syllable before the penult. música, pórtico, lúgubre, dándose, héroe, aérea, flúido.

2. In words ending in a vowel, or n or s, accented on the last syllable. hablé, mató, después, atrás, acción, jardín, habláis, tenéis, despreciáis.

3. In words ending in a consonant, other than n or s, accented on a syllable before the ultimate. árbol, lápiz, Velázquez, mármol, ángel.

4. In words having the same orthography, to distinguish one form from another.

aun (preceding a verb), 'even,' 'still'; aún (following a verb), 'still,' 'yet.'

como, 'as'; ¿cómo? 'how?' ¡cómo! 'how!'

cuando, 'when'; ¿cuándo? 'when?'

cuanto, 'as much'; ¿cuánto? 'how much?'

de, 'of'; dé (subj. of dar, cf. § 206), 'give.'

di, 'tell' (cf. § 247); dí, 'I gave' (cf. § 206).

donde, 'where'; ¿dónde? 'where?'

el, 'the'; él, 'he,' 'him.'

mas, 'but'; más, 'more.'

mi (poss. adj.), 'my'; mí (pers. pron.), 'me.'

se, 'himself,' 'herself,' etc.; sé, 'I know' (cf. § 242); 'be' (cf. § 189).

si, 'if'; sí, 'yes'; 'one's self.'

solo (adj.), 'alone'; sólo (adv.), 'only.'

te (pers. pron.), 'thee'; té, 'tea.'

tu (poss. adj.), 'thy'; tú (pers. pron.), 'thou.'

ve, 'sees' (cf. § 296); vé, 'go' (cf. § 255).

NOTE 1. — Usage varies in the use of the diacritic mark on hé, 'behold'; há, 'ago.' Bello, who prefers its use, is here followed.

NOTE 2. — The preposition a and the conjunctions e, o, u, formerly accented, according to recent action of the Spanish Academy are now written without accent, except ó when it might be mistaken for zero, e.g. 3 ó 4.

5. The preterit tense of verbs when monosyllabic and ending in a vowel sometimes takes the written accent by analogy with other verbs. vió, dió, fuí, fué.

6. The demonstrative pronouns are accented to distinguish them from similar forms of the demonstrative adjectives (cf. § 107). éste (pron.), 'this'; este (adj.), 'this.'

7. The interrogative pronouns and adjectives are accented to distinguish them from similar forms of the relative pronouns (cf. § 269). quien (rel.), 'whom'; ¿quién? (inter.), 'who?' 'whom?'

8. When one of the weak vowels (i or u) preceded or followed by one of the strong vowels (a, e, o) is stressed, the accent must be written in order to show that the two vowels do not combine to form a diphthong. sería, poesía, aún, continúa, leído, dúo, ataúd, oír.

9. When pronouns are suffixed to verbs that have a written accent, the accent is retained. If by suffixing pronouns the normal accent of the verb form falls on a syllable before the penult, the accent must be written. escapó, escapóse; vió, vióle; dando, dándome, dándomelo.

10. An adjective having the written accent retains it when -mente is added to form an adverb (cf. § 227), and in compound words each part retains its original accent. fácil, fácilmente; difícil, difícilmente; el espantapájaros (espanta-pájaros); la sinrazón (sin-razón); décimo séptimo.

11. In the inflection of a word a written accent is employed or dropped according to the rules above given.

francés, franceses
orden, órdenes

español, españoles iba, íbamos

NOTE. — carácter and régimen, in the formation of their plurals, move the accent one syllable nearer the end of the word. caracteres, regímenes.

SILABEO (Syllabication)

21. The knowledge of how to divide a Spanish word into syllables is important, both in prose for the sake of breaking a word at the end of a line, and in verse for the sake of the meter.

1. Combinations of vowels forming a diphthong or triphthong should not be separated.

se-ria, not se-ri-a rui-do, not ru-i-do
BUT: se-rí-a, cre-er, le-al, a-ún

2. A single consonant (including ch, ll, ñ, rr) between vowels goes with the following vowel.

da-do	Pi-ri-ne-os	a-de-más	mu-cho
bu-llir	ma-ña-na	a-rro-jar

3. Two consonants (ch, ll, ñ, rr being considered as single consonants) are regularly divided, but any consonant followed by l or r (except s followed by l or r; or r or t followed by l) is pronounced with the following syllable.

cuan-do	in-no-ble	BUT:
mon-ta-ña	ta-blas	es-la-bón
ac-ción	a-gra-do	Is-ra-el hen-chir	a-cre-e-dor	per-la
des-llo-tra-do	a-trás	at-le-ta

4. Prefixes usually form separate syllables, even though by so doing they violate the preceding rules.

sub-de-le-ga-do	sub-en-ten-der	des-a-ta-do
------------------------	-----------------------	--------------------

(In the last two examples the final consonant of the prefix remains with the first syllable, contrary to § 21, 2.)

NOTE. — If the prefix comes before s followed by a consonant, the s is joined to the prefix, for s is always separated from a following consonant. cons-pi-rar, cons-ti-pa-do, ins-pi-rar, pers-pi-rar, des-pre-cio, ads-cri-to.

5. When more than two consonants stand between vowels, the last consonant only of the group, or an inseparable combination of a consonant followed by l or r (cf. § 21, 3), is pronounced with the following vowel.

ins-ti-tu-to	in-promp-tu	sas-tre
pers-pi-caz	sal-dré	es-cla-vo

PUNTUACIÓN (Punctuation)

22. Spanish punctuation is essentially the same as English. One notable exception is the use of inverted interrogation and exclamation points at the beginning of interrogatory and exclamatory sentences respectively, which, if of mixed character, may end with a different point from that with which they begin. This greatly aids the reader to modulate his voice correctly, especially in a long sentence, whereas in English one often notices at the very end of a sentence that it is interrogatory and is obliged to suddenly change the pitch of his voice.

¿Qué hora es? What time is it?

¡Qué lástima! What a pity!

¿Qué persecución es ésta, Dios mío!

Heavens! What persecution is this?

USO DE LA MAYÚSCULA (Capitalization)

23. The use of capitals is nearly the same as in English, except that proper adjectives do not begin with a capital, unless they are capitalized by their position, i.e. at the beginning of a sentence, a quotation, or a line of verse, in titles, etc. The same rule holds for the pronoun yo, 'I.' Days of the week and months of the year are usually not capitalized, but in dating letters they often are.

la lengua española

the Spanish language

la escuela sevillana

the Sevillian school

él y yo

he and I

Le veré el lunes, dos de enero

I shall see him Monday, the second of January

NOTE.—When used as nouns, proper adjectives are sometimes capitalized and sometimes not. The usage varies.

el Flamenco (or flamenco), the man from Flanders el Toledano (or toledano), the Toledan

el Catalán (or catalán), the Catalanian

EJERCICIO DE PRONUNCIACIÓN (Pronunciation Exercise)

Divide into syllables and pronounce, placing the accent according to given rules, the following words:

digo, seguir, jornada, solicitar, sólo, comenzar, empezar, ejercicio, día, papagayo, atmósfera, cerveza, botella, muchacho, cigarro, pero, perro, girar, gorra, árbol, diccionario, aprender, sofá, príncipe, violín, vestíbulo, sombrero, guitarra, paréntesis, cañón, cañones, virgen, vírgenes, rubí, rubíes, lápiz, lápices, algodón, azúcar, burro, café, señor, señores, montaña, español, llamar, inglés, ingleses, llegar, gitanilla, ley, leyes, biblioteca, errores, después, crepúsculo, lea, cree, monstruo, origen, llegarán, aérea, violeta, sábado, sitio, perdéis, habláis, continúan, sería, sería, político, guardar, hierba, huele, cuerda, Sevilla, Madrid, Valladolid, Zaragoza, Córdoba, Badajoz, Buenos Aires, Los Angeles, Méjico, Florida, Cuba, Barcelona, Valencia, Calahorra, Lima, Santiago, Argentina, Brasil, Estados Unidos, América, Japón, Francia, España, Tánger, Constantinopla.

LECCIÓN PRIMERA

(Lesson I)

ARTÍCULOS

(Articles)

Artículo Determinado

(Definite Article)

24. The forms of the definite article in Spanish are:

Número Singular
GENERO MASCULINO	FEMENINO	NEUTRO
el	la	lo	the
Plural
MASCULINO	FEMENINO
los	las	the

25. The definite article agrees in gender and number with the word it modifies.

26. Lo is used chiefly before adjectives having an abstract meaning and before past participles to indicate a whole idea.

lo malo, that which is bad lo escrito, that which is written

1. It is sometimes used before adjectives that are inflected, and is then often translated 'how.' It may also be used, with the meaning 'how' or 'as,' before adverbs.

No puedo decirle lo bonitas que eran	I cannot tell you how beautiful they were
lo bien que habla	how well he speaks
lo más pronto posible	as soon as possible

27. Before a feminine singular noun of two (or optionally before one of three) syllables, beginning with accented a or ha, the article el, instead of la, is used for euphony. This change does not occur before adjectives, except sometimes in verse. BUT: the letter h is always called la hache.

el agua (f.), the water	la or el África , Africa
el hacha (f.), the ax	la or el águila , the eagle
BUT: la alhaja , the jewel	la alta montaña , the high mountain

NOTE. — Some authors admit the masculine article before similar feminines of one syllable. el haz (f.), the surface. BUT: la a (letter).

28. When the prepositions de, 'of,' 'from,' or a, 'to,' 'at,' immediately precede the article el, they are contracted into del and al respectively.

del libro, of the book

al libro, to the book

Artículo Indeterminado

(Indefinite Article)

29. The singular forms of the indefinite article in Spanish are un, masculine, and una, feminine.

un hombre, a man

una mujer, a woman

NOTE. — Un is sometimes used for una before a feminine noun beginning with a or ha. This use is not sanctioned, however, by the Spanish Academy.

un alma (f.), a soul

un hambre (f.), a hunger

30. The plural forms unos, unas, are used meaning 'some' or 'a few.'

unos hombres, some (or a few) men

unas mujeres, some (or a few) women

31. Articles, definite and indefinite, are generally repeated before the nouns they qualify.

el hombre y la mujer, the man and woman el sombrero, la chaqueta y los zapatos del hombre, the man's hat, coat and shoes

un muchacho y una muchacha, a boy and girl

1. They are not repeated, however, when the nouns refer to the same person or thing, are closely related (as when several nouns refer to mental or moral traits of one individual), or are regarded as a group or ensemble.

un amigo y protector

a friend and protector

el celo, industria e inteligencia de mi amigo

the zeal, industry and intelligence of my friend

Hombres, mujeres y niños (todos) perecieron

Men, women and children (all) perished

LECCIÓN SEGUNDA
(Lesson II)

ARTÍCULOS
(Articles)

Usos Particulares
(Special Uses)

32. The definite article is used in Spanish, where it is omitted in English, in the following cases:

1. Before nouns used in the general sense, i.e. as representatives of the entire class to which they belong.

El hombre es mortal

La miel es dulce

Los gatos son animales pequeños

Man is mortal

Honey is sweet

Cats are small animals

2. Before abstract nouns.

la virtud, virtue

el honor, honor

3. Before nouns formed of adjectives of nationality used to denote a language. Directly after hablar, 'to speak,' and in certain prepositional phrases, the article is commonly omitted.

	El español es una lengua fácil	Spanish is an easy language
	Habla corrientemente el español	He speaks Spanish fluently
BUT:	Mi hermano habla español	My brother speaks Spanish
	El libro está escrito en español	The book is written in Spanish
	la lección de español	the Spanish lesson

4. Before verbal nouns formed of the infinitive of a verb and expressing an act in an abstract manner.

el hablar, talking (or speech)	el viajar, traveling (or travel)
--------------------------------	----------------------------------

5. Before names of the seasons, except in certain prepositional phrases.

la primavera, spring	el invierno, winter
BUT: un traje de primavera, a spring suit

6. Before names of the days of the week or month. The article is, however, as in English, often omitted in dating letters. 'On' before names of the days of the week is usually replaced by the definite article in Spanish.

El domingo es día de descanso	Sunday is a day of rest
Le veré a usted (el) sábado	I shall see you on Saturday
BUT: Domingo 2 de enero de 1910	Sunday, January 2, 1910

7. Before titles when the person is not addressed.

el señor Gómez, Mr. Gómez	el rey Alfonso Trece, King Alfonso Thirteenth
---------------------------	---

8. Before all names of countries when qualified by adjectives, and before the names of certain countries and towns that always require the article, such as: el Brasil, Brazil; el Canadá, Canada; el Japón, Japan; el Perú, Peru; el Cairo, Cairo; la Habana, Havana; el Havre, Havre.

la España meridional	southern Spain
el Asia central	central Asia
BUT: Fué a Tierra Santa	He went to the Holy Land

NOTE. — With the names of countries and localities a is used to denote 'motion towards,' while 'rest in' is expressed by en.

Voy a París, I am going to Paris	Estoy en París, I am in Paris
----------------------------------	-------------------------------

33. The indefinite article is generally omitted:

1. Before a predicate noun, unless modified by an adjective or other limiting expression.

Mi tío es médico

My uncle is a doctor

Mi tío es un médico excelente

My uncle is an excellent doctor

Su hermano es un alumno de esta clase

Her brother is a pupil of this class

2. After qué, 'what a,' in exclamations:

¡Qué tonto eres!

What a fool you are!

¡Qué día más hermoso!

What a beautiful day!

34. The articles, definite and indefinite, are omitted before a noun in apposition, unless qualified by a relative superlative adjective (cf. § 243, 2).

Juan, hermano de la niña

John, the girl's brother

BUT: París, la ciudad más bella de Europa

Paris, the most beautiful city of Europe

35. The definite article frequently takes the place of the possessive adjective when referring to parts of the body, clothing, etc. (cf. §§ 101-102).

La niña levantó la mano

The girl raised her hand

VERBOS

(Verbs)

36. There are three regular conjugations. Infinitives ending in -ar belong to the first, those in -er to the second, and those in -ir to the third.

Infinitivos

(Infinitives)

I habl-ar, to speak

II deb-er,¹ to owe, ought

III viv-ir, to live

37. The infinitive in Spanish may be used as a verbal noun, corresponding generally to the English verbal noun in -ing. The present participle is never so used.

el hablar, speaking, speech el viajar, traveling, travel

El hablar es plata, el silencio es oro

Speech is silver, silence is gold

¹ The verb deber indicates usually a moral obligation, and is translated by 'ought,' 'should,' 'must,' etc. In this sense it is commonly followed by an infinitive without introductory preposition. When the following infinitive is introduced by the preposition de, the verb deber usually indicates a strong probability or mild obligation.

Debo estudiar

I ought to (or must) study

Debe de haber estado cerca del río

It must have been near the river

LECCIÓN CUARTA (Lesson IV)

SUSTANTIVOS (Nouns)

Género (Gender)

44. All Spanish nouns are either masculine or feminine.

45. Nouns that designate males, titles or professions of males, are generally masculine, whatever their endings.

el cura, the priest

el juez, the judge

el muchacho, the boy

BUT: la (or el) espía, the spy el profesor, the professor el monarca, the monarch

el poeta, the poet

la (or el) centinela, the sentinel

¹ A regular way of saying 'How do you spell?' One may also say ¿Cómo se deletrea?

46. Nouns that designate females, titles or occupations of females, are feminine.

la muchacha, the girl la madre, the mother

la costurera, the seamstress la condesa, the countess

47. The names of days, months, rivers, oceans, mountains and indeclinable parts of speech are masculine.

el lunes, Monday el abril, April el Rin, the Rhine

el Pacífico, the Pacific el Etna, Mt. Etna
el porqué, the why

48. Names of the letters of the alphabet are feminine (cf. § 4).

una b, a b las cees, the c's la o, the o

49. The gender of other nouns must be learned usually, but may, to a certain extent, be determined by the endings.

50. Masculine endings: -o (except la mano, 'the hand') and -ma (in words of Greek origin).

el libro, the book
el tema, the composition

el idioma, the language
el poema, the poem

51. Feminine endings: -a (except el día, 'the day'; el mapa 'the map'; el cometa, 'the comet'; el planeta, 'the planet'; and a few others), -dad, -tad, -tud, -ión, -umbre, and -ie (but not pie, m., 'foot').

la mesa, the table
la verdad, the truth la libertad, the liberty

la virtud, the virtue la nación, the nation la muchedumbre, the crowd

la serie, the series

ADJETIVOS (Adjectives)

Inflexión (Inflection)

52. Adjectives ending in -o in the masculine singular change the -o to -a to form the feminine singular.

blanco, blanca, white alto, alta, high

53. Adjectives which do not end in -o in the masculine singular have the same ending for both genders.

fácil (m. and f.), easy

joven (m. and f.), young alegre (m. and f.), happy

EXCEPTIONS:

1. Adjectives of nationality ending in a consonant add -a to form the feminine.

español, española, Spanish

inglés, inglesa, English

2. Adjectives ending in -án, -ón, -or (except comparatives, including certain Latin comparatives) add -a to form the feminine.

holgazán, holgazana, idle, lazy

burlón, burlona, roguish

hablador, habladora, talkative

BUT: mejor (m. and f.), better superior (m. and f.), superior

54. The plural of adjectives is formed like the plural of nouns.

bonito, bonitos, pretty fácil, fáciles, easy

Concordancia

(Agreement)

55. Adjectives and participles used adjectively agree in gender and number with the words they modify.

un hombre alto, a tall man las buenas mujeres, the good women las lecciones escritas, the written lessons

VERBOS

(Verbs)

56. Presente de Indicativo del Verbo *hablar, 'to speak, talk' (Present Indicative of the Verb hablar)

PRIMERA CONJUGACIÓN
(First Conjugation)Singular

1^a persona yo¹ habl-o

I speak, am speaking, do² speak

2^a persona tú habl-as thou speakest, etc.

3^a persona él (ella, usted) habl-a he (she, it, you) speak(s), etc.

Plural

1^a persona nosotros habl-amos we speak, etc.

2^a persona vosotros habl-áis

you speak, etc.

3^a persona ellos (ellas, ustedes) habl-an they (you) speak, etc.

¹ The personal pronouns used after prepositions are the same in form as the subject pronouns (cf. §§ 182, 208), except in the first and second persons singular, when mi and ti are used.

² The English auxiliary verb 'do,' which is common in negative or interrogative constructions, is not rendered in Spanish.

57. A verb agrees with its subject in person and number. Since the endings usually indicate the agreement, personal pronouns as subjects of the verb are commonly omitted, except when they are required to avoid ambiguity or for emphasis (cf. § 183). The pronoun usted (abbreviations V., Ud.), pl., ustedes (VV., Uds.), 'you,' is, however, usually used, and requires the verb in the third person, because it is a contraction of vuestra merced, 'your grace,' which would naturally take that person of the verb (cf. § 185).

Hablamos español	We are speaking Spanish
BUT: Él habla bien, pero ella habla mejor	He speaks well, but she speaks better
Yo lo digo	I (emphatic) say so
Usted habla bien	You (sing.) speak well

He explains the easy lesson without the use of a book. 14. Seventeen pretty Spanish views. 15. How are you? 16. There are nineteen words in the vocabulary. 17. You are beginning to (a) learn the truth. 18. She is writing with a pencil in her hand. 19. The gentleman, a native of Canada. 20. They study well and listen attentively. 21. You begin with the fourth line.

TEMA CUARTO
(Composition IV)

To-day the professor explains the grammar lesson, which is about (sobre) the gender of nouns and the inflection of adjectives. The lesson of the day is not very interesting for the students, but the professor says that the study of grammar is necessary in order to speak a language well. The students listen attentively, because the professor is speaking in Spanish. They do not understand everything yet, but they find the study of Spanish very interesting and quite easy. With 8 the words which they know they designate the various things that are in the class-room. 10

CONVERSACIÓN CUARTA (Conversation IV)

1. ¿Qué géneros tienen los sustantivos españoles? 2. ¿De qué género son las letras del alfabeto en español? 3. ¿Qué terminaciones tienen los sustantivos masculinos? ¿y qué terminaciones, los femeninos? 4. ¿Cómo se forma el singular del femenino de los adjetivos que terminan en -o? 5. ¿Cómo se forma el plural de los adjetivos en español? 6. ¿Cuál es el presente de indicativo del verbo estudiar? ¿del verbo hablar? 7. ¿Cuáles son los números cardinales de diez a veinte?

8. ¿Qué principia el profesor? 9. ¿Para qué sirve la gramática? 10. ¿De qué habla el profesor? 11. ¿Cómo escuchan los estudiantes? 12. ¿Sabe usted hablar español? 13. Ustedes saben la lección de hoy, ¿verdad? 14. ¿Qué tienen los estudiantes? 15. ¿En qué lengua están escritos los libros?

LECCIÓN QUINTA (Lesson V)

ADJETIVOS (Adjectives)

Concordancia (Agreement)

58. An adjective that modifies two or more preceding nouns of the same gender is put in the plural and has the gender of the nouns.

la mesa y las sillas viejas, the old table and chairs

59. An adjective that modifies two or more nouns of different gender referring to animate beings is put in the masculine plural.

La madre y sus hijos son altos el hombre y la mujer españoles

The mother and her sons are tall
the Spanish man and woman

60. An adjective that modifies two or more nouns of different gender not referring to animate beings may agree in gender and number with the nearest noun, or be in the masculine plural when following. The sentence is generally so arranged that the masculine noun and adjective are contiguous.

Tenía el brazo y la mano blanca como la nieve	She had an arm and hand as white as snow
Tiene los ojos y las cejas negras como la noche	She has eyes and brows as black as night
Tiene lápices y plumas buenos Or better,	} He has good pens and pencils
Tiene buenos lápices y plumas
Tenía talento y habilidad extraordinarios Or better,	} He had extraordinary talent and ability
Tenía habilidad y talento extraordinarios

Construcción

(Position)

61. Great freedom is allowed in the position of the adjective with reference to the noun it modifies. When an adjective precedes, it generally expresses an inherent or natural quality of the noun rather than a distinguishing attribute, as it does when it follows. The more common position is after the noun, especially in the following cases:

1. Long adjectives.

un libro interesante, an interesting book

2. Participial adjectives.

un ejercicio escrito, a written exercise

3. Proper adjectives.

la lengua española, the Spanish language

4. Adjectives denoting a physical quality (color, shape, size, etc.), except when the quality is characteristic, or used figuratively.

el hombre enfermo, the sick man	la mujer vieja, the old woman
la pared blanca, the white wall	una mesa cuadrada, a square table
BUT: la blanca nieve, the white snow	una negra acción, a dark deed

5. Adjectives qualified by an adverb, especially a long one.

una muchacha muy linda, a very pretty girl una persona sumamente buena, an exceedingly good person

6. When two adjectives joined by a conjunction modify the same noun.

las palabras sencillas y fáciles, the simple and easy words libros buenos o malos, good or bad books

NOTE. — If the two adjectives are not joined by a conjunction, one usually precedes and the other follows the noun.

el viejo libro rojo, the old red book

62. Certain adjectives have one meaning when used before a noun and another when used after. (Learn)

mi caro niño , my dear (beloved) child	un libro caro , a dear (expensive) book
ciertas personas , certain persons	noticias ciertas , reliable news
diferentes muchachos , different (various) boys	sillas diferentes , different (dissimilar) chairs
un grande hombre , a great (illustrious) man	un hombre grande , a tall man
un nuevo vestido , another (or a different) garment	un vestido nuevo , a new garment
la pobre mujer , the poor (pitiable) woman	la mujer pobre , the poor (indigent) woman

VERBOS (Verbs)

 (Present Indicative of the Verb deber)

SEGUNDA CONJUGACIÓN (Second Conjugation)

Singular

yo deb-o	I owe, am owing, do owe, etc.
tú deb-es	thou owest, etc.
él (ella, usted) deb-e	he (she, it, you) owe(s), etc.

Plural

nosotros deb-emos	we owe, etc.
vosotros deb-éis	you owe, etc.
ellos (ellas, ustedes) deb-en	they (you) owe, etc.

Learn the cardinal numbers from twenty to fifty (cf. § 308).

VOCABULARIO QUINTO (Vocabulary V)

calificar , to qualify, modify.	cuando, conj. , when, whenever;
cambiar (en) , to change (to).	¿cuándo? adv. , when?
como, conj. , as, like, such as.	determinar , to determine.
concuerta (pl., -n) , agree(s).	difícil, adj. , difficult.
conjugue V. , conjugate.	emplear , to use, employ.

entender , to understand, hear.	puede (pl. , -n), can.
esencial , adj. , essential, necessary.	la regla , the rule.
formar , to form.	rojo , -a , red.
la frase , the phrase.	saber , to know, know how, learn.
generalmente , adv. , generally, usually.	sencillo , -a , simple.
grande , adj. , great, large, big.	significar , to mean, designate, denote.
leer , to read.	su (pl. , -s), his, her, its, their, your.
mucho , -a , much; pl. , many; adv. , very, greatly, a great deal.	traducir , to translate.
la oración , the sentence.	unos (-as) cuantos (-as), a few, some.
la parte , the part, division.	usar , to use, wear.
poner , to put, place, don, lay.	en vez de , prep. , instead of.

EJERCICIO QUINTO (Exercise V)

Hoy la clase principia la parte de la gramática española que explica la concordancia y la construcción de los adjetivos. Los estudiantes han (have) aprendido que para determinar el género de un sustantivo lo esencial es saber su terminación. Saben cómo se forman el femenino y el plural de un adjetivo. Saben también que el adjetivo concuerda en género y número con el sustantivo que califica. Usan frases sencillas y fáciles para explicar las reglas de la gramática en vez de palabras y frases difíciles que no pueden traducir. La clase estudia hoy el presente de indicativo de la segunda conjugación y los números cardinales de uno a cincuenta.

EJERCICIO ORAL QUINTO (Oral Exercise V)

1. The red book. 2. The written sentences. 3. The red pens and pencils. 4. The poor (pitiable) man. 5. The poor (indigent) man. 6. The simple and easy sentences. 7. The Spanish lady and gentleman. 8. Thirty-one of the books are for you, sir. 9. A very difficult lesson. 10. We ought to (de) translate everything. 11. A few rules, like the uses of the article, et cetera. 12. It does not agree with its noun. 13. Generally a pen is used instead of a pencil. 14. The rule is changed here. 15. Knowing that which is essential for you. 16. The large red feathers. 17. In order to determine the difficult part. 18. Thirty-one words for to-day is not much. 19. The word means simple in Spanish. 20. We understand but we do not talk yet.

TEMA QUINTO (Composition V)

The lesson for to-day ends the study of the adjective. The class learns that in Spanish the adjective agrees with the noun it modifies in gender and number. The position of adjectives is studied, because it is essential [to] know when the adjective is placed before the noun instead of after the noun in a Spanish sentence. Simple and easy words are used generally in the grammar lesson and in the vocabulary.

The second conjugation is quite easy to (de) learn. The truth is that there are no very difficult Spanish verbs, and with a little study a student can learn all the conjugations.

CONVERSACIÓN QUINTA (Conversation V)

1. ¿Dónde se ponen los adjetivos que califican dos sustantivos del mismo género? 2. ¿Dónde se pone generalmente el adjetivo? 3. Cuando hay dos adjetivos ¿dónde se ponen? 4. ¿Qué significa el adjetivo pobre cuando se pone delante del sustantivo? ¿cuando se pone detrás del sustantivo? 5. Conjugue V. el presente de indicativo del verbo deber. 6. ¿Cuáles son en español los números cardinales de 20 a 30? ¿de 30 a 40? ¿de 40 a 50?

7. ¿Qué estudia la clase hoy? 8. ¿Qué explica la lección de gramática de hoy? 9. ¿Se emplean frases sencillas o difíciles para explicar las reglas de la gramática? 10. ¿Son difíciles las reglas de la gramática? 11. ¿Cuántas palabras españolas sabe V.? 12. ¿Sabe V. hablar español? 13. ¿Puede V. hablar de las cosas que hay en la sala? 14. ¿Es difícil para V. el estudio de la lengua española? 15. ¿Puede V. leer el ejercicio quinto? 16. V. lee bastante bien. Haga el favor de (please) traducir el ejercicio.

LECCIÓN SEXTA

(Lesson VI)

ADJETIVOS

(Adjectives)

Apócope

(Apocopation)

64. The following adjectives lose the final -o when they precede a masculine singular noun:

bueno, good malo, bad, ill primero, first tercero, third postrero, last uno, one, a, an alguno, some, any ninguno, no, none

un buen padre, a good father ningún otro día, no other day

algún día, some day
el primer buen día, the first good day

BUT: If bueno and malo are separated from their noun by other adjectives, they may retain the final -o, especially if the conjunction y intervenes.

un malo, imprudente muchacho, a bad, imprudent boy un bueno y hermoso libro, a good and beautiful book

65. The adjective grande meaning 'great' or 'grand' loses its final syllable before a singular noun of either gender.

un gran hombre, a great man una gran dificultad, a great difficulty

1. Before a noun beginning with a vowel, or when the adjective is emphatic, the full form is sometimes used.

un grande amigo, a great friend

un grande sacrificio, a great sacrifice

2. To express size, grande regularly stands after the noun it modifies (cf. § 62).

un edificio grande, a large building

66. Santo, 'saint,' before the masculine name of a saint becomes San, except in the case of Santo Domingo, Santo Tomás and Santo Toribio.

San Antonio, Saint Anthony

NOTE. — The name of the island in the Antilles is San Tomás.

67. Ciento, 'hundred,' becomes cien before the noun it modifies, even if an adjective intervenes. But ciento is used before smaller numerals (cf. § 313).

cien buenos alumnos, a hundred good students ciento veinte, one hundred and twenty

Usos Particulares (Special Uses)

68. Adjectives and participles are frequently used substantively. When so used they take the gender and number of the noun understood. The masculine plural form may designate individuals of both sexes (cf. § 40, 2).

el muerto , the dead man	el viejo , the old man la mejor vestida , the best dressed woman	la vieja , the old woman los viejos , the old men, or the old man and the old woman, or the old men and women

69. An English noun used adjectively, to denote the material of which a thing is made, or to indicate the purpose of a thing or the use to which it is put, is regularly expressed in Spanish by a corresponding noun preceded by the preposition de. The same construction is used to translate English adjectives of material. To indicate use or purpose para, 'for,' is sometimes required.

una cadena de oro , a gold (or golden) chain	la sala de clase , the class-room
una mesa de mármol , a marble table	la lección de lectura , the reading lesson una silla de madera , a wooden chair	una cuchara de plata , a silver spoon una llave de maleta , a valise key	una cuchara para sopa , a soup spoon

EJERCICIO SEXTO (Exercise VI)

Las casas particulares españolas con pocas excepciones son bastante diferentes de las casas de los Estados Unidos. 2 Generalmente son de piedra enjalbegada. Hay muy pocas de madera. En España muchas casas tienen patios. Se 4 entra en el patio directamente de la acera por una gran puerta. En el patio hay generalmente hermosas galerías y 6 muchas flores. Del patio se puede entrar en las diversas habitaciones principales de la planta baja: la sala de recibo, 8

el salón y el comedor. La cocina está detrás. Las alcobas están en el primer piso. Algunas veces en las casas elegantes 10 hay también una pequeña capilla particular con su altar. Detrás del altar muchas veces hay un buen cuadro que repre- 12 senta San José o algún otro santo.

EJERCICIO ORAL SEXTO (Oral Exercise VI)

Sometimes we find an easy lesson in the first book. 11. Whitewashed stone is often used. 12. A good picture behind the altar. 13. The kitchen is entered directly from the sidewalk. 14. The reading lesson is by a Spanish professor. 15. St. Joseph is often represented in pictures. 16. The poor (man) lives here. 17. He can translate the third exercise.

TEMA SEXTO (Composition VI)

Private houses in Spain are not the same as (que) private houses in the United States. Generally Spanish houses are 2 of stone instead of wood. One often finds an inner court in many of the elegant houses of Spain, and there are a hun- 4 dred things which are quite different. The inner court is usually entered from the sidewalk by [means of] a large door. 6 The principal rooms of the house are not entered directly. It is necessary [to] enter (en) the inner court first. Once in 8 the inner court, it is easy enough [to] enter the principal rooms: the reception hall, the drawing-room, et cetera. The 10 kitchen cannot be entered from the inner court. The bedrooms are generally on the second floor and not on the 12 ground floor with the other rooms.

LECCIÓN SÉPTIMA

(Lesson VII)

AUMENTATIVOS Y DIMINUTIVOS

(Augmentatives and Diminutives)

74. Spanish is very rich in suffixes, which are added to nouns, adjectives and adverbs to modify their ordinary meaning. In addition to the augmentative or diminutive idea, they sometimes express depreciation or affection. They are often used, especially in familiar style, but to employ them properly requires much familiarity with the language, for they cannot be appended indiscriminately to any word.

75. The principal augmentative suffixes are -ón, -azo, -ote, -acho. Besides the augmentative, they often have a depreciative value, especially -ote and -acho. The feminine is formed regularly, except of -ote, which becomes -ota.

hombre, man vino, wine palabra, word rico, rich

hombrón, big man vinazo, strong, thick wine palabrota, bad word, curse ricacho, vulgarly rich

76. The suffixes -azo and -ada may indicate a blow from, thrust with, report of, or injury due to, the thing named by the noun to which they are added.

látigo, whip cuchillo, knife fusil, gun

latigazo, blow with a whip cuchillada, knife thrust fusilazo, gunshot or blow with a gun

muñillo o aguja

77. The principal diminutives are -ito, -cito, -ecito, -illo, -cillo, -ecillo, -ete, -cete, -ecete, -uelo, -zuelo, -ezuelo, and -ucho. The last four are commonly used with a depreciative value. The feminine is formed regularly, except of -ete, which becomes -eta.

hermano, brother jardín, garden flor, flower mano, hand clavo, nail historia, story pintor, artist casa, house

hermanito, little brother jardincito, little garden florecita, pretty little flower manecilla, small hand (hand of a watch) clavete, tack historieta, short story pintorzuelo, poor artist casucha, shanty

Verbos

(Verbs)

78. In Spanish there are two verbs which correspond to the English verb 'to have,' but which cannot be used interchangeably: haber and tener.

79. The principal use of haber is as an auxiliary verb with past participles to form the compound tenses of verbs. The past participle so used is invariable.

He estudiado el español
Hemos comido mucho

I have studied Spanish
We have eaten a great deal

80. Tener, 'to have,' is used in general only to indicate possession.

Tengo un libro

I have a book

81. Presente de Indicativo de haber [habiendo, habido]¹ (Present Indicative of haber)

 16. Writing is a difficult exercise for little children. 17. A very devout person attends mass whenever it is possible. 18. Who is this imperious youth? 19. She is a very pretty widow.

TEMA SÉPTIMO (Composition VII)

I have a cousin, a big, good-looking youth, who lives in a little house which my father owns in Madrid. In the same 2 house his mother has a small store where she sells books and a hundred other little things. My cousin is very good, and, 4 whenever my aunt is busy, he takes care of the store. When he is not helping (a) his mother, he comes to my house and we 6 study English with my mother who has lived in England and speaks English well. My mother is generally quite busy, 8 because she takes care of the house and of my little brothers and sisters. She and my aunt are very devout and attend 10 mass whenever it is possible.

¹ The preposition a is used after transitive verbs before direct objects referring to persons. It is not to be translated (cf. § 306, 1).

² Such excessive use of augmentatives and diminutives as may be found in this exercise is not to be recommended. They are used here advisedly for the purpose of illustration.

15. ¿Tiene V. hermanas?

LECCIÓN OCTAVA

(Lesson VIII)

ADJETIVOS Y PRONOMBRES POSESIVOS

(Possessive Adjectives and Pronouns)

Adjetivos

(Adjectives)

83. The possessive adjectives have different forms when they precede and when they follow the noun.

84. DELANTE DEL SUSTANTIVO

(Before the Noun)

Singular	Plural mi	mis	my tu	tus	thy, your ¹
su	sus	his, her, its, your nuestro, -a	nuestros, -as	our
vuestro, -a	vuestros, -as	your ¹
su	sus	their, your ¹

85. DETRÁS DEL SUSTANTIVO

(After the Noun)

Singular	Plural
mío, -a	míos, -as	my tuyo, -a	tuyos, -as	thy, your ¹
suyo, -a	suys, -as	his, her, its, your
nuestro, -a	nuestros, -as	our
vuestro, -a	vuestros, -as	your ¹
suyo, -a	suys, -as	their, your ¹

¹ 'Your' may be translated by tu, vuestro or su, etc., corresponding in use to tú, vosotros and usted (cf. § 185).

86. The possessive pronouns are formed by prefixing the definite article to the adjective forms that are used after the noun.

el mío, la mía, los míos, las mías, 'mine'; el tuyo, etc., 'thine,' etc.

¿Tiene un libro? Sí, tiene el nuestro Has he a book? Yes, he has ours

NOTE. — Lo before the masculine singular of the forms used after the noun makes an indefinite pronoun meaning 'that which is mine, thine,' etc.

87. After the verb ser, 'to be,' the article is usually omitted, unless an emphatic distinction is made.

Tanto gusto en conocerle. El gusto es mío	I am very glad to know you. The pleasure is mine
Este libro es el mío, no es el suyo	This book is mine, it isn't his

88. Possessive adjectives and possessive pronouns agree in gender and number with the thing possessed, and in person, with the possessor.

Nuestro caballo es pequeño	Our horse is small
La pluma es mía	The pen is mine

VERBOS (Verbs)

89. In Spanish there are two verbs which correspond to the English verb 'to be,' but which cannot be used interchangeably: ser and estar.

90. Ser expresses what is inherent or permanent; estar, what is accidental or temporary. Estar also expresses position whether temporary or permanent.

Es viejo y está enfermo	He is old and ill
La nieve es blanca	Snow is white
El profesor está sentado	The teacher is seated
Madrid está en España	Madrid is in Spain

91. Presente de Indicativo de ser [siendo, sido]¹ (Present Indicative of ser)

	Singular yo soy		I am
tú eres		thou art
él (ella, usted) es		he (she) is, you are
	Plural nosotros somos		we are vosotros sois		you are ellos (ellas, ustedes) son		they (you) are

92. Presente de Indicativo de estar [estando, estado]¹ (Present Indicative of estar)

Singular

yo estoy	I am
tú estás	thou art
él (ella, usted) está	he (she) is, you are

Plural

nosotros estamos	we are vosotros estáis	you are ellos (ellas, ustedes) están	they (you) are

93. Ser is used with the past participles of active verbs to form the passive voice. The past participle so used agrees in gender and number with the subject.

La niña es castigada por su madre The child is punished by her mother

94. When estar is used with the past participle, a state or condition is expressed rather than an action, and the participle has an adjective value.

La puerta está abierta	The door is open (state)
La puerta es abierta	The door is opened (action)

95. Estar is also used with the present participle of verbs to form the progressive tenses.

Está estudiando He is studying

96. Ser and not estar is always used with a predicate noun.

Su padre es abogado	His father is a lawyer
Es socio	He is a member

97. Some adjectives have a different meaning according to whether they are used with ser or estar.

El hombre es malo	The man is bad (evil)
El hombre está malo	The man is sick
El alumno es bueno	The student is good
El alumno está bueno	The student is well

Learn the cardinal numbers from five hundred to one thousand (cf. § 308).

VOCABULARIO OCTAVO

(Vocabulary VIII)

el armario, the wardrobe, clothes- press.	mejor, adj. , better; el (la) —, the best.
comprar, to buy.	la noche, the night, evening.
el chaleco, the vest, waistcoat.	el pantalón, the trousers (com- monly used in the plural).
la chaqueta, the coat.	preciso, —a, necessary.
exterior, adj. , outer, exterior.	prefiero, I prefer; prefiere , he, you, etc., prefer(s).
el frac, the dress-coat.	la ropa, the dress, clothing.
el gabán, the overcoat.	el sastre, the tailor.
guardar, to keep, protect, re- tain.	la sastrería, the tailor's (shop).
hacer, to do, make.	siempre, adv. , always, ever, still.
el ingeniero, the engineer.	el smoking, the dinner-coat, tux- edo.
interior, adj. , interior, inner, under; la ropa —, the under- clothing.	la tarde, the afternoon.
la levita, the frock-coat.	el traje, the suit of clothes, cos- tume.
llevar, to wear, take, carry.	el vestido, the suit of clothes, clothing, dress.
la maleta, the valise, suit-case.	viajar, to travel.
mandar, to order, command, send.

al contrario, on the other hand, on the contrary.
hace frío, it is cold.

EJERCICIO OCTAVO

(Exercise VIII)

La ropa exterior se puede mandar hacer¹ en la sastrería o se puede comprar en las tiendas. Generalmente no es 2 preciso mandar hacer la ropa interior, porque se pueden comprar todas estas cosas en las tiendas. 4

Mi hermano y yo no mandamos hacer nuestros trajes con el mismo sastre. Mi hermano prefiere al suyo porque hace 6 bien las chaquetas y los chalecos. Yo, al contrario, prefiero al mío porque hace mejor los pantalones. Tengo un armario 8 en mi cuarto donde guardo toda mi ropa exterior. Mi her-mano, que es ingeniero, guarda una parte de la suya en una 10 maleta, porque siempre está viajando. La ropa exterior que tengo en mi armario consta de un frac y de un smoking, trajes 12 que se llevan por la noche, de una levita que se lleva por la tarde, de un gabán para cuando hace frío y de otros tres o 14 cuatro trajes.

¹ The active infinitive is often used with the force of a passive after mandar and after many other verbs.

EJERCICIO ORAL OCTAVO
(Oral Exercise VIII)

1. My suit of clothes. 2. Your store; our house. 3. His clothing; their frock-coats. 4. The coat is mine. 5. The valise is yours; he has mine. 6. The tailor is good. 7. He is a professor. 8. The lesson is learned by the student. 9. The professor is seated in the chair. 10. The little boy is attending mass for the first time. 11. The pen and pencil are mine. 12. Your brother has yours. 13. He is here; she is here. 14. The exercise is written by the little girl with a pen. 15. The theme is finished. 16. I am with my brother and sister. 17. He is young enough to (para) begin. 18. He has his book; we have ours. 19. We have been with our tailor. 20. This book may be interesting, but I prefer hers.

TEMA OCTAVO
(Composition VIII)

Outer clothing can be bought in a store or at a tailor's. My brothers buy all their suits in the stores, but I have mine made at the tailor's. He makes better clothes, and one can always have the suit that one prefers. I am an engineer and always keep a suit of clothes and some underclothing in my valise, because I travel a great deal. In my wardrobe at home I have trousers and vests, a frock-coat that I wear in the afternoon and a dress-coat that I wear in the evening. I have another clothes-press too, where I keep my overcoats and the suits which I only wear when it is cold.

CONVERSACIÓN OCTAVA
(Conversation VIII)

1. ¿En qué página principia la lección de hoy? 2. ¿En qué página termina? 3. ¿Cuáles son los adjetivos posesivos que se emplean delante del sustantivo? 4. ¿Cuáles son los adjetivos posesivos que se emplean detrás del sustantivo? 5. ¿Cómo se forman los pronombres posesivos? 6. ¿Cuántos verbos hay en español que significan to be? 7. Conjugue V. el presente de indicativo de ser; de estar.

8. ¿De qué consta la ropa exterior de hombre (man)?

9. ¿Dónde se pone la ropa cuando se viaja? 10. ¿Qué hace un sastre? 11. ¿Cuándo se lleva la levita? ¿cuándo se lleva el frac? 12. ¿Cuándo se usa el gabán? 13. ¿Qué tiene V. en su armario? 14. ¿Dónde compra V. sus trajes?

LECCIÓN NOVENA

(Lesson IX)

ADJETIVOS Y PRONOMBRES POSESIVOS

(Possessive Adjectives and Pronouns)

98. Since su (pl., sus) may have several meanings, the possessor must often be more clearly defined. This is done by the use of either su (sus) or the definite article before the thing possessed and by de and the proper personal pronoun after the thing possessed (which form is often used, even if the verb ser intervenes).

la su } casa	{	de él	his house
		de ella	her house
		de usted	your house (sing.) de ellos	their house
		de ellas	their house
		de ustedes	your house (pl.)
¿Cuál es su (or el) libro de V.?			Which is your book?
La casa es de él			The house is his

99. A possessive adjective modifying two or more nouns should be repeated before each noun, unless these nouns refer to the same person or object.

Mis libros y mi pluma están aquí	My books and (my) pen are here
Mi amigo y profesor, el señor Godoy	My friend and teacher, Mr. Godoy

100. The English expressions 'of mine,' 'of his,' etc., and the possessive in direct address, are translated by those forms of the possessive adjective which are used after the noun.

un poema nuestro	a poem of ours or one of our poems
Son alumnos míos	They are students of mine
¡Hijo mío!	My son!

101. The possessive adjective is often replaced by the definite article, especially when referring to parts of the body, clothing, etc. (cf. § 35). To indicate more definitely the possessor, an indirect object may be used, but, when the action expressed is functional with the part mentioned, the indirect object is regularly omitted.

Le cortó el pelo al niño
 Me quité el sombrero Abrió la boca

He cut the child's hair.
 I took off my hat
 He opened his mouth

1. When the object referred to is a thing in the singular, the like of which is possessed by several individuals of a group, a singular noun is generally used in Spanish where in English the plural is preferred.

Se pintaron la cara y las manos Levantad la mano
 Sacaron la lengua
 Todos se quitaron el sombrero

They painted their faces and hands
 Raise your hands (one hand each)
 They stuck out their tongues
 They all took off their hats

102. The possessive adjective is usually required when the part of the body, clothing, etc., in question is the subject of a clause or sentence, is qualified by an adjective, or where ambiguity may arise from the use of the definite article.

Sus ojos chispeaban
 Yo estaba mirando su linda cara Una fuerza extraordinaria detuvo sus manos

Her eyes flashed
 I was looking at her pretty face
 A strange power stopped his hands

103. The possessive adjective may be strengthened by the use of the proper form of the adjective propio, 'own.'

mi propio sombrero, my own hat nuestra propia tienda, our own store

CONSTRUCCIÓN DE LAS PALABRAS EN LA ORACIÓN

(Position of the Words in a Sentence)

104. In Spanish much greater freedom is allowed in the construction of the sentence than in English. Subjects or objects may precede or follow the verb, or both may come together before or after the verb.

La madre quiere mucho a su hija
 A su hija quiere mucho la madre Quiere mucho a su hija la madre
 Quiere mucho la madre a su hija
 A su hija la madre quiere mucho
 La casa es nueva
 Es nueva la casa

} The mother is very fond of her daughter

} The house is new

1. In interrogative sentences it is considered more elegant, as a rule, to place a noun subject after its predicate.

¿Es difícil la lección?

Is the lesson difficult?

¿Ha escrito la carta tu hermano?

Has your brother written the letter?

BUT: ¿Ha escrito V. la carta?

Have you written the letter?

Learn the objective personal pronouns and their position (cf. §§ 191, 197).

VOCABULARIO NOVENO

(Vocabulary IX)

el amigo; f. , la amiga, the friend.	lavar, to wash.
la calidad, the quality.	la media, the stocking.
la camisa, the shirt.	la mujer, the woman, wife.

inferior, adj. , inferior, lower.	vario, —a, various.
la lavandera, the laundress, wash-woman.	el zapato, the shoe.

EJERCICIO NOVENO

(Exercise IX)

Compro mi ropa interior en una camisería. Aquí se venden corbatas, pañuelos, medias, camisas, puños, cuellos y toda la 2 ropa interior que necesita un hombre. Una hermana mía compra su propia ropa en otra tienda donde se venden 4 solamente cosas de mujeres: encajes, delantales, vestidos etc. Nuestros sombreros, guantes y zapatos los¹ compramos en 6 diversas tiendas. Hay varias camiserías en la calle de Alcalá, pero es preciso tener cuidado, porque hay tiendas donde se 8 vende ropa de calidad inferior. Conozco algunas tiendas muy buenas en Madrid, y siempre doy las señas de ellas a 10 mis amigos cuando desean comprar buena ropa. Cuando la ropa interior está sucia se la² mando a la lavandera. La 12 mía me³ lava y plancha muy bien las camisas y los cuellos.

EJERCICIO ORAL NOVENO

(Oral Exercise IX)

1. His house; her house; our gloves; their cuffs. 2. Their collars; your shoes. 3. His shirts and vests. 4. The hat is his.

¹ A redundant pronoun is often used in order to make clear the subject or object of the verb.

³ Cf. § 203.

5. Their friend and teacher, Mr. Ramírez. 6. I give the collars to my daughter. 7. Daughter, where are you? 8. A friend of mine washes his own gloves. 9. He takes off (se quita) his hat when there are ladies in the room. 10. Our own laundress comes to the house Mondays. 11. This sidewalk of ours needs to be washed. 12. He keeps his hat in his hand. 13. The laundress washes my collars and cuffs. 14. Their hats and gloves are on the table. 15. When it is cold we wear overcoats. 16. Here they are, his friend and mine. 17. He does not live with his own family. 18. I always take care when I buy clothes.

TEMA NOVENO
(Composition IX)

I am traveling and find that there are some things which I have not brought with me. Do you know where there is a good store where they sell mens' clothing? — Yes, sir. There is a large haberdashery on Alcalá Street where they sell shirts, neckties, collars, cuffs, etc. I do not buy my own clothing in this store, it is true, but a friend of mine says that they do not sell inferior things. There are various other haberdasheries on the same street, but if (si) you desire good clothing it is better [to] be careful and only buy in the better stores. — You say that the large store on Alcalá Street is the best; have you the address of it here? — Yes, sir. It is number 542. If you wish to have your shirts and collars washed, I know a laundress who washes and irons very well. — Good, because I have traveled so much that my clothing is very dirty.

CONVERSACIÓN NOVENA

(Lesson X)

ADJETIVOS Y PRONOMBRES DEMOSTRATIVOS

(Demonstrative Adjectives and Pronouns)

105. The demonstrative adjectives regularly precede their nouns and agree with them in gender and number.

Adjetivos Demostrativos

(Demonstrative Adjectives)

Singular			Plural
MASCULINO	FEMENINO		MASCULINO	FEMENINO
este	esta	this	estos	estas	these ese	esa	that	esos	esas	those aquel	aquella	that	aquellos	aquellas	those

106. Este denotes what is near the speaker or mentioned by him; ese, what is near, or known to, the person spoken to, or what has recently been referred to; and aquel, what is remote from both or not recently referred to. Referring to time, este denotes the present; ese, a period relatively near; and aquel, a remote period.

este libro, this book

ese libro, that book (near you) aquel libro, that book (yonder)

este año, this year

esos años, those years

aquellos siglos, those centuries

NOTE. — Ese is also used to express contempt. It may precede, but usually follows its noun, which then takes the definite article.

el llorón ese (or ese llorón), that 'cry-baby'

107. The demonstrative pronouns are distinguished from the demonstrative adjectives by a written accent. They agree in gender and number with the nouns they represent.

The neuter pronouns, having no corresponding adjective forms, need no accent to distinguish them. The neuter pronouns do not represent a noun, but refer to a whole phrase, sentence or idea.

Pronombres Demostrativos (Demonstrative Pronouns)

Singular

MASCULINO	FEMENINO		NEUTRO
éste	ésta	this (one)	esto	this ése	ésa	that (one)	eso	that aquél	aquélla	that (one)	aquello	that

Plural

MASCULINO	FEMENINO
éstos	éstas	these esos	ésas	those aquéllos	aquéllas	those

este libro y aquél	this book and that one (yonder)
¿Cuáles le gustan más, éstos o esos?	Which do you like better, these or those?
¿Ha leído V. esto?	Have you read this?
Eso es	That's it, or that's right

109. Éste, etc., sometimes means 'the latter,' and aquél, etc., 'the former.' In the Spanish sentence the 'latter' is generally referred to before the 'former,' which is the reverse of the English usage.

Juan y Pedro son estudiantes; éste es trabajador, aquél es holgazán	John and Peter are students; the latter is diligent, the former is lazy
---	---

NOTE. — They may also be used as correlatives.

Éstos cantaban, aquéllos bailaban	Some sang, others danced
-----------------------------------	--------------------------

110. In correspondence en (de, a) ésta and en (de, a) ésa are used elliptically, the word ciudad, 'city,' being generally understood.

Llegué a ésta el 15	I arrived here the 15th
¿Cómo va su salud en ésa?	How is your health in that city?

111. Before a relative clause, or before a phrase introduced by de, a definite article is generally used instead of a demonstrative (or personal) pronoun.

El que vino ayer es mi hermano	The one (he) who came yesterday is my brother
Lo que necesito es un gabán	What (that which) I need is an overcoat
la de los cabellos rubios	the fair-haired one (lit. she of the fair hair)

112. The demonstrative adjective aquel, etc., sometimes replaces the definite article when the following relative is the object of a preposition.

aquella (not la) a quien saludé	the one to whom I bowed
BUT: aquel (or el) del bigote	the one with the mustache
aquello (or lo) del dinero perdido	that (question) about the lost money

VOCABULARIO DÉCIMO (Vocabulary X)

abierto , -a, open, opened.	la fábrica , the manufactory, edifice, structure.
aprendieron (pret. of aprender), learned.	fabricar , to manufacture.
arraigado , -a, deep-rooted.	el fumador , the smoker.
bajo , prep. , below, under.	fumar , to smoke.
el campo , the field, country.	importante , adj. , important.
el cigarillo , the cigarette.	las Indias occidentales , the West Indies.
el cigarro (puro), the cigar.	la industria , the industry.
continental , adj. , continental.	industrial , adj. , industrial.
la costumbre , the custom, habit.	inmenso , -a, immense.
cultivar , to cultivate.	el marinero , the sailor.
la cultura , the culture, cultivation.	más , adv. , more.
deshacerse (de), to remove, rid oneself of.	el monopolio , the monopoly.
la dirección , the direction, management.	nada , pron. , nothing.
el estado , the state, government.	la pipa , the pipe; fumar en — , to smoke a pipe.
	Sevilla , f. , Seville .
	el tabaco , the tobacco.

EJERCICIO DÉCIMO (Exercise X)

Aquellos marineros españoles que aprendieron a fumar tabaco de los naturales de las Indias occidentales han abierto un inmenso campo industrial. En España la cultura del tabaco forma una industria muy importante. En ese país de fumadores esta industria es un monopolio lo mismo que en los otros países continentales. El tabaco se cultiva, se fabrica y se vende bajo la dirección del estado.

Hay en Sevilla una fábrica muy importante de cigarros y cigarillos. Éstos se fuman mucho más que aquéllos en España. Hay pocos españoles que fuman en pipa. Son muy pocos los que no fuman nada. La verdad es que los españoles no pueden deshacerse de una costumbre tan (so) arraigada.

EJERCICIO ORAL DÉCIMO (Oral Exercise X)

1. This factory; these factories; that man; those men (near you); that book; those books (over yonder). 2. These first lessons. 3. That friend of yours. 4. Those years (long ago). 5. This one is better. 6. How is traveling in that city? 7. The two smokers are in that room over there. 8. There are cigars and cigarettes on the table, the former are for my father and the latter are for my uncle. 9. I do not smoke, because smoking is not a good habit. 10. The tobacco factories in Spain are under the direction of the government, are they not? 11. That's it, my friend. 12. Some Spanish sailors learned the use of tobacco. 13. The one that is here is my brother. 14. That of which he speaks is very important. 15. A monopoly of the other industries is not necessary. 16. Do you wish this one or that one? — I wish the latter.

TEMA DÉCIMO (Composition X)

In Spain one of the deep-rooted habits of the men is that of smoking (use infinitive). The Spanish have always smoked 2 since (desde) the day when those Spanish sailors in the West Indies learned the use of tobacco. The tobacco industry is 4 to-day one of the important industries of Spain, as it is in many other countries. The tobacco is manufactured under 6 the direction of the government in some countries, and in private factories in others. The latter is true in the United 8 States, but in the continental countries the government owns the factories. The best tobacco for cigars is cultivated in the 10 West Indies, and when one buys a pure Havana cigar one always knows that it is the best that is made. 12

CONVERSACIÓN DÉCIMA (Conversation X)

1. ¿Cómo se dice en español the former . . . the latter? 2. ¿Cuándo se escriben los acentos en los demostrativos? 3. ¿Hay un adjetivo demostrativo neutro?
4. ¿Quiénes aprendieron primero el uso del tabaco? 5. ¿Dónde

están las Indias occidentales? 6. ¿Se cultiva el tabaco en los Estados Unidos? 7. ¿Cómo se fuma el tabaco? 8. ¿Cuáles son más grandes, los cigarros o los cigarillos? 9. ¿Cuáles se fuman más en España? 10. ¿Hay algunos españoles que no fuman nada? 11. ¿Está muy arraigada la costumbre de fumar? 12. ¿Fuma su señor padre? 13. ¿Dónde compra sus cigarros su padre de V.? 14. ¿Es buena la costumbre de fumar? 15. ¿Es fácil deshacerse de aquella costumbre?

LECCIÓN XI¹

(Lesson XI)

VERBOS

(Verbs)

PRETÉRITO IMPERFECTO² Y PRETÉRITO PERFECTO² DE INDICATIVO

(Imperfect and Preterit Indicative)

I lived, etc.

viv-íamos
viv-íais

116. The imperfect indicative is formed by adding to the stem of the verb the endings -aba, etc., in the first conjugation, -ía, etc., in the second and third. The accent falls throughout on the first vowel of the endings in all three conjugations, ¹ From here on cardinal numbers are used, because the ordinals above ten are rarely employed in numbering lessons, chapters, etc. (cf. § 321).

² In this grammar these tenses will be called Imperfecto and Pretérito respectively.

³ A distinction must be made between 'would' used to indicate customary action and 'would' the sign of the conditional (cf. § 137).

and is written in the first person plural of the first conjugation, and over the i of the endings in all forms of the second and third conjugations.

117. There are only three verbs that are irregular in the imperfect indicative. They are:

ser, to be: era, eras, era, éramos, erais, eran

ir, to go: iba, ibas, iba, íbamos, ibais, iban

ver, to see: veía, veías, veía, veíamos, veíais, veían

Pretérito (Perfecto) (Preterit)

118.

I

habl-é habl-ó

I spoke, did speak

habl-amos habl-asteis habl-arón

119.

II

deb-í deb-iste deb-ió

I owed (ought), did owe deb-imos deb-isteis deb-ieron

120.

III

viv-í viv-iste viv-ió

I lived, did live

viv-imos viv-isteis viv-ieron

121. The preterit is formed by adding to the stem of the verb the appropriate endings for the different conjugations. The endings are the same in the second and third conjugations. The accent falls on the first vowel of the endings throughout, except in -ió and -ieron, where it falls on the second. It must be written in the first and third persons singular of all three conjugations.

NOTE. — By analogy the accent is also written on monosyllabic preterits ending in a diphthong, as in ver, 'to see': ví, viste, vió (cf. § 20, 5).

122. Verbs whose stem ends in a vowel change i to y in the preterit endings -ió and -ieron. Moreover they receive a written accent on the i of the endings -iste, -imos, -isteis.

creer, to believe: creí, creíste, creyó, creímos, creísteis, creyeron

leer, to read: leí, leíste, leyó, leímos, leísteis, leyeron

123. The imperfect indicative is used to express (1) customary past action, (2) continued past action, state, or condition when emphasis is laid upon the fact of its continuance or recurrence, (3) action that was going on in the past when something else happened. It might be termed the descriptive past tense.

Cuando yo estaba en el campo, me levantaba a las cinco
El sol brillaba y los pájaros cantaban Yo escribía una carta cuando entró mi hermano

When I was in the country, I would (used to) get up at five o'clock
The sun shone and the birds sang I was writing a letter when my brother entered

124. Verbs expressing desire, ability, duty, obligation, thought, knowledge, etc., inasmuch as they express in the past rather states of mind than actions, are usually used in the imperfect instead of the preterit tense.

Yo quería verle, pero no sabía dónde estaba

I wanted to see him, but I didn't know where he was

125. The preterit is used to express definite past action (not state or condition) of long or short duration, provided the idea of action and not duration is emphasized. It might be termed the narrative past tense.

Ayer vi a su hermano
Luis XIV reinó 72 años

I saw your brother yesterday
Louis XIV reigned 72 years

126. The perfect tense, which is composed of the present indicative of haber and a past participle, is often used instead of the preterit to express (1) past action without reference to any particular time, (2) past action that took place recently or in a space of time not yet elapsed. The parts of a compound tense must not be separated by other words as often in English.

¿Ha leído V. las obras de Calderón?
He comido con amigos hoy
He estudiado todo este año

Have you read Calderón's works?
I dined with friends to-day
I have studied all this year

NOTE. — The present tense is used instead of the past tense in certain idiomatic expressions involving time. It is regularly so used when the event begun in the past is still continuing. If the event is a completed occurrence, a past tense is used.

¿Desde cuándo está V. en Nueva York?

How long have you been in New York? (The person questioned is still there)

BUT: Hace dos años que estaba en
Madrid

It is two years since he was in Madrid. (The person in question is no longer there.)

EJERCICIO XI

(Exercise XI)

Cuando estuve en Sevilla un amigo se¹ ofreció para llevarme² a ver la famosa fábrica de tabacos. Entramos en el hermoso edificio por una gran puerta que está en la calle de San Fernando. Una escena muy alegre se nos³ presentó a la vista al⁴ entrar. En las inmensas galerías había más de⁵ 4500 mujeres que hacían cigarros y cigarillos. Por las ventanas abiertas el sol iluminaba los pañuelos de varios colores vistosos que llevaban en los hombros las cigarreras. Todas hablaban a la vez, gritando y riéndose¹ mucho. Algunas dirigieron la mirada hacia nosotros.

Andando por las galerías entendí que las muchachas cuchicheaban detrás de nosotros y soltaban la carcajada de vez en cuando. Yo sabía que se¹ burlaban de mí, pero no me¹ atreví a decir nada, conociendo bien que no es posible aventajar en agudezas a las saladas andaluzas.

EJERCICIO ORAL XI (Oral Exercise XI)

1. He was speaking; they used to speak. 2. He had found; we had offered; you had surpassed. 3. We did not go through the factory. 4. I did not know where he was. 5. I spoke to the cigarette maker. 6. The girls made fun of the man who visited the factory. 7. Where were you? 8. I was in the inner court when you called. 9. A beautiful scene presented itself. 10. We had written the eleventh exercise when the professor entered. 11. That was my mother. 12. He lived with you when you were in Spain, did he not? 13. The sun lit up the room and the family was cheerful. 14. I heard [that] the girls burst out laughing. 15. I read the article and believed that it was true. 16. They had studied all the lessons and were beginning to (a) read simple things. 17. His uncle used to be an engineer when he was young. 18. I did not dare to (a) say anything. 19. The little girl would sing all (the) day [long]. 20. Those kerchiefs were brilliant, were they not?

TEMA XI (Composition XI)

One of the most interesting things that I saw while I was in Seville was the famous tobacco factory. A friend of mine 2 took me there (allí) and explained how the cigars and cigarettes were made. It was a very animated scene which presented itself to us¹ on entering.² There were more than³ 4500 4 girls making cigarettes in the various galleries of the large 6 building. Many of them wore on their shoulders kerchiefs of various brilliant colors which the sun, entering through the 8 open windows, lit up.

While we were passing through the galleries, I heard the 10 cigarette makers whispering behind us, and there were some who burst out laughing. They were laughing at me,⁴ but I 12 did not dare to (a) speak to them, for I had heard that one could not outdo the Andalusian women in wit. 14

FUTURO (IMPERFECTO) Y CONDICIONAL

(The Future and the Conditional)

Futuro (Imperfecto)¹

(Future)

127.

I

hablar-é hablar-ás hablar-á

I shall (will) speak, etc.

hablar-emos hablar-éis hablar-án

128.

II

deber-é deber-ás deber-á

I shall (will) owe, etc.

deber-emos deber-éis deber-án

129.

III

vivir-é vivir-ás vivir-á

I shall (will) live, etc.

vivir-emos vivir-éis vivir-án

¹ This tense will be called in this grammar Futuro.

130. The future indicative is formed by adding to the infinitive the endings as given above, which are the same for all Spanish verbs, regular and irregular. They are derived from the present indicative of the verb haber, thus, hablar (h)é, hablar (h)ás, etc. The accent falls on the first vowel of the ending throughout, and is always written, except in the first person plural.

131. The use of the future indicative in Spanish is practically the same as in English. It expresses both the idea of will or determination and that of simple futurity. In the former sense, however, querer is frequently used.

Lo buscaré mañana	I shall look for it to-morrow
¿Vendrá usted con nosotros?	Shall (or will) you come with us?
BUT: ¿Quiere usted venir con nosotros?	Will you (or do you wish to) come with us?

132. The present indicative is used instead of the future after si meaning 'if.'

Si él viene a las cinco, me encontrará en casa	If he will come at five o'clock, he will find me at home
---	--

NOTE. — If si has the sense of 'whether,' the future is used.

No sé si vivirá o no	I don't know whether he will live or not
-----------------------------	--

Conditional¹ (Conditional)

133.

I

hablar-ía	I should (would) speak, etc.	hablar-famos
hablar-fas		hablar-fais
hablar-fa		hablar-fan

134.

II

deber-ía	I should (would) owe, ought, etc.	deber-famos
deber-fas		deber-fais
deber-fa		deber-fan

NOTE. — The conditional of deber is used to denote mild obligation, and is often used instead of the present to translate 'I ought,' etc.

135.

III

vivir-ía	I should (would) live, etc.	vivir-famos
vivir-fas		vivir-fais
vivir-fa		vivir-fan

¹ This tense in Spanish grammars is grouped under the subjunctive, and called Pretérito Imperfecto. In this book it has been grouped with the tenses of the indicative and called Condicional by analogy with the French custom.

136. The conditional is formed by adding to the infinitive the endings as given above, which are the same as those of the imperfect indicative of the second and third conjugations. This is true of both regular and irregular verbs.

137. The use of the conditional in Spanish is practically the same as in French. In English it is translated by 'would' or 'should.'

Me dijo que vendría a las cinco He told me that he would come at five

138. The future may be used in place of the present and the conditional in place of the imperfect, in an independent clause, to denote probability or conjecture. This is true also of the corresponding compound tenses.

Serán las doce
Habría llegado

It must be (about) twelve o'clock
He must likely have come

139. Ser and estar are regular in the formation of the future and conditional.

140. Haber and tener have the regular endings in the future and conditional. The stems change, however. Haber becomes habr-é, habr-ía. Tener becomes tendr-é, tendr-ía. For all forms of the auxiliary verbs, cf. §§ 406-409.

mos nada hasta mañana. Por primera vez me² es posible 4 escribirle³ algo acerca de nuestra visita a Sevilla. Hemos pasado varios días allí visitando la famosa catedral, la Gi- 6 ralda, magnífica torre morisca, y el Alcázar, antiguo palacio de los moros. V. sabrá⁴ sin duda que la ocupación de 8 esta parte de España por los moros duró más de seis siglos, y que aquí, como en todas partes, hay varios monumentos 10 moriscos. Veremos mañana uno de los más hermosos, la mezquita de Córdoba con sus mil columnas. 12

Yo desearía pasar más días aquí, pero no es posible e iremos a Granada el lunes, donde estaremos todo el otoño. 14

Granada will be very interesting to you¹ also. Without doubt, you have read the books of Washington Irving. I 8 read some of his descriptions of the Alhambra when I was in Granada. You should learn something of the gipsies (gita- 10 nos) of Granada while you are there, for their customs are very interesting. 12

If you will be in Granada all the autumn, I shall probably see you,¹ for I shall not be very busy, and it will be possible 14 for me² [to] travel.

Your good friend, 16
MANUEL HEREDIA.

(Lesson XIII)

VERBOS

(Verbs)

Modo Imperativo

(Imperative Mood)

141. The imperative is used in the second person singular and plural, and only in the affirmative. In the first and third persons in affirmative commands and in all persons in negative commands the present subjunctive is used (cf. § 386, 1).

142. The forms of the imperative mood of the three regular conjugations are:

	I	II	III
Singular, 2^a persona	habl-a	deb-e	viv-e
Plural, 2^a persona	habl-ad	deb-ed	viv-id

143. The second person singular of the imperative of regular verbs has the same form as the third person singular of the present indicative, and the plural of all imperatives is formed by changing the r of the infinitive to d.

144. Since the imperative is used only in the second person, it is found only where that mode of address is used and will therefore be little employed by a foreigner, who will use rather the third person of the present subjunctive with usted (ustedes) (cf. § 185).

145. Personal pronouns used as objects follow the imperative, or the present subjunctive used as an affirmative imperative, and are joined to it (cf. § 197). If the accent is thus thrown before the penult, it must be written (cf. § 20, 9).

Háblale	Speak to him	Dámelo	Give it to me
Escríbenoslo	Write it to us	Dígaselo	Tell him so

146. The second person plural of the imperative loses its final -d when os is attached, and the first person plural of the present subjunctive loses its final -s when nos is attached.

Levantadlo	Raise it	Escribamos	Let us write
Levantaos	Arise, get up	Escribámonos	Let us write to each other

147. The infinitive may be used with an imperative force.
¡Callar! Be quiet!

EJERCICIO XIII

(Exercise XIII)

GRANADA, 30 de agosto de 1912.

QUERIDO AMIGO:—No creas que te² he olvidado, pero desde 2 que llegué³ a ésta en el mes de julio he estado muy ocupado visitando los varios monumentos interesantes de la ciudad. 4

«Ver a Nápoles y morir,» dicen, pero mejor sería decir, «Ver a Granada y vivir.» Te aseguro que «quien⁴ no ha visto⁵ 6 Granada no ha visto nada,» como dicen aquí. Es una ciudad maravillosa que me gusta más cada día que paso en ella. 8

Naturalmente he visitado la tumba de Fernando e Isabel, que está en la catedral, y el Generalife, hermosa casa de 10 campo de los señores moros, y he pasado muchísimas⁶ horas en los patios y en las salas del famoso palacio de la Alhambra. 12

Ya sabrá V. sin duda que hay muchísimos⁶ gitanos en esta parte de España. Viven en pequeñas cuevas en el Albaicín, 14 barrio que está en una cuesta al otro lado del Darro. El otro día un amigo me dijo: «Vamos a ver bailar a las gitanas.» 16 Fuimos al Albaicín, y nunca olvidaré la impresión que me causaron aquellos bailes briosos. ¿No te atrae todo esto? 18 Pues no te quedes todo el verano en Madrid. Pasa al menos el mes de septiembre en esta hermosísima⁶ ciudad. Si te⁷ es 20 posible venir, escíbeme calle de X. 21, donde estaré hasta el invierno. 22

Tu⁸ buen amigo,

PEDRO VÉLEZ. 24

163. These subjunctive forms in all verbs, regular or irregular, may be derived readily from the third person plural of the preterit by changing -ron to -ra, -se, or -re. The first and second forms are generally interchangeable. The future subjunctive is rarely used. Cf. § 401.

164. The accent in the two forms of the imperfect subjunctive and in the future subjunctive falls on the first strong vowel of the ending in the three conjugations. It is written in the first person plural in all three tenses of the three conjugations.

165. Verbs of the second or third conjugation whose stem ends in a vowel change i to y in the endings of the imperfect and future subjunctive.

caer, pret. cayeron: subj. cayera, etc.; cayese, etc.; cayere, etc.

166. The subjunctive is used in dependent clauses very much as in French, though a little more commonly. It is most frequently found in noun clauses after verbs expressing will, emotion or doubt. For a fuller treatment of the subject, cf. §§ 391-397.

Las Horas del Día (The Hours of the Day)

169. The hour or time of day is expressed by the cardinal numbers preceded by the feminine article (to agree with hora, 'hour,' or horas, 'hours,' understood). Time after the hour is expressed by the number of minutes preceded by y, and time before, by the number of minutes preceded by menos, 'less.' The word for minutes is usually omitted. The verb 'to be' in expressions of time is ser, which is singular or plural according to the number of hours.

¿Qué hora es?

What time is it?

Es la una

It is one o'clock

Son las dos y veinte

It is twenty minutes past two

Son las once menos diez

It is ten minutes to eleven

170. There are two words in Spanish meaning 'half,' la mitad, a noun, and medio, -a, an adjective (cf. § 328). The feminine adjective, media, is always used for 'half' in speaking of the hour. 'To strike,' speaking of the hour, is dar.

a las tres y media
Está dando la media ¿Qué hora ha dado?

at half past three
It is striking the half-hour
What hour did it strike?

171. Other means of expressing time may be inferred from the following examples:

EJERCICIO XV

(Exercise XV)

La semana se compone de 7 días, el día de 24 horas, la hora de 60 minutos, y el minuto de 60 segundos. Antiguamente había muchísimas clases de relojes para indicar la hora del día, como relojes de arena, de agua, de sol, etcétera. Hoy día hay varias clases de cronómetros, pero entre todos el más usado es el reloj de bolsillo.

Aquí tenemos un reloj. Tiene, como partes principales, la máquina, la caja, la esfera y las manecillas. La más larga 8 de las manecillas se llama el minuterio, y la más corta, el horario. Hay algunos relojes que tienen otra manecilla pequeñita 10 para marcar los segundos. La posición de las manecillas indica la hora del día. El minuterio marca la hora cuando llega al 12 número doce, y se puede decir «son las tres,» «son las cinco,» etcétera, según el caso. Cuando llega al número tres 14 o al número nueve el minuterio, indica los cuartos de hora, y entonces se puede decir «son las dos y ^{cuarto} media,» o «son las 16 diez menos cuarto,» según el caso. El reloj marca las doce dos veces en el día, al mediodía y a media noche. Cuando 18 el reloj no está en hora¹ se dice que adelanta o atrasa, y entonces es preciso regularizarlo. 20

Las principales divisiones del día son la mañana, la tarde y la noche. Por la mañana y por la tarde se trabaja, y por la 22 noche se duerme.

EJERCICIO ORAL XV (Oral Exercise XV)

1. What time is it? 2. It is half past two; it is one o'clock; it is a quarter to four. 3. In the afternoon at two o'clock. 4. He had finished the last lesson at noon. 5. People do not work at night. 6. He had a watch which used to strike the hour.
7. What kind of timepiece generally strikes the hour? 8. I shall have my watch to-morrow. 9. He would have regulated the watch. 10. Formerly they had water² clocks. 11. We may have had the timepiece. 12. At a quarter to three he had begun to (a) work. 13. We sleep at night. 14. Would you have had so many windows in your house? 15. There are fifty in this building. 16. One (uno) ought to (~~de~~) take care when one is on the street at midnight. 17. A watch which is fast ought to (~~de~~) be regulated. 18. Many persons have watches which they had when they were children. 19. The points of the compass are north, south, east and west.

TEMA XV (Composition XV)

There have always been several kinds of timepieces. Formerly they had sand and water² timepieces, but now the watch 2

is without doubt the one which (el que) is the most used.

Here is a watch. It is composed of various parts, such (tales) as the works, the case, the face, the hands, etc. A watch generally has two hands, the minute-hand, which marks the minutes, and the hour-hand, which marks the hours. In some watches there is a very small hand, called (que se llama) the second-hand, which marks the seconds. The time of (the) day is indicated by the position of the hands. When the hour-hand and the minute-hand are at twelve, it is noon or midnight.

There are two principal divisions of the day, day and night.

5. ¿Cuántas veces en el día marca el reloj las doce? 6. ¿Cuáles son las partes principales de un reloj? 7. ¿Cuántas manecillas tiene un reloj? 8. ¿Qué posición tienen las manecillas cuando indican las ocho? ¿las ocho y veinte? ¿las ocho menos diez? 9. ¿Qué hora ha dado? 10. ¿Qué hora es? 11. ¿Qué es preciso hacer cuando adelanta o atrasa un reloj? 12. ¿Cuándo se duerme? ¿Cuándo se trabaja? 13. ¿Qué día de la semana es hoy? 14. ¿Cuáles son los puntos cardinales?

LECCIÓN XVI

(Lesson XVI)

USOS PARTICULARES DE LOS VERBOS HABER Y TENER

(Special uses of the Verbs haber and tener)

175. Haber de, as an independent verb, followed by an infinitive, expresses a probable futurity or a mild obligation.

He de escribir el ejercicio

I have the exercise to write

I have to write the exercise

Haber Usado Impersonalmente

(Haber Used Impersonally)

176. Haber is used impersonally in the sense of 'to be' in the infinitive, participles and in the third person singular.

1. In the sense of 'there is' or 'there are,' the form of the present indicative is hay. The conjugation is continued by the use of the regular third person singular of all other tenses.

habiendo personas en el cuarto	there being persons in the room
Hay un libro en la mesa	There is a book on the table
Había dos libros	There were two books
Habrà mucha gente	There will be many people

2. In the sense of 'it is,' applied to weather conditions, the present indicative is also hay, and the conjugation is continued by the use of the regular third person singular of all other tenses. In this sense haber may be used only when followed by a noun. The verb hacer is more commonly used when speaking of the weather.

Hay lodo, It is muddy	Hace buen tiempo, It is good weather
Hay luna, The moon is shining	Hace calor, It is warm
Hay neblina, It is foggy	Hace fresco, It is cool
Hay polvo, It is dusty	Hace frío, It is cold
Hay sol, It is sunny	Hace mal tiempo, It is bad weather
Hay viento, It is windy	Hace sol, It is sunny
	Hace (un) tiempo agradable, It is pleasant
	Hace viento, It is windy

177. Haber que, as an impersonal verb, followed by an infinitive, denotes necessity or obligation. The present indicative is hay que.

Para aprender hay que estudiar	One must study in order to learn
---------------------------------------	----------------------------------

178. Haber is also used impersonally in the sense of 'ago,' 'before.' Há (cf. § 20, 4, note 1), the present indicative, usually stands after a measure of time; other forms usually precede. The verb hacer is likewise used impersonally in the sense of 'ago,' and regularly precedes the measure of time. Verbal clauses introduced by que are frequently appended.

dos años há, or hace dos años	two years ago
Hace dos horas que llegó	He arrived two hours ago
Hacía tres años que habían llegado	They had arrived three years before

179. The principal use of tener is to indicate possession. It also indicates 'to be the matter (or trouble) with.'

Tengo un libro

I have a book

¿Qué tiene V.?

What is the matter with you?

Tengo un dolor de cabeza

I have a headache

180. Tener is used idiomatically in the sense of 'to be,' with certain nouns, as in French. (Learn)

tener hambre, to be hungry

tener celos, to be jealous

tener sed, to be thirsty

tener vergüenza, to be ashamed tener frío, to be cold

tener sueño, to be sleepy

tener calor, to be warm

tener miedo, to be afraid tener ganas, to be desirous, inclined,

tener razón, to be right feel like

no tener razón, to be wrong

181. Tener que, followed by an infinitive, expresses obligation. Moral obligation, however, is more commonly expressed by deber.

Tengo que escribir el ejercicio

I have to write the exercise

BUT: Debe V. escribirme todos los días

You must write me every day. (Cf. p. 19, footnote 1)

EJERCICIO XVI

(Exercise XVI)

El año está dividido en cuatro estaciones, que son la primavera, el verano, el otoño y el invierno. Entre todas las 2 estaciones la primavera es la más agradable, porque entonces no hace ni frío ni calor excesivos. Uno tiene ganas de pasearse y de ver los árboles adornados de verdes hojas, que brillan tanto cuando hace sol. 4 6

En el verano para evitar el calor hay que irse¹ al campo. Allí se puede gozar de las flores y de la hierba. Naturalmente hay muchas personas que tienen que quedarse en la ciudad, donde hace calor y donde a menudo hay polvo. Estas personas esperan con anhelo el otoño. En esta estación se hace la cosecha en el campo, y por todas partes las hojas pierden² su color verde y se ponen³ amarillas y rojas. Pronto principian a secarse y a caer. Hace muchísimo viento y algunas veces hay nieve. Seguramente es el invierno la estación más triste de todas. Entonces⁴ nos quedamos en casa al lado de la chimenea, y para evitar el fastidio leemos libros interesantes, y nos⁴ burlamos del frío que hace afuera. 8 10 12 14 16 18

EJERCICIO ORAL XVI

(Oral Exercise XVI)

1. I have to write the letter; I have the letter to write. 2. Two weeks ago. 3. There will be many people, if it is pleasant. 4. In winter it is often windy. 5. Sometimes there is snow. 6. One is often cold in the house, when it is cold weather outdoors. 7. What is the matter with the poor man? Is he hungry? 8. In (the) summer we are inclined to walk when it is good weather. 9. The little children await the winter with eagerness. 10. They enjoy the snow and the cold. 11. The youth was jealous, because the girl was walking with his brother. 12. When it is warm in a room, we are often sleepy. 13. One must stay by the side of the fireplace. 14. The trees are always more beautiful in the spring than (de lo que) they are in the winter. 15. The warmth (calor) of the spring has removed the snow. 16. He is thirsty, but there is no water.

² Pres. ind. of perder, 'to lose.'

³ ponerse, 'to become.' Note that the reflexive se often gives the verb a different shade of meaning (cf. § 213, 2). ⁴ Cf. § 213, 1.

TEMA XVI
(Composition XVI)

Of all the seasons of the year, spring and autumn are the best. Perhaps we like (nos gusta) the spring, because there has been a great transformation from the cold of (the) winter to the pleasant weather of this first season of the year. And autumn is also a relief after (depués de) the heat of (the) summer.

In summer, when it is hot, one must go to the country, if one desires to enjoy one's self. There, when it is pleasant, one can pass the day outdoors, and see the many pretty scenes which present themselves. The flowers and the trees with their green leaves help to (a) make one (a uno) more cheerful. But how different is the winter when it is cold and windy! Then nobody wishes [to] go out of the house more than (de lo que) is necessary. We are inclined to (de) pass the evenings by the side of the fireplace, and with an interesting book in our hands we laugh at the snow and the cold.

CONVERSACIÓN XVI

Dígame V. en español, I am hungry; he is cold; you are desirous; we are sleepy; they are wrong. 4. Dígame V. en español, a week ago. 5. ¿Cuál es el uso principal de tener? 6. ¿Qué significa tener que usado con un infinitivo?

7. ¿Cuáles son las estaciones del año? 8. ¿Cuál le gusta a V. más? 9. ¿Qué hace V. en el verano? 10. ¿Dónde se pueden ver las flores y la hierba? 11. ¿Qué personas esperan con anhelo el otoño? 12. ¿Cuándo se hace la cosecha? 13. ¿De qué colores son las hojas en el otoño? 14. ¿Por qué es el invierno una estación triste? 15. ¿Qué se puede hacer en el invierno para evitar el fastidio? 16. ¿Hace frío en el invierno en Madrid?

PRONOMBRES PERSONALES SUJETOS (Subjective Personal Pronouns)

182.	Singular		Plural yo	I	nosotros (-as)	we tú	thou	vosotros (-as)	you, ye él	he, it	ellos }	they ella	she, it	ellas }
	ello ¹	it
	usted	you	ustedes	you

183. The personal pronouns, except usted (-es), are usually omitted as subjects of verbs, unless required for emphasis or clearness (cf. § 57). They may precede or follow the verb. In questions they usually follow.

184. In compound subjects the pronouns are not omitted. With a compound subject the verb agrees in person and number as in English

Él y yo hablaremos

He and I shall speak

Tú y ella sois amigos

You and she are friends

usted y ella son

185. 'You' may be translated by tú, vosotros (-as), usted or ustedes, and the corresponding object pronouns (cf. §§ 191, 194).

The form tú is used to address a near relative, an intimate friend, a small child, an animal or an inanimate object. It also corresponds to the English 'thou,' used in poetic or sacred language. The plural is vosotros, which is also used sometimes by public speakers in addressing assemblies.

In all other cases usted (-es), which is practically the only form that a foreigner will have occasion to use, is employed.

¿Qué dices tú, Juanito?

What do you say, Jack?

Vosotros tendréis bombones

You shall have candy

Habla V. español muy bien

You speak Spanish very well

186. Nos and vos are sometimes used, instead of yo and tú, in royal proclamations, official documents or in representation of antiquated style. Vos is also used sometimes in translations from the English or French to represent the second person plural of those languages. It governs the second person plural of the verb, but is singular in idea.

¹ Used as subject pronoun commonly only in the phrase ello es que, 'the fact is.'

Nos, el rey, proclamamos . . .	I, the king, proclaim . . .
Por fin vos habéis venido	You have come at last

1. The definite article is employed before nouns used in apposition with the personal pronouns nosotros, vosotros or ustedes.

nosotros los americanos , we Americans vosotros los estudiantes , you students

187. All subject personal pronouns may be intensified by the addition of mismo (-a, -os, -as), 'self,' 'even.'

yo mismo (-a), I myself, or even I nosotros (-as) misimos (-as), we ourselves

188. Nouns may likewise be intensified by mismo, 'self,' 'even,' 'very,' 'same,' which may precede or follow. In the sense of 'same,' mismo precedes.

el rey mismo , the king himself, even the king, the very king el mismo rey , the same king

EJERCICIO XVII
(Exercise XVII)

Hoy (nosotros) hablaremos de la comida española. VV. saben sin duda que en España, como en América, se toman 2 tres comidas cada día. La primera se llama el desayuno. (Ella) es generalmente más sencilla que las otras dos. Consta 4 de chocolate o café con leche y pan. Se usa muy poco la mantequilla. Muchas veces el desayuno se sirve en la habita- 6 ción donde se duerme.

Don, Juan

v. les se, su

vv. les se, su

La comida del mediodía se llama almuerzo o comida, según 8 la costumbre de las familias, y la de la noche, cena o comida. El almuerzo se toma entre las once y la una, y (81) es natu- 10 ralmente una comida más importante que el desayuno.

Se pone la mesa en el comedor con mantel, servilletas, 12 platos, vasos, cuchillos, tenedores, cucharas y todo lo necesario, como en América. Para la comida del mediodía se 14 sirve primero una sopa, luego el cocido que consta de carne, garbanzos y patatas, luego una tortilla, o huevos fritos, o 16 pescado, después una ensalada, y por último el postre.

La cena consta más o menos de los mismos platos que el 18 almuerzo, pero generalmente no se toma ni sopa ni cocido.

EJERCICIO ORAL XVII (Oral Exercise XVII)

1. I am; I am here; I may be; I may be here. 2. He has been poor. 3. We were there; we used to be there. 4. I myself was in the dining-room. 5. The same things are used in Spain. 6. Even the supper is a little late to-day. 7. The fact is that he does not know the lesson. 8. You will be in Spain with your brother. 9. He and I shall remain in America. 10. We had the table in the dining-room. 11. These knives and forks are only used on Sundays. 12. The omelet would soon be on the table, he said. 13. You Spaniards do not use butter much. 14. These napkins have been on the table six times. 15. A breakfast of chocolate and bread is not much. 16. Spain is an interesting country. 17. A dinner in Spain consists of soup, meat, garbanzos, potatoes, fried eggs or fish, salad and dessert. 18. Supper is not generally a very important meal. 19. Sometimes breakfast is served in the bedroom. 20. We do not have this custom in America. 21. We men are not afraid.

TEMA XVII (Composition XVII)

Here in Spain, as in America, three meals are taken every day. The first meal of the day, which we call breakfast, is 2 generally not very substantial. It consists of bread with chocolate or coffee and (con) milk, and is sometimes served 4 in the room where we sleep. The lunch which we take at noon is always more substantial. It is served in the dining-room. On the table we find what is essential for the meal, knives, forks, spoons, glasses, plates, etc. Generally we begin this meal with a soup, then a boiled dish is served in which (en el que) are potatoes, garbanzos and meat, then fried eggs or an omelet or fish, and then dessert is served.

We Spaniards eat supper at a much later (more late) hour than you Americans (americanos), generally between eight and nine o'clock. The dishes for this meal are often the same as they are for the lunch.

CONVERSACIÓN XVII

(Conversation XVII)

1. ¿Cuáles son los pronombres personales que se usan como sujetos? 2. ¿En qué persona se pone el verbo con el sujeto usted? 3. ¿Cómo se dice en español, we Spaniards? 4. ¿Qué significa la palabra mismo? 5. ¿Cuántos verbos hay en español que significan to be? ¿Cuáles son?

6. ¿Cuántas comidas se toman en España cada día? 7. ¿Cuál es la primera? 8. ¿A qué hora se toma generalmente el almuerzo? 9. ¿Qué hay generalmente en la mesa del comedor? 10. ¿De qué consta el almuerzo? 11. ¿Cuándo se toma la cena? 12. ¿Cuándo se come el postre?

PRONOMBRES PERSONALES COMPLEMENTOS

(Objective Personal Pronouns)

191.

Con Verbos¹

(With Verbs)

Acusativo (Accusative)		Dativo (Dative)
		not used by Span. Singular
me	me	me	to me
te	thee, you	te	to thee, to you
(m.) le, lo	him, it, you	le	to him, to it, to you
(f.) la	her, it	le, (la)	to her
(n.) lo	it
(reflexive, m., f., and n.)
se	himself, herself, itself	se	to himself, to herself, to itself

Plural

nos	us	nos	to us
os	you	os	to you
(m.) (les), los	them, you	les	to them, to you
(f.) las	them	les, (las)	to them
(reflexive, m. and f.)
se	themselves	se	to themselves

192. In the third person masculine singular there are two forms for the direct object, the first of which (le) is used commonly for persons, and the second (lo) for things, although this distinction is not universally observed. In the third person masculine plural the use of the accusative les is condemned by the Spanish Academy. In the third person feminine, singular and plural, there are two forms for the indirect object, the first of which (le, les) is, by far, more commonly used and is the only form sanctioned by the Spanish Academy.

Me habló
Le (lo) he visto
Les permaneció enemigo

He spoke to me
I have seen him (it)
He remained their enemy

193. The forms la, las are frequently used in an indefinite sense with some such words understood as cosa, 'thing'; manera, 'way,' 'manner'; acción, 'deed'; treta, 'trick,' 'wile,' etc. Often they cannot be literally rendered in English.

Yo voy a pagársela
Yo sé como las gasta

I'll pay him back
I know how he acts; what his wiles are

194. Usted requires the verb to be in the third person and also requires the object pronoun representing it to be in the third person. The form a usted is generally appended.

¿Quién le envió a V. aquí?
¿Quién le dió a V. su libro?

Who sent you here?
Who gave you your book?

195. The neuter form lo is often used in the predicate to refer to an adjective, a noun taken in an indeterminate sense with an adjective value, or an entire phrase or statement. It may often be translated 'so' or 'too,' or not translated at all.

¿Son negros sus ojos? Lo son ¿Es usted madre? Lo soy Lo creo

Are his eyes black? They are
Are you a mother? I am
I think so

196. If, however, the preceding noun refers to a definite person, generally no pronoun is used.

¿Es V. la madre del poeta?
Sí, yo soy

Are you the poet's mother?
Yes, I am

197. The objective personal pronouns usually stand immediately before the verb, unless the verb be in the infinitive, present participle, affirmative imperative, or subjunctive used as an affirmative imperative. They follow these forms and are attached to them. In literary style, however, they sometimes stand after and are attached to other forms of the verb.

If by the addition of these enclitic forms the accent falls on any syllable preceding the penult, it must be written (cf. § 20, 9).

Te habló	He spoke to thee
Habláronme (literary style)	They spoke to me
hablándole, speaking to him (or her)	hablarles, to speak to them

198. When the personal pronouns are used with infinitives or present participles depending upon auxiliary verbs or verbs used with an auxiliary force, the pronouns may precede such verbs.

Hemos de escribirles	} We are to write to them
Les hemos de escribir
Estaban escuchándome	} They were listening to me
Me estaban escuchando

1. He sees us; we see him. 2. He spoke to him; we spoke to them. 3. I do not like him. 4. I was going to give (dar) him the box of matches, but I did not find him. 5. The guest gives him a cigar. 6. Who gives you the cigar? 7. Are you Spanish? — I am. 8. Is the bread white? — It is. 9. Permitting me [to] give him a piece of meat. 10. He had to give them the box of matches. 11. We were to write to them. 12. He introduced himself to the professor. 13. We used to see it every day. 14. I thank you (give you [the] thanks) for the match. 15. To himself; to herself; to themselves. 16. He presented the handkerchiefs to them (f.). 17. The guest had two tickets for the theater, and his host accompanied him that evening.

TEMA XVIII
(Composition XVIII)

Host. Won't you take a little of this meat? Here is a piece well done, if you like it. — Guest. Thank you. I prefer it so. — This gravy is excellent. Do you wish a little on your meat? — Yes, if you please. I like roast meat with gravy. — Will you allow me [to] give you some of these garbanzos and some potatoes? — Yes, certainly. Garbanzos are always delicious. — Will you be so kind as to pass me the bread? Thank you. — Did you intend going (inf.) to the theater this evening? — No. What is given this evening? — Vital Aza's El Afinador. If you wish to go, I have two tickets. — It would please me very much, I assure you. You are very good to (de) invite (invitar) me. Will you take something more? — No, I thank you. I have already eaten a great deal. The meal has been excellent. — Take one of these cigars which my uncle gave to me. There are matches in that little box. — Thank you. — Let us stroll until eight o'clock, then it will be time to (de) go to the theater. — Good.

(Lesson XIX)

PRONOMBRES PERSONALES COMPLEMENTOS

(Objective Personal Pronouns)

199. When two object pronouns are used with a verb, the direct object is generally of the third person. If the direct object is of the first or second person, the indirect object usually takes the prepositional form (cf. § 208), and is placed after the verb with a.

Me la presentó
Me presentó a ella

He introduced her to me
He introduced me to her

200. The direct object pronouns le, les, 'you,' are not often used with an indirect object, especially when the indirect object is a pronoun. To avoid ambiguity or awkwardness of expression, recourse is had to some other construction, usually the passive voice.

NOT: ¿Quién me le envió a V.?

BUT: ¿Por quién me fué V. enviado?

NOT: ¿Quién se le presentó a V. a él?

BUT: ¿Por quién le fué V. presentado?

Who sent you to me?

Who introduced you to him?

201. When a direct and indirect object pronoun are used with a verb, the indirect precedes the direct, but se precedes all other forms.

Muéstramelos, Show them to me

Nos lo mostraron, They showed it to us

~~Se~~ me parece, It seems to me

Se me parece (It seems to me)

202. If both object pronouns are of the third person, se is used for euphony instead of the indirect object le or les.

Se lo dió

He gave it to him (her, it, you [s. or pl.], them)

203. The ethical dative and dative of interest are much more commonly used in Spanish than in English. They frequently form a redundant construction, and should not be translated into English. These datives precede all other object pronouns, except se (cf. § 201).

Me lo mataron

They killed him (for me)

Te llevas mis plumas

You are taking my pens

Se me quitaron los sombreros

They took their hats off

Se lo comió

He ate it

NOTE. — After impersonal ser, a dative personal pronoun is often used to denote to whom the impersonal expression is to be applied.

Me es imposible salir ahora It is impossible for me to go out now

VERBOS

EJERCICIO XX

(Exercise XX)

Nuestro cuerpo tiene tres partes principales. Son la cabeza, el tronco y las extremidades. Las extremidades 2 superiores se llaman los brazos. Las partes principales de ellos son las manos, que terminan en dedos, la muñeca, el 4 codo y el hombro. Las extremidades inferiores se llaman las piernas. ~~Elas se~~ componen de los pies con sus dedos y 6

sus talones, de las rodillas y de las caderas que, como los hombros, forman también parte del tronco. 8

La parte principal de la cabeza es la cara. En ella están los ojos, que son los órganos de la vista, el sentido más 10 precioso de todos. En la cara están también la nariz, la boca con los labios, los dientes y la lengua, la barba, las mejillas 12 y las orejas.

Entre la cabaza y el tronco está el cuello. En el tronco, 14 entre el pecho y la espalda, están los principales órganos vitales, que son el corazón y los pulmones. 16

EJERCICIO ORAL XX (Oral Exercise XX)

1. Are those for me? 2. Yes, I presented them to you. 3. She writes to him; to her; to you. 4. We give it to her; to him; to them; to you. 5. He keeps it for himself. 6. I should like [to] talk with him. 7. Why do you not talk with me? 8. They wanted [to] give it to them. 9. The study of Spanish is easy for us. 10. I do not like beards. 11. That poor man has only one leg. 12. We have ten fingers and ten toes. 13. The vital organs are in the head and the trunk. 14. I wish [to] speak to him. 15. Speak to him, and tell me if he desires anything. 16. Some of the parts of one's head are the hair, the face, the ears, the nose, the mouth and the chin. 17. Many Spaniards wear beards.

TEMA XX (Composition XX)

The principal parts of the body are the trunk, the head, the arms and the legs. In the trunk are the heart and the 2 lungs, two important vital organs. In the head are the organs of four of the senses. The most important of them 4 is without doubt the sense of sight. The principal organs of (the) speech are the lips, the teeth and the tongue. 6

Other parts of the head are the hair, the ears, the nose, the cheeks and the chin. 8

In Spanish there is only one word for 'beard' and 'chin.' The toes (of the feet) are called the same as the fingers (of 10 the hand). Man has two shoulders, two hips, two elbows, two knees, two hands and two feet. 12

CONVERSACIÓN XX

LECCIÓN XXI
(Lesson XXI)

PRONOMBRES REFLEXIVOS
(Reflexive Pronouns)

213. The reflexive object pronouns are the same as the regular personal object pronouns in the first and second persons (cf. § 191). In the third person, masculine and feminine, singular and plural, the reflexive pronoun is se, when used with verbs, and sí when used with prepositions.

yo	me levanto	I rise
tú	te levantas	thou risest
él (ella, usted)	se levanta	he (she, you) rise(s)
nosotros	nos levantamos	we rise
vosotros	os levantáis	you rise
ellos (ellas, ustedes)	se levantan	they (you) rise

1. Many verbs are used reflexively in Spanish that are not so used in English. With such verbs the reflexive pronoun must not be translated. The following are a few of the more common ones: (Learn)

acordarse (de) , to remember	levantarse , to rise, get up acostarse , to go to bed, lie down	quedarse , to remain, stay alegrarse (de) , to rejoice (at), be glad (of)	quejarse (de) , to complain (of) aparecerse , to appear	reírse (de) , to laugh (at) atreverse , to dare, venture	sentarse , to sit down burlarse (de) , to laugh (at), make fun (of)

2. Some few Spanish verbs change their meaning when used reflexively.

dormir, to sleep
hacer, to make, do ir, to go llevar, to take poner, to place, put dormirse, to go to sleep hacerse (with predicate noun) to become irse, to go away llevarse, to take away ponerse (with predicate adjective) to become

214. The forms nos, os and se (pl.) may be used with reciprocal value.

nos queremos, we like each other se hablan, they talk to each other

NOTE. — The reciprocal force is sometimes brought out more clearly by the addition of some such phrase as el uno al otro, unos a otros, etc.

215. In English the reflexive pronouns have the same form as the intensive pronouns, 'myself,' etc. In Spanish, however, there are separate forms. The intensives are made by using mismo with the subject pronoun, with the prepositional forms, or with a noun (cf. §§ 187-188).

Yo mismo lo vi, I saw it myself Ella se viste a sí misma, She dresses herself
El rey mismo lo hace, The king himself does it

216. The reflexive se may be used with verbs in a passive sense.

Se venden libros
Se me habían dado cartas

Books are sold
Letters had been given to me, or I had been given letters

217. The reflexive se may be used with verbs to form an impersonal construction (similar to the French on, or the German man), and then the verb is employed in the singular. The verb in this construction is used actively and may govern a direct or indirect object.

Se habla de ella
Se le dió los libros

One speaks of her, or she is spoken of
They gave him the books

NOTE. — The third person plural of transitive verbs is also often used in Spanish in the sense of the French on or the German man, which require the verb in the singular. This is similar to the English usage.

Dicen que su padre ha muerto They say that his father has died

218. The impersonal reflexive is sometimes used with an indirect object pronoun which has the force of an ethical dative

Se le dio el libro a Juan. The notion here is that Juan is the person who is interested in the book.

and which in English is sometimes translated as the subject of an active verb.

Se me figura, I imagine

Se me olvida, I forget

VERBOS (Verbs)

219. hacer,¹ 'to make,' 'do.'

hacer, haciendo, hecho

INDICATIVO

Presente	hago, haces, hace, hacemos, hacéis, hacen

EJERCICIO XXI

(Exercise XXI)

Me acuesto¹ generalmente a las diez o a las diez y media de la noche, y me levanto a las seis de la mañana. Creo en el refrán que dice: «Al que madruga, Dios le ayuda.» Además, es mejor para la salud levantarse temprano. Después de levantarme, voy² al lavabo, donde tengo peines, cepillos, jabón, toallas para enjugarme y todo lo necesario para el aseo. Primero me lavo las manos y la cara, y me limpio los dientes. Termino de vestirme, y me afeito los cabellos. Entonces bajo al comedor, donde tomo el desayuno con mi familia. Después de despedirme de ella, voy al barbero para hacerme afeitar y para leer el periódico. Después estoy listo para el trabajo del día. Me quedo en el despacho trabajando hasta las doce. Tomo entonces el almuerzo. A las cuatro y media me paseo solo o con amigos, antes de volver a casa. Terminada la comida, voy al teatro o paso la noche en casa con la familia.

LECCIÓN XXII (Lesson XXII)

LAS PREPOSICIONES PARA Y POR (The Prepositions para and por)

220. In the use of para and por there is often doubt and confusion when they are employed to translate, under varying conditions, the same English prepositions, especially the preposition 'for.' In a broad sense, para indicates purpose, destination or qualification, and por indicates source, motive, acceptance or exchange.

unos zapatos hechos por el zapatero para el dentista

Comemos para vivir para la próxima vez

Habla muy bien español para un inglés

Lo hizo por miedo

Lo hice por mi madre

Me tomaron por español

Le di dinero para pan

Le di dinero por pan

some shoes made by the cobbler for the dentist

We eat to live for the next time

He speaks Spanish very well for an Englishman

He did it from fear

I did it for my mother

They took me for a Spaniard

I gave him money for bread (to buy bread)

I gave him money for bread (in ex- change for)

221. After estar, with a personal subject, para before an infinitive indicates action soon to take place, while por indicates merely inclination.

Estaba el hombre para salir
~~Estaba el hombre por salir~~

The man was on the point of going out
~~The man was disposed to go out~~

~~222. After estar, with a subject that is not personal, para before an infinitive indicates action soon to take place, but por indicates action yet to be carried out.~~

El libro está para terminar

The book is about finished

El libro está por terminar

The book is yet to be finished

223. The infinitive in Spanish is used after all prepositions where in English a present participle is used, ~~except the preposition en, which usually governs the present participle rather than the infinitive.~~ para viajar, for traveling sin hablar, without speaking

~~The~~ en hablar (~~or~~ ~~en~~ hablando), in (or while) speaking

223(1) ~~The present participle, with or without the preposition en, may be used to translate an English present participle, often introduced by 'on,' 'in,' 'while,' 'by,' etc.~~

(~~En~~) hablando con él aprendí la verdad

~~In~~ (by, while, etc.) speaking with him I learned the truth

223(2) The infinitive after al may be used to translate an English present participle introduced by 'on,' or a clause introduced by 'when,' 'as,' 'after,' etc.

al llegar a Córdoba on arriving (or when [after] we arrived) at Cordova

223(3) The only case in which the infinitive can be used to translate the present participle is when it is used to translate the present participle of a verb which is the subject of the sentence.

EJERCICIO XXII- (Exercise XXII)

Los principales materiales de construcción son la madera, la piedra, el hierro y el acero. Por medio del martillo y de la sierra el carpintero trabaja la madera para hacer mueblaje o para construir casas. Toda clase de construcciones de piedra, ladrillo, arena y cal se hacen por el albañil. El hierro y el acero, trabajados por el herrero, se usan para el esqueleto de los edificios grandes, para los vapores y para los puentes. El acero se emplea también para hacer artículos agudos y cortantes, como, por ejemplo, las agujas y los cuchillos. Hay algunos minerales, como el oro y la plata, que los joyeros convierten¹ en alhajas y artículos de lujo. El oro y la plata sirven también para la fabricación de relojes, de vajilla y de otros artículos de uso general.

EJERCICIO ORAL XXII (Oral Exercise XXII)

1. I may fall; I may seize; you may fall; you may seize; he may fall; he may seize; etc. 2. When he fell, he seized the hand of his friend. 3. Iron is used by ironworkers for the construction of bridges. 4. These jewels were manufactured by the jeweler. 5. Wood is much used as a material for construction. 6. In Spain there are not many houses of wood. 7. This building was constructed by two masons. 8. Without speaking to the youth, I saw (vi) that he was English. 9. The book which I have here is yet to be finished. 10. You are right, the book is about finished. 11. The mason was on the point of falling, when he seized the iron which was near him. 12. For the next time, we shall have Lesson xxiii. 13. On arriving at the chapel, I found my father there. 14. This, for example, is iron for that large building near the church.

TEMA XXII
(Composition XXII)

The construction of a large building is certainly a marvelous sight for those (los) who have never seen it. In the framework the great pieces of iron and steel are put in position by the ironworkers. Carpenters are busy on all sides (por todas partes), working with hammer and saw. The brick and stone for the walls and chimneys are laid by the masons. There are so-many things that are [being] done all at once that it does not seem possible that a building is gradually [being] formed. It is true that formerly there were many large edifices and monuments, but the people required much more time to (para) construct them than is necessary for us in the present century, when we have all the necessary materials and tools (herramientas).

ADVERBIOS

(Adverbs)

Formación

(Formation)

226. Adverbs with the termination -mente are derived from adjectives in the following manner:

1. Adjectives ending in -o add -mente to the feminine form.

claro, clear claramente, clearly

2. Adjectives that have the same form for both genders add -mente to the common form.

fácil, easy, fácilmente, easily pobre, poor, pobremente, poorly

227. Adjectives with a written accent retain this accent in the adverbs formed from them by the addition of -mente.

difícil, difficult, difícilmente, difficultly

hábil, clever, hábilmente, cleverly

228. When two or more adverbs in -mente are used together and connected by a conjunction, -mente is added to the last adjective only, but the preceding adjective stands in the feminine form.

clara y distintamente, clearly and distinctly

229. Adverbs in -mente expressing manner may be replaced by prepositional phrases in which an appropriate adjective is employed with the noun manera or modo, 'way,' 'manner,' or an appropriate noun, with the preposition con, 'with.'

correctamente	} correctly de una manera correcta de un modo correcto con corrección

230. Recientemente, 'recently,' is shortened to recién, when it precedes a past participle used adjectively.

el recién llegado, the newly arrived person los recién casados, the newly married (couple)

Construcción

(Position)

231. Adverbs of manner generally precede the adjectives and adverbs that they modify. They may precede or follow verbs. When they follow, they usually come immediately after the verb. Great freedom is allowed in the position of adverbs of time or place.

Ella es sumamente hermosa	She is exceedingly beautiful
muy bien	very well
Habla perfectamente el castellano	He speaks Spanish perfectly
Iré al teatro mañana	I shall go to the theater to-morrow

EJERCICIO XXIII

(Exercise XXIII)

El juego de pelota, muy popular en España, es sumamente antiguo. Era tan popular en la antigüedad que hasta se elevaron estatuas a los jugadores. Casi todos los españoles juegan¹ más o menos a la pelota, pero naturalmente los mejores jugadores son los de profesión. Éstos son generalmente vascongados, y tienen que ser hombres muy fuertes, con brazos y muñecas de hierro. El jugador lleva atada a la mano la cesta en la cual va la pelota que lanza contra el frontón con una fuerza extraordinaria.

Las reglas del juego no son muy difíciles, pero para jugar bien hay que estar alerta y emplear toda la maña y fuerza

Naturally for the Spanish bull-fights are more interesting than pelota, but if one should visit (imp. subj.) the famous ² frontón of Madrid at the time of an important pelota game, one would see there, at (the) least, four or five thousand persons, all, without doubt, admirers of this game, which has ⁴ always been so (tan) popular among the Basques. The ⁶ players themselves are almost always Basques, for they are the best pelota players of Spain. These professional players ⁸ often learn the game when they are very young. By playing a great deal, they possess not only the necessary strength ¹⁰ but (sino) also the skill which is needed perhaps more than great strength. The cleverness with which they catch and ¹²

LECCIÓN XXIV (Lesson XXIV)

COMPARATIVOS (Comparatives)

Comparativos de Desigualdad (Superioridad e Inferioridad) (Comparatives of Inequality [Superiority and Inferiority])

234. The comparative of superiority of adjectives and adverbs is formed by placing más, 'more,' and the comparative of inferiority, by placing menos, 'less,' before the positive.

más pobre, poorer

menos generalmente, less generally

235. The following four adjectives have, in addition to the regular, an irregular comparative, derived from the Latin:

bueno, good

mejor, better

malo, bad, poor

peor, worse

grande, large

mayor, larger, older, elder pequeño, small, little menor, smaller, younger

236. Mejor and peor are more commonly used than the regular forms, but mayor and menor are not often used, except in the sense of age or rank when referring to persons.

Este libro es mejor que el otro mi hermano mayor, my elder brother

This book is better than the other su hermana menor, his younger sister

237. The following four adverbs have likewise an irregular comparative:

mucho, much poco, little bien, well mal, ill, badly

más, more menos, less mejor, better
peor, worse

NOTE. — Más bien means 'rather.'

Es perezoso más bien que estúpido He is lazy rather than stupid

238. The word 'than' in the second member of a comparison of inequality is translated:

1. By que, when both members of the comparison possess the same quality, though in varying degree.

Él es más alto que yo He is taller than I

2. By de, before numerals or numerical expressions in affirmative sentences; and by de or que, preferably the latter, in negative sentences.

Él tiene más de cien libros
Él no tiene más que dos

He has more than one hundred books
He has no more than two

3. By de lo que, when the second member of the comparison contains a verb which could be followed in English by a repetition of the verb used in the first member.

Ella es mejor de lo que dicen She is better than they say (she is)

4. ~~NOTE. — But if the point of comparison is a noun appearing as object of the verb of the first member and omitted in the second, the neuter lo is replaced by the proper form of the article (el, la, los, las).~~

Él tiene más libros de los que hay en la biblioteca He has more books than there are (books) in the library

Comparativos de Igualdad (Comparatives of Equality)

239. In comparatives of equality, 'as . . . as' is rendered by tan . . . como.

Pedro es tan alto como Juan

Peter is as tall as John

240. 'As much . . . as,' 'as many . . . as,' are with intervening nouns rendered by tanto . . . cuanto, which agree with the nouns in gender and number. Como commonly replaces cuanto, and is invariable. Both of these comparatives may be summed up in the word cuanto used alone.

Él posee tanto dinero como (or cuanto) necesita	He has as much money as he needs
Él tiene tantas peras como (or cuan- tas) tengo yo	He has as many pears as I
Él tiene cuanto necesita	He has as much as he needs

241. The comparative expressions 'the more . . . the more,' 'the less . . . the less,' are rendered by cuanto más (menos) . . . tanto más (menos) or mientras más (menos) . . . más (menos).

Cuanto más se estudia tanto más se aprende	The more one studies the more one learns
Mientras más trabajo menos quedo satisfecho	The more I work the less satisfied I am

NOTE. — Tanto may sometimes be omitted.

EJERCICIO XXIV (Exercise XXIV)

El viajar en España no es tan fácil como en los Estados Unidos. En primer lugar los trenes son más lentos y mucho 2 menos cómodos. Salen a horas inoportunas, o muy tarde por¹ 4 la noche o muy temprano por la mañana, y llegan a su destino 4 a otras horas no menos incómodas.

Los coches están divididos en compartimientos que tienen, 6
cada uno, unos diez o doce asientos, puestos en dos filas a 8 través del coche, de modo que la mitad de los viajeros van de 8 espaldas. Hay tres clases de compartimientos. La primera 10 es la mejor para viajar con comodidad y evitar el malestar 10 lo más posible.

Cuanto más desea uno terminar su viaje, tanto más 12 espacio anda el tren, y cuando al fin y al cabo llega el viajero 12 a una ciudad, muy a menudo halla alojamiento en un hotel 14 muy malo, porque los hoteles, con algunas excepciones, no 14 son tan cómodos como los nuestros. Como 16

Pero, a pesar de tantas dificultades que tiene el viajar por 18
España, es éste un país muy interesante, que merece ser visto. 18

EJERCICIO ORAL XXIV (Oral Exercise XXIV)

1. Slow, slower; uncomfortable, more uncomfortable. 2.
Early, very early; generally, more generally. 3. My elder brother; my younger sister. 4. The trains are as slow as they are uncomfortable. 5. The trip lasted more than twenty hours. 6. I know that there are not more than thirteen travelers in the waiting room. 7. He has more than he deserves. 8. He has as much as he desires. 9. He knew that they always talk faster in Spain than in the United States. 10. They have brought as much as they possess. 11. These poor pupils are lazy rather than stupid. 12. These books are worse than the others. 13. The more one has the more one wants. 14. He speaks Spanish better than I. 15. The child knows how to read as well as his elder brother. 16. He will soon know that there are more difficulties than his friends say. 17. This lesson is more complete than the others.

TEMA XXIV (Composition XXIV)

In the United States the trains are more comfortable than in Spain, where they are usually very bad. They leave at very inconvenient hours, either late at night or extremely early in the morning. They go very slowly, and the traveler often arrives late at his destination.

The cars are divided into compartments, with two rows of seats arranged so that half of the travelers go backwards. There are three classes of compartments, but the first class is much more comfortable than the second or third. The more one desires [to] arrive at his destination, the more necessary it is [to] travel in first-class coaches, for often the trains with first-class coaches arrive first. Generally there are no second or third-class coaches on the best trains.

In spite of the uncomfortable trains and hotels, Spain is a very interesting country in which [to] travel and deserves [to] be seen.

6. ¿Qué tal es el viajar en España? 7. ¿Es cómodo el viajar en los Estados Unidos? 8. ¿Son buenos los hoteles españoles? 9. ¿Es España un país que merece ser visto? 10. ¿En cuántas clases están divididos los coches españoles? 11. ¿Cómo van la mitad de los viajeros en los compartimientos? 12. ¿Le gusta a V. viajar?

LECCIÓN XXV

(Lesson XXV)

SUPERLATIVO RELATIVO

(Relative Superlative)

243. The relative superlative is that form of the adjective or adverb which denotes the highest degree of the quality expressed, in relation to, or in comparison with, any lesser degree of the same.

With adjectives it is made by placing a definite article (or possessive adjective) before the comparative. When the superlative follows the noun, the article is not repeated. The article has the gender and number of the noun modified.

fácil, easy	más fácil, easier	el más fácil, easiest bueno, good	mejor, better	el mejor, best la lección fácil, the easy lesson	la lección más fácil, the easiest lesson

Note. - There is no distinction in form between the comparative with the definite article and the superlative.

1. The article is omitted before a predicate adjective in the superlative that represents the highest degree of a quality attributed to the subject without reference to other persons or things.

Es ahora que me parece más difícil. It is now that it seems to me most difficult.

2. When the superlative follows a noun that is in apposition with another noun, the article may be used before the superlative.

«Don Quijote» obra la más famosa de Cervantes. 'Don Quixote' the most famous work of Cervantes.

244. After a superlative adjective, the English preposition 'in' is usually rendered by de.

el más grande del mundo, the largest in the world

245. 'Most,' as used before a noun in English, is translated in Spanish by la mayor parte de. If the noun is plural, the verb is likewise plural.

la mayor parte de la crítica La mayor parte de los hombres pien-san así

most (of the) criticism
 Most men think thus

246. With adverbs the article is not used to form the superlative, though an article applying to a following substantive sometimes precedes. If necessary to distinguish a superlative from a comparative adverb recourse may be had to a circumlocution.

Él estudia más diligentemente la mejor vestida
Él lo hace mejor que yo, pero su

EJERCICIO XXV
 (Exercise XXV)

La vida de la familia española es muy diferente de la vida de la familia americana. En España las mujeres no tienen la misma libertad que las de los Estados Unidos. Generalmente no salen solas sino acompañadas de sus maridos o de algún otro miembro de la familia.

Sus diversiones más comunes consisten en pasear con sus familias por las calles o por los parques de la ciudad, en asistir al teatro y a las corridas de toros, y en tertulias en las casas de sus amigas más íntimas.

Las mujeres en España no reciben una instrucción tan completa como las mujeres americanas. Su conocimiento de la literatura y de las ciencias es generalmente de lo más 12 limitado, pero hay algunas que pueden compararse con las más instruidas de cualquier nación. 14

Las mujeres españolas son muy religiosas. Asisten a las varias misas de la iglesia, y observan con cuidado las más 16 importantes de las fiestas religiosas. Sin embargo, la mayor parte del tiempo se quedan en casa cuidando de sus niños. 18 Son muy buenas esposas y madres.

Los hombres tienen mucha más libertad que las mujeres. 20 Están fuera de casa la mayor parte del tiempo, y pasan muchas horas en el café hablando de política con sus amigos. 22 Ésta es su diversión más común.

The simple life is always the best. 15. It is not for you, but for me. 16. This church is the largest, but not the most beautiful in the world.

TEMA XXV

(Composition XXV)

The women of Spain do not have as much liberty as American women. They are obliged to remain at home most of 2 the time looking after their children. When they go out in the streets, they are generally accompanied by some member 4 of their family.

Spanish women are all very religious. They spend a great 6 deal of time in the churches. They always attend mass, and never fail to (~~ca~~^{de}) observe the most important religious 8 festivals. Their commonest diversions are attending (inf.) the theaters or the most important bull-fights, or passing 10 (inf.) the evening with their intimate friends. Generally (the) Spanish women are not so [well] educated as American 12 women. However, there are exceptions, as, for example, la Señora Doña¹ Emilia Pardo Bazán,² the most famous woman 14 of Spain to-day.

The men attend church very little. They spend most of 16 their time out of the house. They go to the cafés, and often pass hours talking of politics with their friends. 18

SUPERLATIVO ABSOLUTO

(Absolute Superlative)

249. The absolute superlative is that form of the adjective or adverb which denotes a high degree of the quality expressed, without relation to, or comparison with, any lesser degree of the same.

With adjectives it is formed by placing before them an ad-

² Emilia Pardo Bazán (born at La Coruña in Galicia in 1851) is perhaps the world's most distinguished contemporary authoress. Cf. p. 211, footnote 1.

verbial expression such as muy, 'very,' sumamente, 'extremely,' etc., or by adding to them the suffix -ísimo, -a, which is joined directly to a consonant, or takes the place of a final vowel or diphthong. A written accent occurring in the positive form of the adjective is dropped.

bueno, good fácil, easy limpio, clean frío, cold

muy bueno, very good facilísimo, very easy limpísimo, very clean frísimo, very cold

NOTE. — In colloquial style re, and sometimes rete, may be prefixed to adjectives or adverbs to give them intensity. Muy usually precedes this compound.

muy retebonito, very very pretty muy rebién, very well indeed

250. Before -ísimo the regular orthographic changes take place; c, g, and z become respectively qu, gu, and c, and accented ue and ie return to their respective original Latin vowels o and e when they lose the tonic accent.

rico, rich largo, long feliz, happy bueno, good cierto, certain riquísimo, very rich larguísimo, very long felicísimo, very happy bonísimo, very good certísimo, very certain

251. The ending -ble reverts to the Latin -bil, and some adjectives revert to the original Latin for the entire form.

amable, kind fiel, faithful sabio, wise

amabilísimo, very kind fidelísimo, very faithful sapientísimo, very wise

252. A few adjectives in -ro, -re, derived from Latin adjectives in -er, follow the Latin original, and form the absolute superlative in -érrimo. A written accent occurring in the positive form of the adjective is dropped.

mísero, wretched célebre, famous misérrimo, very wretched celebérrimo, very famous

253. With adverbs the absolute superlative is formed in the same way as with adjectives, or by placing the neuter article lo before a relative superlative adverb followed by any word or phrase expressing possibility.

bien, well
pronto, soon

muy bien, very well
prontísimo, very soon

lo más diligentemente posible, the most diligently (possible), as diligently as possible.

254. When an absolute superlative adverb is formed by the addition of -mente to the absolute superlative of an adjective, the adjective must be in the feminine. The written accent of -ísima is retained.

fácil, easy

facilísimo, very easy

fácilmente, easily

facilísimamente, most easily

Hay diez universidades en España, todas bajo la dirección del estado. La universidad de Salamanca, fundada a principios del siglo trece, es la más antigua de todas, y la de Madrid es la más grande. La universidad de Salamanca no es más que una sombra de lo que era antes, mientras que la universidad de Madrid tiene ahora cerca de 10,000 estudiantes. Esta celeberrima universidad, fundada originalmente por el cardenal Jiménez de Cisneros¹ en Alcalá de Henares² en el siglo diez y seis, se trasladó a Madrid en el año 1836. La universidad está dividida en cinco facultades. Para ser admitido en cualquiera de éstas, el estudiante sufre un examen de ingreso. Los cursos se presentan generalmente en forma de conferencias y de práctica en los laboratorios.

Los estudiantes de Madrid no se dedican a diversiones atléticas, pero se divierten³ muchísimo de su propia manera. Tienen su casino, asisten con frecuencia a los teatros o a las corridas de toros, y casi todas las tardes dan un paseo con

TEMA XXVI
(Composition XXVI)

The oldest university in (de) Spain is the University of Salamanca. It was founded in the thirteenth century, and 2 at that time (en aquel entonces) was one of the four most famous universities of Europe. But now the University of 4 Madrid, situated as it is in the principal city of Spain, has become the largest and the most important. It has a very 6 great number of excellent men in its faculty. It has nearly 10,000 students.

The work of the students is almost the same as that ⁸ of the students in the United States. After their work of 10 the day, the students often take a stroll in the parks and in the principal parts of the city. In the evening, they go to the 12 theater, and in general amuse themselves as do the students of the United States. They do not have very many athletic 14

PRONOMBRES Y ADJETIVOS RELATIVOS
(Relative Pronouns and Adjectives)

257. The forms of the relatives are:

Singular	Plural
que	que	who, whom, which, that quien	quienes	who, whom el cual	los cuales	} who, whom, which la cual	las cuales
el que	los que
la que	las que
lo cual		} which lo que
cuyo	cuyos	} whose, of which, whichever cuya	cuyas
cuanto	cuantos	} all that, as much as, as many as cuanta	cuantas

258. The relative pronoun is never omitted in Spanish as it sometimes is in English. It agrees with its antecedent in gender and number.

el lugar que me gusta, the place (that) I like la ciudad a la cual voy, the city to which I am going

259. Que is invariable, and when used as the subject or the object of a verb, may refer to persons or things. When used as the object of a preposition, it refers only to things.

Es un hombre que vale mucho

He is a man (who is) worth a great deal

Nueva York es una ciudad que conozco

New York is a city that I am acquainted with el libro de que hablan

the book of which they are speaking

260. Quien (quienes) refers only to persons or personified things, and is used principally after prepositions. When used as the subject or the object of a verb, quien either includes its antecedent or introduces a clause which supplements an antecedent clause otherwise complete in itself. In the latter case que may be used. 11

el muchacho con quien habló V.

the boy with whom you spoke

Soy yo quien lo hice

I am the one who did it

Quien más me gustó en la comedia fué la reina

The one I liked best in the play was the queen

Me quedo en casa para escribir a mi hermano Juan, quien (or que) está enfermo ahora

I am staying home to write to my brother John, who is at present ill whiter

261. Cual and que, preceded by el, la, los, las, refer to both persons and things as subjects or objects of a verb, or objects of a preposition. They are more definite than quien or que alone, and are used particularly in cases of ambiguity, when the relative might refer to any one of two or more nouns. If the nouns are of the same gender and number, el cual, etc., el que, etc., refer to the more remote antecedent. The forms el cual, etc., are more commonly applied to persons than el que, etc.

Yo la encontré en el mismo jardín en el que habíamos pasado tantas horas juntos

I met her in the same garden in which we had passed so many hours together

Vi a la señora del médico, la cual estaba enferma

I saw the wife of the doctor, who was ill

El cuarto de San Ignacio, el cual (el que) está en el tercer piso, es muy grande

The room of St. Ignatius, which is on the third floor, is very large 262. El cual (la cual, etc.) may also be used adjectively.

Trató de saltar el río, en el cual esfuerzo salió mal

He tried to jump the river, in which effort he failed

anyo

263. Lo cual and lo que refer only to a whole sentence, phrase or idea.

Hallé en la carta cien duros,	I found one hundred dollars in the { lo cual } me gustó mucho	letter, which pleased me very
{ lo que }	much

264. Cuyo (-a, -os, -as) is a possessive relative used only adjectively and referring to either persons or things. It agrees in gender and number with the thing possessed.

el hombre cuyas hijas están aquí, the man whose daughters are here

265. De quien (de quienes) is often used where one might expect cuyo, etc., and, in certain cases, as a dative of interest, a quien (a quienes) is used instead of the possessive relative adjective.

la mujer de quien me gusta tanto la voz (or la mujer cuya voz me gusta tanto), the woman whose voice I like so much el enfermo a quien amputaron el brazo, the patient whose arm was amputated

266. Cuanto (-a, -os, -as) is used both as a pronoun and as an adjective. It usually includes its antecedent.

Dije cuanto quise	I said all that I wished
De cuantas lenguas he estudiado, no	Of all the languages that I have puedo hablar ninguna	studied, I can't speak any

267. Quien and cual are sometimes repeated as correlatives, either in the singular or in the plural. In this construction they sometimes take the accent and sometimes do not.

Quién aconseja la retirada; quién,	Some advise retreat; others, to die
morir peleando	fighting
Todos, cuales más, cuales menos,	All, some more, some less, are to son culpables	blame

268. The adverbs donde and cuando are often used to replace a relative governed by a preposition. With donde the preposition is sometimes expressed.

La calle donde (or en donde, or en la que) vivo, es ancha	The street in which I live is wide
La hora del crepúsculo es cuando (or la en que) gozo más de la naturaleza	The twilight hour is when I enjoy nature most

Cuando estuve en Salamanca el año pasado, asistí a la apertura de cursos de la universidad, la cual tuvo lugar el 2 día primero de octubre. Al dar las doce en el reloj de la universidad, sonó la campana grande. Entonces principió 4 su marcha por los claustros de la universidad una procesión de notabilidades, en la que iban primero los bedeles en elegantes trajes de antaño. Seguían después los estudiantes que habían recibido premios. Detrás de ellos iban los doctores, cuyos trajes académicos, en los que el amarillo, el azul, el rojo y el blanco representaban cada cual su determinada 10 facultad, formaban un conjunto tan abigarrado como vistoso. Por último, iban el rector¹ y las notabilidades de la ciudad, 12 seguidos de los músicos.

Después de haber andado por los claustros, bajaron por la 14 famosa escalera, dieron media vuelta al patio y entraron en el Paraninfo, donde un catedrático leyó un discurso y el 16 rector repartió los diplomas. Terminada la ceremonia, el

TEMA XXVII
(Composition XXVII)

The opening of [the] courses in the University of Salamanca takes place the first of October. At the stroke of twelve by the university clock, a procession, which is formed in the cloisters, begins its march. The procession consists of beades, dressed in costumes of former times, students who have received prizes, doctors, city authorities and the president of the university. The colors of the academic gowns of the professors, which represent the different faculties of the university, form a very showy ensemble.

The procession goes half-way round the inner court, after having (inf.) descended the famous stairway, and enters a hall, in which a professor reads an address. After which, the president distributes the diplomas, and then declares the course open for that year. This ceremony, which is always

PRONOMBRES Y ADJETIVOS INTERROGATIVOS
(Interrogative Pronouns and Adjectives)

269. The interrogatives have forms like the relatives, but are distinguished by a written accent, whether in direct or indirect questions, and in the case of cuál by the omission of the article.

The forms of the interrogative pronouns and adjectives are:

qué, what? which? (pronoun and adjective)

quién, quiénes, who? (pronoun)

cuál, cuáles, which (one)? what (one)? (pronoun and adjective)

~~cuyo, -a, -os, -as, whose? (adjective)~~

cuánto, -a, -os, -as, how much? how many? (pronoun and adjective)

270. Qué is invariable in form, and is used both pronominally and adjectively. As an adjective it may precede nouns representing either persons or things; as a pronoun it is neuter.

¿Qué comedias ha visto V.?

What plays have you seen?

¿Qué quiere V.?

What do you wish?

Quiero saber qué ha sido de eso

I want to know what came of that

271. Qué is also used in exclamations. Before nouns, whether modified or not by qualifying adjectives, qué may be translated by 'what a (or an).' With an attributive adjective greater emphasis may be given by placing más or tan before the adjective, which in this case follows the noun. Before adverbs or predicate adjectives, whether the verb is expressed or understood, qué may be translated by 'how.'

¡Qué grosería!	What coarseness!
¡Qué lástima!	What a pity!
¡Qué bonita escena!	What a pretty scene!
¡Qué noche más (tan) hermosa!	What a fine night!
¡Qué bien te sienta esta vida!	How well this life agrees with you!
¡Qué gordo estás!	How fleshy you are!
¡Qué gracioso!	How funny!

272. Qué with tal forms an interrogative phrase used both adjectively and adverbially. It asks after the quality or condition of the person or thing, and should be distinguished from ¿cómo? which inquires regarding way, means, or manner. Sometimes tal is omitted.

¿Qué (tal) tiempo hace?	What kind of weather is it?
¿Qué tal? (a greeting very frequently used in Spain)	How goes it?
¿Qué tal se viaja en España?	How is traveling in Spain (comfortable or otherwise)?
¿Cómo se viaja en España?	How do you travel in Spain (by train, stage, or otherwise)?

BUT: There is little or no distinction in phrases asking after the health of a person, such as:

¿Qué tal está V.?	How are you?
¿Cómo está V.?

273. Quién (quiénes) is used only as pronoun and only of persons.

¿Quién habla?	Who is speaking?
¿A quiénes vió V.?	Whom did you see?

274. Cuál (cuáles), 'which,' 'which one,' refers to both persons and things, and is used as adjective and pronoun.

¿Cuál de los niños prefiere V.?	Which child do you prefer?
¿Cuál carta es la de V.?	Which is your letter?

275. Cuál as a pronoun seeks information about individual persons or things that have been specified actually or by implication; qué asks for a definition or information, without implying that the thing asked about has been previously mentioned.

- ¿Cuál está en la caja? Which one (of two or more things that have been mentioned) is in the box?
 ¿Qué está en la caja? What is in the box?

276. Cúyo (-a, -os, -as), 'whose?' refers only to persons. Like a possessive adjective, it agrees in gender and number with the thing possessed. It is little used, except where followed by the verb ser, and even then is commonly replaced by de quién, or in certain cases by a quién.

|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| ¿De cúya hija habla V.? | } Of whose daughter are you speaking? |
| ¿De la hija de quién habla V.? | |
| ¿Cúyos son estos libros? | } Whose books are these? |
| ¿De quién son estos libros? | |
| ¿A quién amputaron el brazo? | Whose arm did they amputate? |

277. Cuánto (-a, -os, -as), 'how much' (pl., 'how many'), agrees in gender and number with the word modified or for which it stands.

- | | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------|
| ¿Cuántos han venido? | How many have come? |
| ¿Cuánto tiempo quedará V.? | How long will you remain? |

278. Cuánto (-a, -os, -as) is also used in exclamations in the sense of 'how,' 'how much,' 'how many.' The shortened form cuán is used before adverbs or adjectives.

- | | |
|---------------------------|-----------------------|
| ¿Cuánto me gusta viajar! | How I like to travel! |
| ¿Cuántas vidas perdidas! | How many lives lost! |
| ¿Cuán dichosas son! | How happy they are! |
| ¿Cuán fácilmente aprende! | How easily he learns! |

EJERCICIO XXVIII
(Exercise XXVIII)

—¿Qué vamos a hacer esta tarde? Podemos dar un paseo, y le mostraré a V. algunos puntos de interés que hay en Madrid. — Con mucho gusto. — Atravesaremos primero la Puerta del Sol.¹ — ¡Qué animación! Parece que todo el mundo se reúne aquí. — Es verdad. La Puerta del Sol es el centro de la vida madrileña. — ¿Es ésta la calle de Alcalá por la que estamos entrando? — Sí, señor, y el Prado no está lejos. Principia en aquella plaza con la fuente, que se puede ver desde aquí. — Veo la plaza. ¿Cómo se llama? — Se llama la Plaza de Madrid. Ahora entramos en el Prado. — ¿Cuál es aquel monumento que está más allá en el Prado? — Es el monumento del Dos de Mayo, dedicado a los mártires de la libertad que murieron² el dos de mayo de 1808 en su esfuerzo de arrojar a los Franceses de la ciudad. — Ya me acuerdo³ de aquel hecho trágico. — Aquel edificio que está al lado de nosotros es el famoso Museo del Prado, uno de los mejores museos de Europa. Allí se pueden ver las principales obras de los más célebres pintores españoles, sobre todo las de Velázquez y de Murillo. — ¿Quiere V. que entremos⁴ en el museo? — A ver.⁵ ¿Qué hora es? ¡Caramba! Ya son las cuatro, la hora de cerrar. Tendremos que diferir nuestra visita hasta mañana.

EJERCICIO ORAL XXVIII

TEMA XXVIII
(Composition XXVIII)

How are you this evening? — Very well, thanks, in spite of [the fact] that I have had a very busy afternoon. — 2
Is that so? How did you pass the afternoon? — Well, first I went to the Puerta del Sol, in order to see that famous 4 center of Madrid life, and from there I walked along Alcalá Street. — What things of interest did you see? — I saw the 6 various buildings, but I did not enter any, because I wanted to go to the Prado. — Did you go there? — Yes, 8
sir. — It was so late when you went out that I did not believe you would have time to visit the Prado, too. You saw the 10
Plaza de Madrid, the Museo del Prado and the other important monuments in that part of the city? — Naturally. 12
I wished to see all that I could. — You must come to Madrid again when you have¹ more time to devote to our interesting 14 and famous museums.

CONVERSACIÓN XXVIII

1. ¿Cuáles son los pronombres interrogativos? 2. ¿Cuál es el interrogativo empleado sólo como pronombre? 3. ¿Cuándo se dice cuán en vez de cuánto? 4. ¿Hay alguna forma interrogativa que se emplea sólo como adjetivo? 5. ¿Qué significa qué tal? 6. ¿Qué clase de ejercicio tenemos para hoy? 7. ¿Le gustan a V. las lecciones de conversación?

8. ¿Qué es la Puerta del Sol? 9. ¿Por qué se llama esta plaza el centro de la vida madrileña? 10. ¿Cuáles son las cosas de interés que se ven paseándose por la calle de Alcalá y el Prado? 11. Dígame V. algo del monumento del Dos de Mayo. 12. ¿Por qué no se puede entrar en el Museo del Prado después de las cuatro?

LECCIÓN XXIX

(Lesson XXIX)

NEGACIÓN

(Negation)

Saber por 124

279. A sentence is usually made negative by placing no before the verb. In compound tenses no precedes the auxiliary.

No hablo español
Mi amigo no ha llegado

I don't speak Spanish
My friend has not arrived

280. If the verb is understood, no follows a personal pronoun, and may precede or follow other words.

yo no, not I no éste } éste no } not this one generalmente no, generally not no siempre, not always todavía no, not yet

281. After verbs of saying, thinking, etc., no, 'no' or 'not,' and sí, 'yes' or 'so,' are introduced by que, which is not to be translated.

Yo creo que no, I think not

Yo digo que sí, I say yes

282. When other negative words follow the verb, no is retained, but when they precede the verb, no is omitted. Such words are nada, 'nothing,' 'not anything'; nadie, 'nobody,' 'not any one'; ni, 'neither,' 'nor'; ninguno, 'no one,' 'none'; nunca,¹ 'never,' 'ever'; jamás,¹ (emphatic), 'never,' 'ever'; tampoco, 'not either.'

Es la mejor cosa que jamás haya visto

It is the best thing that I have ever seen

No hablo a nadie

I speak to no one

Nadie habla

No one is speaking

No lo haré jamás }

I will never do it

Jamás lo haré }

NOTE. — When no precedes the verb, certain words that have no negative force in themselves, such as 'cosa,' 'palabra,' etc., may follow the verb with negative force.

No hay cosa que me guste aquí

There is nothing that pleases me here

No ha dicho palabra

He hasn't said a word

283. Several such negatives may be used together, after the verb, when no precedes, or may be distributed at will, provided one, at least, precedes.

Él no habla nunca mal de nadie

He never speaks ill of any one

Nadie nunca habla mal de él tampoco

Nobody ever speaks ill of him either

¹ Both nunca and jamás have affirmative force with an affirmative verb.

284. In Spanish there are three words, pero, mas, sino, to translate the conjunction 'but.' The two former may be used interchangeably, although mas belongs rather to literary style. Sino is used only to introduce a positive idea in direct contrast to a preceding negative, and in this case the preceding verb is understood and not repeated. If there is a different verb in the second part of the negation, 'but' is translated by sino que.

Tengo un lápiz, pero no tengo una pluma	I have a pencil, but I haven't a pen
Lo cuenta así el historiador, mas no es verdad	The chronicler thus relates it, but it is not true
No bebe vino, sino agua	He is not drinking wine, but water
No deseo, sino que mando que V. salga	I don't desire but I command you to leave

285. Sino (~~si no~~) retaining its original value of 'if not,' and translated by 'but,' 'unless,' 'save,' 'except,' etc., is often used to present an alternative in questions expecting a negative answer.

¿A quién acudiré sino a mi amigo?	To whom shall I turn but (except, save, or if not) to my friend?
-----------------------------------	--

286. As an adverb 'but' is often translated by no . . . sino, and 'no . . . but' by no . . . más . . . que.

No habla sino raramente	He speaks but seldom
No tiene más hermanos que Juan	He has no brothers but John

VOCABULARIO XXIX (Vocabulary XXIX)

el estruendo, the noise, clamor.	vociferar, to vociferate, shout.
a fuerza de, prep. , by dint of.
el grito, the cry, shout.

EJERCICIO XXIX.
(Exercise XXIX)

«No ha visto animación bulliciosa en ciudades quien¹ no ha visto a nuestro Madrid en tarde de toros,» decía Emilio Castelar.² Efectivamente todas las calles están entonces animadísimas. La calle de Alcalá es un verdadero río de coches, de automóviles y de gente a pie, todos alargando el paso en su ansia de llegar a un mismo destino, la Plaza de Toros.³ A medida que se acerca uno a la entrada, el estruendo crece. Los vendedores de refrescos gritan, los cocheros vociferan chasqueando sus látigos, y a través de tantos obstáculos la muchedumbre penetra no sin dificultad. Tampoco es cosa fácil pasar por las estrechas entradas de la plaza, porque todos desean entrar a una vez. Pero nadie está de mal humor, y al fin y al cabo, a fuerza de empujones bondadosos, toda esta mar de gente se halla en la plaza, donde la animación llega a su colmo.

EJERCICIO ORAL XXIX
(Oral Exercise XXIX)

1. I never speak to any one about (de) anything. 2. The coachman has no whips but this [one]. 3. I do not snap the whip. 4. They think not. 5. He has never seen Madrid. 6. That bull-fight is the best I have ever seen. 7. To whom will he shout but to the noisy venders? 8. Neither the procession nor the bull-fight pleased him. 9. Nobody is in bad humor on the afternoon of a bull-fight. 10. He does not like the noise, but I like it. 11. I do not wish a coach, but an automobile. 12. Where shall I go but to the bull-fight? 13. All the men were mounted on beautiful horses. 14. We never can penetrate (through) this crowd. 15. Here we are at our destination, are

² Emilio Castelar (1832-1899) was an orator and writer. His Una Corrida de Toros gives an interesting view of the bull-fight from the Spanish standpoint.

³ La Plaza de Toros, where the bull-fights are held, lies to the east of the city.

we not? — I think so, sir. 16. The people in the Plaza cannot hear the cries of the coachmen. 17. Can you always answer in Spanish now?

TEMA XXIX
(Composition XXIX)

There are not many bull-fights which can be compared with those that take place in the famous Plaza de Toros in Madrid. They always attract great crowds, for on the day of a bull-fight nobody seems [to] think of (pensar en) anything else (otra cosa). The people all forget their work for a few hours, and enjoy the diversions which such a day offers.

There are never as many people on the streets of Madrid as on the afternoon of a bull-fight. Alcalá Street is an animated river of admirers of this pastime, all of them going to the Plaza de Toros. There is animation everywhere, but nothing can equal that which is seen at the entrance to the Plaza, where everybody in his eagerness makes great efforts to (para) enter at the same time. Finally, all are within the gates and in their seats, awaiting the beginning of that most typical (típico) Spanish pastime — the bull-fight.

CONVERSACIÓN XXIX

1. ¿Cómo se forma la negación en español? 2. ¿Se usa el no cuando hay otra palabra de negación delante del verbo? 3. ¿Cuáles son las tres palabras para traducir la conjunción but? 4. ¿Cómo se traduce el adverbio but? 5. ¿Cómo se dice en español: I think so?

6. ¿Cuándo hay animación bulliciosa en Madrid? 7. ¿A qué se parece la calle de Alcalá en tarde de toros? 8. ¿Cuándo crece el estruendo? 9. ¿Qué hacen los cocheros? 10. ¿Cómo se entra en la Plaza de Toros? 11. ¿Es fácil penetrar a través de tantos obstáculos? 12. ¿Hay mucha animación en la plaza? 13. ¿Qué significa la mar de gente? 14. ¿Le gustaría a V. ver una corrida de toros?

LECCIÓN XXX

(Lesson XXX)

ADVERBIOS

(Adverbs)

Usos Particulares

(Special Uses)

287. Adverbs are of two classes, those with the termination -mente (already described § 226), and those without special termination.

288. Of the latter class, the following have peculiarities in use that deserve particular attention:

aquí, acá, here (near the speaker)

allí, allá, there (distant from both speaker and person addressed)

ahí, there (near the person addressed)

aun (aún), still, yet, even mucho, much, very muy, much, very

289. Aquí and allí denote rest in a place; acá and allá, motion towards a place; ahí may denote either. These distinctions are not rigorously observed.

Está aquí, He is here (near me)

¡Ven acá! Come here! (to me)

Ahí está, There he is (near you)

Ahí va, There he goes (your way)

Allí está, There it is (over yonder)

Allá va, There he goes (over yonder)

290. ~~Aun is made dissyllabic when it follows the word that it modifies, and is written with an accent, aún.~~

No ha llegado aún (or todavía) }

Aún (or todavía) no ha llegado }

Nadie puede hacerlo aún con ayuda cuando aún no la había terminado

He has not yet arrived

No one, even with aid, can do it when as yet he had not finished it

291. Muy modifying adjectives and adverbs is translated 'very.' Before past participles it is translated 'much.' It is never used before a simple verb.

muy estudioso, very studious

Es muy usado, It is much used

muy bien, very well

292. Muy cannot stand alone as may 'very' in English. After a question or statement in which muy occurs, mucho is used to indicate acquiescence.

¿Habla muy bien el español? — Mucho

Él es muy trabajador. — Sí, mucho

Does he speak Spanish well? — Very

He is very industrious. — Yes, very

293. Mucho is used before comparatives of both adjectives and adverbs, and after past participles conjugated with haber.

Es mucho más ^{contento} que yo Lo ha escrito hoy mucho mejor
Ha estudiado mucho

He is much happier than I
He has written it much better to-day
He has studied a great deal

294. Mucho is rarely modified by muy. 'Very much' should be translated by muchísimo or by mucho alone.

¿Le gusta a V.? — Sí, mucho (or muchísimo) Do you like it? — Yes, very much

295. The adjective mucho (-a, -os, -as) is used before nouns in idiomatic expressions with tener (cf. § 180), to translate the English adverbs 'very,' 'very much.'

Tengo mucha hambre
Tenía mucho miedo

I am very hungry
He was very much afraid

la cuadrilla, the procession (of bull-fighters).	lleno, -a, full.
el chulo, the chulo (bull-fighter's assistant).	matar, to kill.
el despejo, the clearing (of the are- na), removal (of obstacles).	la muerte, the death.
engalanar, to adorn, deck.	la mula, the mule.
entusiasmado, -a, enthusiastic.	la música, the music, band.
el espada, the matador (he who slays the bull by a sword- thrust downward between the shoulders).	el picador, the picador (he who, on horseback, baits the bull with a long staff armed with a pointed iron tip).
figurarse, to imagine.	el raso, the satin.
	el sonido, the sound.
	trastear, to worry (excite the bull with a red flag or a sword).

EJERCICIO XXX (Exercise XXX)

Figúrese V. la Plaza de Toros llena de gente entusiasmada, esperando con anhelo el comienzo de la corrida. Todo es 2 animación, y se hace el despejo no sin dificultad. Pero al fin y al cabo suena¹ el clarín que anuncia la entrada de la 4 cuadrilla. Las puertas de la plaza se abren, y sale una vistosa procesión, compuesta² de alguaciles montados en caballos 6 briosos, de banderilleros en trajes de raso, de espadas con capas de varios colores vistosos, de picadores sobre sus jacos, 8 de chulos y de mulas engalanadas. El clarín suena otra vez, el toro sale furioso a la plaza, corre en varias direcciones, 10 acomete a los picadores y a los toreros que quedan en la plaza. La gente grita y vocifera. Llamado por aquí, atraído 12 por allá, la ira del toro va creciendo, y crece más aún cuando, después de otro sonido del clarín, los banderilleros le clavan 14 en la cerviz las banderillas de diversos colores. Vuelve³ a sonar el clarín, anunciando la hora de la muerte. El primer 16 espada se dirige hacia el toro, le trastea un rato, mostrando algunas veces una maña extraordinaria, y al fin lo mata entre 18 los gritos de aprobación de la gente. Suena la música, salen las mulas engalanadas, y se llevan al toro y a los caballos 20 muertos.⁴

² Past part. of componer.

³ Volver a+inf. means 'to (do something) again.'

⁴ Past part. of morir, 'to die.'

EJERCICIO ORAL XXX

(Oral Exercise XXX)

1. He is here. 2. She goes there. 3. There they are. 4. They are coming here. 5. Here and there. 6. He has not yet arrived. 7. He is still in Madrid. 8. Do you like bull-fights? — Very much. 9. Is the clothing brilliant? — Very. 10. These colors are much used this spring. 11. This place is much more adorned than that. 12. These horses are very hungry. 13. They will have seen this bull-fight, too. 14. I saw the bull fall. 15. We used to see picturesque processions there, even in winter. 16. I see that the banderilleros are [over] there with their banderillas. 17. The picadors have very old nags. 18. Do you see the bull-fighter? He holds his sword with very great skill. 19. The bull is attracted here and there by the capes of the bull-fighters.

TEMA XXX

(Composition XXX)

If one has never seen a bull-fight, one cannot imagine the great interest that it always creates. Even foreigners (ex-² tranjeros) generally attend at least one bull-fight, when they go to Spain. In the summer, the best place to (para) see⁴ bull-fights is San Sebastián,¹ for all the famous matadors are there at (en) that season. — — — — —⁶

A bull-fight is divided into three parts. In the first part, after the cuadrilla, the bull attacks the picadors, who await⁸ him on their horses, or rather nags. In the second part, the daring banderilleros fix the banderillas in the bull's neck.¹⁰ The third part begins when the matador arrives. The bull attacks him furiously, and it is only with the greatest skill¹² that the bull is finally killed.

LECCIÓN XXXI

(Lesson XXXI)

TÉRMINOS DE TRATAMIENTO

(Forms of Address)

297. There are in Spanish four ways of addressing a gentleman. The equivalent feminine forms are used to address a married lady.

Don (doña, f.) is used only before the Christian name; señor (señora, f.), before the family name. The two may be combined before the whole name or before the Christian name. Doña is rarely used before the Christian name of a young lady.

Señor Don Juan Valera

Señor Valera

Don Juan

Señor Don Juan

Don Juan Valera

Señora Doña Emilia Pardo Bazán

Señora Pardo Bazán

Doña Emilia

Señora Doña Emilia

298. Señorito, a diminutive form of señor, is applied to young men, and is seldom used except familiarly or by servants; but señorita, a diminutive form of señora applied to young ladies, is commonly used to translate the English 'Miss.' Señorita may precede the Christian name.

299. The terms señor and señora are often used in polite address before titles, or when speaking of another's relatives.

Buenos días, Señor Conde

¿Cómo está su señora esposa?

Good day, Count

How is your wife?

300. The definite article or the possessive adjective precedes all these terms when they are not used in direct address (cf. § 32, 7).

el señor Quintana, Mr. Quintana

la señorita Ojeda, Miss Ojeda

su señor padre, your father

la señora condesa, the countess

301. Caballero, though not used with the Christian or the family name, is frequently employed among equals as a term of address, and is less deferential than señor.

Buenos días, caballero

Good day, sir

302. It is the custom in Spain to use, in addition to the family name of the father, that of the mother. The mother's name follows that of the father, joined to it by the conjunction y. A lady upon marriage replaces the mother's name by that of her husband, preceded by de.

Señor Don Marcelino Menéndez y Pelayo

Señora Doña Antonia Andrés de Digón

Saludos y Despedidas

(Greetings and Leave-takings)

303. Note the following expressions of greeting or leave-taking:

¡Hola!	Hello!
¡Buenos días!	Good morning!
¡Buenas tardes!	Good afternoon!
¡Buenas noches!	Good evening (or good night)!
¿Cómo está usted?	How are you? How do you do?
Muy bien, gracias, ¿y usted?	Very well, thank you, and you?
Regular	Fairly well; so so
¿Qué tal?	How goes it? (familiar)
Me alegro de verle a V.	I am glad to see you
¡Adiós!	Good-by; (also as greeting) good day!
¡Abur! (or ¡Agur!) [coll.]	Good-by! Farewell!

Muy buenas noches, señora. — Buenas noches, Don Juan.
 ¡Cuánto me alegro de verle por aquí! ¿Cómo está V. ahora? 2
 — Mucho mejor, gracias, y tengo mucho gusto en poder asistir otra vez a su tertulia. — ¿Su señora madre no le ha 4 acompañado? — Se halla un poco indispuesta, y se ha decidido a no salir esta noche. — ¡Qué lástima! La vamos a echar 6 de menos. Permítame presentarle a la señora condesa de X.
 — Tantísimo gusto en conocer a V., condesa. Si no me equi- 8 voco, fuí presentado a su señor padre el año pasado en el Casino de San Sebastián. — Puede ser, señor. Efectiva- 10 mente mis padres veranean en San Sebastián casi todos los años. ¡Qué ciudad más alegre! Todo me gusta allí, las 12 diversiones del Casino, los baños de mar en la Concha y las excursiones por los Pirineos. — Sin hacer mención de los 14 toros. Uno no tiene el tiempo de aburrirse allí. — Tiene V. razón, señor. (Un criado anuncia que el coche de Don Juan 16 está a la puerta.) — Lo siento mucho, señoras, pero me es forzoso despedirme de VV. A los pies de V., condesa. — 18
 Beso a V. la mano. — Adiós, señora. — Adiós, Don Juan.
 Mil recuerdos a su señora madre. 20

LECCIÓN XXXII
(Lesson XXXII)

RÉGIMEN DIRECTO (O ACUSATIVO) CON A (Direct Object [or Accusative] with a)

306. In Spanish the preposition a has two distinct uses: (1) as a preposition, (2) as a sign of the direct object. In the latter use it has no prepositional force, and is not to be translated. As a sign of the direct object, a is used in the following cases:

1. When the direct object of the verb is a noun indicating a definite known person or persons. The distinction, however, is not always easily made, and exceptions sometimes occur.

Ví a mi hermano ayer

I saw my brother yesterday

Haga el favor de servir a María

Please serve Mary

Busco a un criado mío

I am looking for a servant of mine

BUT: Busco ~~un~~ criado

I am looking for a servant (no definite servant)

NOTE. — Sometimes, to avoid ambiguity, it is necessary to omit the a.

Recomendé el criado a mi madre

I recommended the servant to my mother

a. Certain verbs change their meaning according to whether or not a is used with the direct object.

Él enseña los perros al público

He shows the dogs to the public

Él enseña a los perros

He teaches dogs

Mi hermana quiere un criado japonés

My sister wishes a Japanese servant

Mi hermana quiere a un criado japonés

My sister loves a Japanese servant

Los bandidos robaron los niños

The bandits stole the children

Los bandidos robaron a los niños

The bandits robbed the children

2. When the direct object of the verb is a pronoun referring to persons. This includes a redundant use of the personal pronouns (cf. § 211).

La señora a la cual visité está enferma

The lady whom I visited is ill

¿A quién invita V.?

Whom are you inviting?

Le veo a V.

I see you

3. When the direct object of the verb is a noun indicating a higher animal or one regarded as intelligent or appreciative, or a personified thing.

El toro mató al caballo

The bull killed the horse

Ama mucho a su perro

He loves his dog very much

Persiguió al león

He pursued the lion

Ella acariciaba a sus gatos

She was petting her cats

Temían a la muerte

They feared Death

Las campanas aclaman a la victoria

The bells acclaim victory

4. To avoid ambiguity, when both the subject and object of the verb denote things.

Al terror sucedió la calma

Calm succeeded terror

Alcanzó el rápido al tren expreso

The flyer overtook the express-train

5. When the direct object of the verb is a geographical proper name, unless regularly preceded by the definite article.

Encontramos a Granada deliciosa Yo visité a España el año pasado
BUT: Quiero ver el Japón

We find Granada delightful
I visited Spain last year
I want to see Japan

EJERCICIO XXXII
(Exercise XXXII)

El que visita a Madrid por primera vez no debe dejar de asistir a algunas representaciones teatrales. Hay teatros de todos los géneros. Para el aficionado a la ópera, hay el Teatro Real. En él representan las mejores óperas de todos los países europeos, pero con más frecuencia las de la escuela italiana. Si uno tiene afición al drama, hay teatros, como el Teatro Español y el Teatro de la Comedia, donde se representan de vez en cuando las obras de Lope de Vega, de Calderón y otros autores clásicos, pero donde el repertorio consta generalmente de comedias por autores españoles modernos o de traducciones de dramas extranjeros. En aquellos teatros los papeles se representan por actores muy hábiles. Entre los más conocidos se puede mencionar a María Guerrero, la Bernhardt de España.

Para los que quieren divertirse con otra clase de representaciones, hay el Teatro de la Zarzuela, el Teatro de Lara y el Teatro de Apolo, donde se dan tres o cuatro funciones cada noche. Estas funciones, ~~que se llaman zarzuelas~~, son obras dramáticas y musicales en que alternativamente se declama y se canta. La entrada, siempre a un precio muy módico, se puede tomar para todas las funciones o para una sola.

EJERCICIO ORAL XXXII
(Oral Exercise XXXII)

1. I bring; I brought; we brought; they brought; they might bring; you may bring; bringing. 2. He gave Mr. X. several valuable books. 3. These actors have visited Madrid. 4. The Italian author left Spain two years ago. 5. The matador killed the bull. 6. The teacher has seventeen students. 7. Whom did they invite? 8. Did you see María Guerrero? 9. They called the doctor. 10. This lady wishes a servant. 11. This lady loves her servants. 12. Do not fail to (de) visit Madrid. 13. We left New York reluctantly. 14. Can you point out the president? 15. What kind of performances do they give in the Teatro Real?

TEMA XXXII
(Composition XXXII)

When I was in Madrid two months ago, I met an intimate friend of mine who was spending a week there for the first time. He wanted [to] see some of the theatrical performances, so we went to several theaters together. The first night, we attended a performance at the Teatro Real. The next evening, we saw María Guerrero at the Teatro Español in one of Calderón's famous plays, and the following night we had the pleasure of seeing (inf.) Enrique Borrás at the Teatro de la Comedia. Both (los dos) are excellent actors, and play their rôles exceedingly well. When we left the Teatro Español, it was about midnight, and we decided [to] see the last performance of the evening at the Teatro de Apolo, for a short musical comedy is always an agreeable diversion after a serious drama.

At the end (al fin) of his visit, my friend left Madrid reluctantly, for he had enjoyed himself to the utmost all the week.

308.

Números Cardinales

(Cardinal Numbers)

0	cero	15	quince	100	ciento (cien)
1	uno, -a	16	diez y seis	101	ciento y uno, etc.
2	dos	17	diez y siete	200	doscientos, -as
3	tres	18	diez y ocho	300	trescientos, -as
4	cuatro	19	diez y nueve	400	cuatrocientos, -as
5	cinco	20	veinte	500	quinientos, -as
6	seis	21	veinte y uno	600	seiscientos, -as
7	siete	22	veinte y dos, etc.	700	setecientos, -as
8	ocho	30	treinta	800	ochocientos, -as
9	nueve	40	cuarenta	900	novecientos, -as
10	diez	50	cincuenta	1000	mil
11	once	60	sesenta	2000	dos mil
12	doce	70	setenta	500,000	quinientos (-as) mil
13	trece	80	ochenta	1,000,000	un millón
14	catorce	90	noventa	1,000,000,000	un billón

309. The cardinal numbers, except uno and the compounds of ciento, are all invariable.

doce libros, twelve books

treinta y dos veces, thirty-two times

310. Uno (-a) agrees in gender with the noun it modifies and drops the final -o when standing immediately before a masculine singular (cf. § 64).

un plato, one plate

una mesa, one table

BUT: after the noun,

capítulo veinte y uno, chapter twenty-one página veinte y una, page twenty-one

311. When uno (-a) is preceded by another number, the -o is dropped before masculine nouns in the plural, but -a is retained before feminine nouns.

veinte y un años, twenty-one years doscientos un libros, two hundred and one books ciento y una veces, one hundred and one times las «mil y una noches», the 'thousand and one nights'

312. Diez y seis, diez y siete, etc., veinte y uno, veinte y dos, treinta y uno, etc., are often written as one word, dieciséis, diecisiete, diecinueve, veintiuno, veintidós, treinta y uno, cuarenta y dos, etc.

313. Ciento loses its final syllable when it precedes the word it modifies and is not followed by a smaller numeral. When followed by a smaller numeral, the full form, ciento, is used (cf. § 67). The multiples of ciento (doscientos, etc.) agree in gender and number with the nouns they qualify.

cien estudiantes, one hundred students cien mil votos, a hundred thousand votes cien bonitas flores, a hundred pretty flowers ciento ochenta páginas, one hundred and eighty pages doscientas personas, two hundred people quinientos árboles, five hundred trees

314. Compound numbers are formed the same in Spanish as in English, except that y, 'and,' comes only between the last two. Y is not used, unless the final one be less than ten, and immediately following the plural of hundreds, thousands, millions, etc., y is regularly omitted, even with numbers less than ten.

mil ochocientos ochenta y seis, eighteen hundred (and) eighty-six ciento doce, one hundred (and) twelve trescientos cuarenta y cuatro, three hundred (and) forty-four trescientos ocho, three hundred (and) eight

315. Above a thousand, one counts by thousands and hundreds, not by hundreds as in English.

mil ochocientos, eighteen hundred dos mil cuatrocientos, twenty-four hundred

316. With ciento (or cien) and mil the indefinite article is not used, unless to avoid ambiguity.

ciento veinticinco, one hundred twenty-five cien hombres, a hundred men mil cosas, a thousand things

BUT: trescientos un mil cuatro, 301,004
(because trescientos mil cuatro would be 300,004)

317. To ask a person's age, either of the following expressions may be used:

318. In telling a person's age, the verb tener is used, followed by the proper cardinal number before años.

Mi hermano tiene veinte y dos años My brother is twenty-two

NOTE. — For the way to tell time, cf. §§ 169-171.

la devoción, the devotion.	los Reyes (Magos), the Magi, Wise Men.
el Día de Difuntos, All Souls' Day.	la virgen, the virgin.

EJERCICIO XXXIII (Exercise XXXIII)

España es el país más católico del mundo, el país donde las fiestas de la iglesia se celebran con más devoción que en ningún otro. La principal de estas fiestas es la de Navidad que se celebra el 25 de diciembre. Siete días después de Navidad viene la fiesta de Año Nuevo, y 12 días después de Navidad, el 6 de enero, la de los Reyes o Epifanía, en la cual se celebra la adoración del Niño Jesús. Los Reyes son el Santa Claus de los niños españoles, y en esta fecha se les dan regalos.

La Cuaresma, que principia con el Miércoles de Ceniza y dura 40 días, termina con la fiesta de Pascua en conmemoración de la resurrección del Señor. Entre todas las fiestas religiosas de España, la que se observa con más lujo, con mayores procesiones y con más ceremonia es la de Corpus Christi, que viene el jueves 60 días después de la Pascua, y 20 días después del día de la Ascensión.

El 15 de agosto es la fiesta de la Asunción de la Virgen María, el 8 de septiembre es la de la Natividad de la Virgen. El 2 de noviembre es el Día de Difuntos. La gente va a los cementerios a poner coronas y flores en las tumbas. El 8 de diciembre se celebra la fiesta de la Inmaculada Concepción, fiesta instituida en 1854.

Two times (por) one are (son) two; two times two are four; two times three are six, etc. 6. It is a quarter past eight; half past nine; ten minutes to ten; six minutes past eleven; twelve o'clock; etc. 7. Washington was born (nació) the 22d of February, 1732, and died (murió) the 14th of December, 1799. 8. The two great holidays in the United States are the Fourth of July and Christmas. 9. Epiphany comes the 6th of January. 10. The birth of the Virgin Mary is celebrated on the 8th of September. 11. The year is composed of 365 days. 12. In New York there are more than 2,500,000 people.

TEMA XXXIII

(Composition XXXIII)

There are about 12 religious holidays, which are celebrated each year in Spain with great pomp. The first holiday of the year is Epiphany, which comes the 6th of January. On this day the Magi, who are the Santa Claus of the Spanish children, put presents in the children's shoes, which they leave on the balconies. The next holiday is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent. The 40 days of Lent end with Easter, [a] holiday which is often celebrated with processions, in which the various religious brotherhoods (hermandades) take part. Other holidays are Corpus Christi, 60 days after Easter, the feast of the Assumption, the 15th of August, and the Nativity of the Virgin, the 8th of September. Twenty-four days after the Nativity comes All Souls' Day. On the 8th of December the feast of the Immaculate Conception takes place. This holiday has been observed since 1854. The last and most celebrated religious holiday of the year is naturally Christmas, the day of the Lord's birth, which comes the 25th of December.

320. The ordinal numbers are used as adjectives, and agree in gender and number with the words they modify. In compound ordinals both parts agree. They usually follow, but may precede the noun. Cardinals used for ordinals always follow.

las primeras páginas, the first pages la lección veinte y tres, lesson twenty-three

NOTE. — Sexto and séptimo are generally pronounced and frequently written sesto and sétimo. Primo, tercio and nono are sometimes used in compound ordinals. For the apocopation of primero and tercero, cf. § 64.

321. The ordinals are very much less used in Spanish than in English.

In a numbered series, as with volumes, chapters, pages, paragraphs, centuries, etc., ordinals or cardinals may be used up to ten inclusive, but from there on, the cardinals are more common.

322. In naming popes, sovereigns, etc., the ordinals are used through décimo (sometimes undécimo), and from there on the cardinals are used.

Pío nono, Pius the Ninth

Alfonso undécimo, Alfonso the Eleventh

Felipe segundo, Philip the Second

Luis once, Louis the Eleventh

Carlos quinto, Charles the Fifth

Alfonso trece, Alfonso the Thirteenth

Alfonso décimo, el Sabio, Alfonso Tenth, the Wise

323. Excepting primero, the ordinals are always replaced by the cardinals in expressing dates.

EJERCICIO XXXIV
(Exercise XXXIV)

A fines del siglo XV, aparecieron en la literatura española el primer drama, la Celestina, y la primera novela de caballería, el Amadís de Gaula. Pocos años después, durante el reino de Carlos I (el emperador Carlos V), apareció también la novela picaresca, en que se pinta la vida del pícaro.

El drama y la novela han tenido un éxito notable en la literatura española y han guardado su supremacía hasta la actualidad. Estos dos géneros llegaron a su apogeo durante los reinos de Felipe III y de Felipe IV: la novela, en Don Quijote, la obra maestra de Cervantes, que dió fin a los libros de caballería poniéndolos en ridículo; y el drama, en las piezas teatrales de Lope de Vega y de Calderón de la Barca, nombres muy eminentes en la edad de oro de la literatura española. Tampoco en el siglo XX ha perdido España su superioridad en el drama y en la novela, como lo demuestran Echegaray, el principal autor dramático del día, y Galdós, 16 el maestro de la novela española moderna.

EJERCICIO ORAL XXXIV (Oral Exercise XXXIV)

1. This is the thirty fourth lesson. 2. The cardinal numbers are used much more in Spanish than the ordinal numbers. 3. I am worth; I may be worth; I shall be worth; I should be worth. 4. These will be worth more during the year 1925. 5. He is going to New York for the hundredth time. 6. Charles I of Spain was also the emperor Charles V. 7. The first of March will be here soon. 8. Sixth and seventh are written in (do) two different ways. 9. The Amadis de Gaula was the first great novel of chivalry. 10. There were many famous authors in Spain in the seventeenth century. 11. This is the eighth or ninth play that he has written. 12. The first part of Don Quijote, the masterpiece of Cervantes, appeared in 1605, and the second part, in 1615. 13. Lope de Vega wrote more than 1500 plays. 14. Two times (por) one are (son) two; two times (por) two are four; two times (por) three are six, etc. 15. Counting the first and the last, there are only ten.

TEMA XXXIV (Composition XXXIV)

In Spanish literature the novel and the drama have always held their supremacy since the Celestina appeared in the fifteenth century. The Golden Age in the seventeenth century, during the reigns of Philip III and Philip IV, was noteworthy for (por) its many authors in every branch of literature. The drama and the novel reached the height of their greatness at that epoch (en aquella época). Even at (en) the present time, these two branches have retained their superiority. Echegaray, a dramatic author, who is also a celebrated engineer, wrote his first play in 1874, when he was 42 years old, and since then he has devoted himself almost entirely to the theater. Galdós, besides his many other novels, has written a series of national episodes (Episodios Naciona- les), such as la Corte de Carlos IV, etc. He, too, has been ¹⁴ attracted by the theater from time to time, but his plays have never obtained the same success as his novels. ¹⁶

Números Quebrados (Fractions)

325. The fractions from thirds to tenths inclusive are formed as in English, i.e. the numerator is a cardinal and the denominator is an ordinal.

$\frac{1}{3}$ un tercio $\frac{2}{3}$ dos tercios $\frac{5}{7}$ cinco séptimos $\frac{1}{10}$ un décimo

326. From $\frac{1}{11}$, the numerator remains a cardinal, but the denominator is formed from the cardinal by adding the ending -avo. When -avo is joined to the word, a final -e or -a is sometimes dropped, and a preceding c becomes z.

$\frac{1}{11}$ un once-avo, or onzavo $\frac{2}{21}$ dos veintiun-avos
 $\frac{7}{15}$ siete quince-avos, or quinzavos $\frac{1}{100}$ un centavo

327. Fractions are also formed by using the ordinals with parte, 'part.'

$\frac{1}{4}$ la cuarta parte $\frac{2}{20}$ las dos vigésimas partes

328. 'Half,' 'a half,' 'one half,' 'half a,' may be expressed by la mitad, used substantively or by medio, -a, used either substantively or adjectively.

la mitad de los alumnos, half of the pupils (una) media hora, a half hour

EJERCICIO XXXV
(Exercise XXXV)

La unidad del dinero español es la peseta, pieza de plata que equivale poco más o menos a 20 cents, moneda de los Estados Unidos. Además de la peseta, las monedas corrientes de plata constan de las piezas de 50 céntimos, de 2 y de 5 pesetas, y las de cobre constan de las piezas de 1, de 2, de 5 y de 10 céntimos. Las piezas de 1 y de 2 céntimos, $\frac{1}{10}$ y $\frac{2}{10}$ de una peseta respectivamente, no se ven sino raramente. La moneda de 5 céntimos se llama popularmente «perro chico,» y la de 10 céntimos, «perro gordo» o «perro grande,» una alusión, sin duda, a los leones del escudo de España. El real, $\frac{1}{2}$ de una peseta, no existe como pieza distinta, pero es un término empleado para hacer cálculos en la venta al por menor. La peseta es $\frac{1}{5}$ del duro o peso. La moneda de oro casi ha desaparecido, pero el Banco de España ha puesto en circulación 14 billetes de valores que se extienden¹ de 25 a 1000 pesetas.

1. It is contained in; it was contained in; it shall be contained in; it may be contained in. 2. Fractions are not very difficult in Spanish. 3. A minute is the 60th part of an hour, and a second is $\frac{1}{60}$ of a minute. 4. A day is the 7th part of a week, and an hour is the 24th part of a day. 5. A peseta is $\frac{1}{5}$ of a dollar. 6. I have studied $\frac{1}{3}$ of the next lesson. 7. Here are a couple of Spanish coins. 8. I should like [to] buy $\frac{1}{2}$ dozen good cigars. 9. Some hundreds of persons attended the sale of those rare books. 10. $\frac{1}{7}$ is not contained in $\frac{1}{11}$. 11. I told him twice that there were thousands of marvelous things in the museum. 12. Some of the multiple numerals are single, double, eightfold, tenfold, a hundredfold. 13. A cent is contained five times in a real. 14. The real, $\frac{1}{4}$ of a peseta, is an old (antigua) Spanish coin, which is but rarely seen.

TEMA XXXV

(Composition XXXV)

When one is traveling in a foreign country, one ought [to] be well acquainted with the money of that country. In Spain 2 the system of reckoning resembles that of France (Francia). The peseta, $\frac{1}{5}$ of a dollar, is the unit. The real was formerly 4 a common silver coin which was worth about 5 cents of United States money. The term "real" is still used in ordinary 6 calculations. The small copper coins of 1 and 2 centimes, equal to $\frac{1}{5}$ and $\frac{2}{5}$ of a real respectively, are not used much 8 in every-day circulation. The pieces of 5 and 10 centimes are called "little dogs" and "big dogs," an allusion to the 10 lion on the tail of the coin. Instead of gold coin, the Spanish use bank notes, put in circulation by the Bank of Spain 12 at Madrid. These notes are of the value of 25, 50, 100, 500 and 1000 pesetas. 14

Cambios Ortográficos
(Orthographic Changes)

334. It is a rule in Spanish that the pronunciation which the verb-stem has in the infinitive must be kept throughout the conjugation. Since certain consonants change their pronunciation according to the vowel which they precede, certain orthographic changes are necessary to preserve the sound of the infinitive stem.

NOTE. — Verbs in -car, -gar, -guar, -zar, -cer, -cir, -ger, -gir, -guir and -quir, for example, must vary the spelling of the stem before certain endings (cf. § 6).

335. Words of the first conjugation ending in -car, -gar, -guar, -zar, change respectively c to qu, g to gu, gu to gü and z to c before an e of the ending. This change occurs

EJERCICIO XXXVI (Exercise XXXVI)

Ruy Díaz, el principal héroe nacional de España, nació en Bivar, cerca de Burgos, hacia el año 1040, y murió² en Valencia en 1099. Recibió el sobrenombre de «El Cid» por haber vencido en una batalla a cinco reyes moros. El Cid fué el defensor de su nación contra los moros, mantuvo la unidad de Castilla, y la defendió contra el reino enemigo de León. A veces, sin embargo, se opuso a los reyes de su propio país, pero los españoles de la Edad Media con su amor a la independencia admiraban la proeza personal del héroe, y celebraban sus hazañas en poesías y canciones.

No se puede averiguar con certeza la verdadera historia del Cid, que se ha confundido mucho con las narraciones de los poetas que tanto le glorificaban. La historia de su vida llegó a ser un tema favorito de los poetas de todos los siglos. Además de un gran número de canciones, existen en la literatura española el célebre Poema del Cid, la Crónica del Cid, y una tragedia por Guillén de Castro, Las Mocedades del Cid, que inspiró directamente el drama del Cid por el famoso autor dramático francés, Corneille.

TEMA XXXVI
(Composition XXXVI)

This year I am directing my attention (atención) to the study of Spanish history and literature. I began by reading several old chronicles which treat of the period between the eleventh and thirteenth centuries. I read several stories about the Cid, all of which I enjoyed very much. I am now very well acquainted with the Poema del Cid, which gives a good description of the many deeds of this great Spanish hero, but in all these narrations the true history of the Cid's life seems to be a little confused (confusa). After reading several other works of the Middle Ages, I began the study ¹⁰ of the literature of the Golden Age, but here the field is so large that one can only choose some of the more important ¹² works in each branch of literature. I am now devoting myself to the study of modern literature, which is, after all, the ¹⁴ most lively (vivo), and is a subject in which one can always interest one's self. 16

Cambios Ortográficos (Orthographic Changes)

339. The following peculiarities occur in verbs whose stem ends in a vowel:

1. Whenever an unaccented i of the ending would normally occur between two vowels, whether in regular or irregular verbs, it is changed to y.

creer, to believe: Inf. creer; Pres. Part., creyendo; Past. Part., creído; Pret. Ind., 3d Sing., creyó; 3d Plur., creyeron; Imp. Subj., creyera, etc.; Imp. Subj., creyese, etc.; Fut. Subj., creyere, etc.

NOTE. — With verbs ending in -guir and -quir, since the u is used merely to preserve the hard sound of the preceding consonant and is not considered a separate vowel, the i does not change to y.

distinguir, to distinguish: distinguir, distinguiendo, distinguido, distinguió, etc.

delinquir, to transgress: delinquir, delinquiendo, etc.

2. When an accented i of the ending immediately follows a strong vowel of the stem, the i receives a written accent, even where in ordinary conjugation no written accent is used.

Pret. of creer: creí, creíste, creyó, creímos, creísteis, creyeron.

Pres. Ind. of oír: oigo, oyes, oye, oímos, oís, oyen.

340. When the verb-stem ends in -ll- or -ñ-, an unaccented i in the ending disappears. This occurs in present participles, in the third person singular and plural of the preterit, in both forms of the imperfect subjunctive and in the future subjunctive.

bullir, to boil: Inf., bullir; Pres. Part., bullendo; Past Part., bullido; Pret. 3d Sing., bulló; 3d Plur., bulleron; Imp. Subj., bullera, etc.; Imp. Subj., bullese, etc.; Fut. Subj., bullere, etc.

341. Certain words in -iar and -uar take an accent on the i or the u throughout the singular and in the third person plural of the present indicative and of the present subjunctive, and in the singular of the imperative. Other verbs in -iar and -uar do not take the accent. It is only by practice that one can determine whether the accent falls on the i and the u or not.

EJERCICIO XXXVII

(Exercise XXXVII)

Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra, el famoso escritor español, nació en Alcalá de Henares en 1547, y murió en Madrid en 1616. Hijo de padres pobres pero nobles, recibió su educación en la Universidad de Alcalá. Principió a componer versos cuando muy joven, y en 1568 escribió unos sonetos dedicados a la difunta reina Isabel de Valois. En 1570, después de un año pasado en Italia, se embarcó como soldado en la armada que salió de Nápoles para combatir contra los turcos. Se distinguió en la célebre batalla de Lepanto, donde recibió una herida en el brazo izquierdo que le dejó manco. Después de la guerra, el buque, en que regresaba a España, fué atacado por unos piratas moriscos. Llevaron a Cervantes a Argel, donde quedó cinco años, hasta que su familia envió el dinero para pagar su rescate. Durante su cautiverio, Cervantes mostró su gusto literario escribiendo dramas que representaron los otros cautivos. Al llegar a su patria, continuó dedicándose a la literatura. Su primer libro, La Galatea, se publicó en 1584, cuatro años después de su regreso a España. Escribió varios cuentos que se publicaron bajo el nombre de Novelas Ejemplares ('Exemplary Novels'). Su obra principal, sin embargo, la que no dejará nunca morir su nombre, es Don Quijote de la Mancha, obra que terminó 22 un año antes de su muerte. Todo estudiante de literatura debe conocer este libro. 24

TEMA XXXVII
(Composition XXXVII)

Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra, the famous author of Don Quijote, was born in Alcalá de Henares, a little town near 2 Madrid, in 1547. He began to write poetry when very young, but he did not devote himself entirely to literature until many 4 years after. He was in Italy in 1570, when the Spanish and Italian fleets left Naples to fight against the Turks. He be- 6 came a soldier, and went with the fleets, distinguishing himself in the famous battle of Lepanto. After the war he was taken 8 by pirates to Algiers, where he believed he would not have to remain long, but his family was not able to send his 10 ransom until five years later. While in captivity, he used to write plays which the other captives performed. When he 12 returned to Spain, in 1580, he began to devote himself to literature, and four years later his first book was published. 14 His masterpiece, Don Quijote, appeared in two parts. The first part was published in 1605, and the second in 1615, the 16 year before his death.

VERBOS
(Verbs)

Verbos que cambian la Vocal de la Raíz

(Verbs that Change the Stem-Vowel — lit. 'Vowel of the Root')

342. Certain verbs of the first and second conjugation (verbs in -ar, -er), having an e or an o in the syllable nearest the infinitive ending, change this e to ie and the o to ue whenever the tonic accent falls on that syllable. They have their regular form when the tonic accent falls on any other syllable.

The e and o, therefore, change throughout the singular and in the third person plural of the present indicative and of the present subjunctive and in the singular of the imperative. All other forms are regular.

343. La Vocal de la Raíz: E. Primera Conjugación
(Stem-Vowel E. First Conjugation)

Sancho Panza, donde se descubren treinta o pocos más desaforados gigantes con quien pienso hacer batalla y quitarles a todos las vidas, con cuyos despojos comenzaremos a enriquecer. . . . ¿Qué gigantes? dijo Sancho Panza. Aquellos que allí ves, respondió su amo, de los brazos largos, que¹ los suelen tener algunos de casi dos leguas. . . . Y diciendo esto, dió de espuelas a su caballo Rocinante, sin atender a las voces que su escudero Sancho le daba, advirtiéndole² que sin duda alguna eran molinos de viento y no gigantes aquellos que iba a acometer. . . . Levantóse en esto un poco de viento, y las grandes aspas comenzaron a moverse, lo cual visto por don Quijote, dijo: Pues aunque mováis³ más brazos que los del gigante Briareo,⁴ me lo habéis de pagar. Y en diciendo esto, y encomendándose de todo corazón a su señora Dulcinea, arremetió a todo el galope de Rocinante, y embistió⁵ con el primer molino que estaba delante, y dándole una lanzada en el aspa, la volvió el viento con tanta furia, que hizo la lanza pedazos, llevándose tras sí al caballo y al caballero, que fué rodando muy maltrecho por el campo.»

TEMA XXXVIII
(Composition XXXVIII)

As soon as Don Quijote sees the windmills in the field which they are crossing, he says to his squire Sancho: "Fortune is guiding us to-day, for here are thirty giants whom I intend to attack." "I warn you," says Sancho, "that they are not giants but windmills. Can you not see their great wings?" "Those are arms, friend Sancho. Do you not know that giants are accustomed to have long arms like those?" And, in spite of all that Sancho says, Don Quijote puts the spurs to Rocinante, commends himself to his lady, and calls out that he will conquer the giants, although they have more arms than Briareus. The wind rises as he is about to attack the first mill, and the wings begin to move, breaking his lance in pieces. He and his horse roll over upon the field, and Sancho finds him very much hurt by the so-called (supuesto) giant.

VERBOS IRREGULARES DE LA TERCERA CONJUGACIÓN

(Irregular Verbs of the Third Conjugation)

351. Some verbs of the third conjugation, having an o or an e in the syllable nearest the infinitive ending, have these modified to ue and ie respectively, when accented, like verbs of the first and second conjugations already studied. In addition, when unaccented, o becomes u, and e becomes i, if the following syllable contains 'a vowel other than i alone. This latter change takes place in the present participle, first and second persons plural of the present subjunctive, in the third person singular and plural of the preterit, throughout the two forms of the imperfect subjunctive and in the future subjunctive.

352. dormir, 'to sleep.'

Presente de Subjuntivo adquiera, adquieras, adquiera, adquiramos, adquiráis, adquieran

Imperativo adquiere, adquid

All other forms are regular, for the stem has i where verbs like sentir change the stem-vowel e to i.

356. Some verbs of the third conjugation, having an e in the syllable nearest the infinitive ending, change the e to i when accented (i.e. throughout the singular and in the third person plural of the present indicative and subjunctive and in the singular of the imperative); also, when unaccented, the e changes to i, if the next syllable contains a vowel other than i alone. This latter change will occur in the present participle, the first and second persons plural of the present subjunctive, in the third person singular and plural of the preterit, throughout both the forms of the imperfect subjunctive and in the future subjunctive.

(Exercise XXXIX)

Trozo de «La Familia de Alvareda» por Fernán Caballero¹

«Siguiendo la curva que forman las viejas murallas de Sevilla, ciñéndola cual faja de piedra, al dejar a la derecha el río y las Delicias,² se encuentra la puerta de San Fernando.

Desde esta puerta se extiende en línea recta sobre la llanura hasta la base del cerro llamado Buena Vista, un camino, que pasa sobre un puente de piedra el riachuelo³ Tagarete, y sube la cuesta bastante pendiente del cerro. . . .

Después de subida la altura, el camino la vuelve a bajar por el lado opuesto, y llega a un vallecito por el cual pasa un arroyuelo.³ . . .

Después de vadearlo, el camino sonríe a su derecha a una alegre y hospitalaria ventecilla, y saluda a su izquierda a un castillo moruno, que se asienta altivo sobre una eminencia, pues no parece sino que el suelo se ha alzado para formarle su pedestal.

Este castillo fué dado por Don Pedro de Castilla a su bella y célebre querida Doña María de Padilla cuyo nombre conserva.»

¹ Cecilia Böhl von Faber (Arrom), better known by her pen-name Fernán Caballero, was born at Morges, on Lake Geneva, Switzerland, December 25, 1796, and died at Seville, April 7, 1877. Her father was German Consul at Seville, and her mother, a Spanish lady. She is famous among the nineteenth century authors of Spain as the first to rehabilitate the Spanish novel of manners. In 1849 appeared La Gaviota, 'The Seagull,' which, though from the pen of a woman who was half a foreigner, is genuinely Spanish in inspiration, a true product of the soil. Her works are characterized by their local color, their national spirit and their high moral aim. Indeed, their artistic perfection is not infrequently marred by excess of moralizing.

La Familia de Alvareda was her first novel, though it was not published until many years after it was written. The scene is laid in Andalusia, and the story is of certain tragic incidents which are said to have happened near Seville. It is doubtless her best known work.

Fernán Caballero wrote also: Clemencia, 'Clemency'; El Último Consuelo, 'The Last Consolation'; La Noche de Navidad, 'Christmas Night'; Un Servilón y un Liberalito, 'An Absolutist and a Liberal'; and many other novels that seem somewhat antiquated in style to-day.

² las Delicias, a popular promenade in Seville.

³ riachuelo and arroyuelo are diminutives of río (river) and arroyo (stream), and mean 'brook' or 'creek.'

EJERCICIO ORAL XXXIX (Oral Exercise XXXIX)

1. I die; he dies; we die; they die. 2. I smile; we smile; they smile. 3. I am returning; we are returning; ~~that we may return~~; that you may return. 4. We are surrounding; they are surrounding; ~~that we may surround~~; ~~that you may surround~~. 5. He slept in the little roadside inn. 6. She laughed when I told her the story. 7. A large wall surrounded the castle. 8. Fernán Caballero died in the year 1877. 9. All the children laugh when the teacher smiles. 10. When I ask for money, my father does not always give it to me. 11. The student soon acquires some knowledge of a foreign language. 12. Sleep, little [one], sleep. 13. The road descends again on the other side of the hill. 14. I warn him every day. 15. They always follow that bull-fighter. 16. He dressed himself, and went out before breakfast.

TEMA XXXIX (Composition XXXIX)

Fernán Caballero is one of the most famous authors and perhaps the best novelist of the first part of the nineteenth century. Her novels are truly Spanish, and in them she has wished to give a true description of the society, customs and language of the people, especially the people of the south of Spain whom she loved so much.

The selection from La Familia de Alameda is a simple and interesting description, and one feels that it is full of local color (color local). It represents a road near Seville. We follow the road which extends in a straight line to Buena Vista hill, passes over little streams, ascends other hills and descends them again, until it finally smiles on (a) a Moorish castle.

360. Verbs ending in -uir of which the u is pronounced (not those in -guir or -quir) insert a y after the u when accented, or when there is an a or an o in the following syllable. Moreover, the i of the endings ie and ió changes to y, because an unaccented i may not stand between two vowels (cf. § 9).

Trozo de «El Sombrero de Tres Picos» por Pedro A. de Alarcón¹

«¡Imposible que haya² habido . . . molinero mejor peinado, mejor vestido, más regalado en la mesa, rodeado de más² comodidades en su casa, que el tío Lucas! . . . Contribuía

¹ Pedro Antonio de Alarcón (born in Guadix, in the province of Granada, March 10, 1833; died in Madrid, July 18, 1891) is celebrated in the history of the modern Spanish novel chiefly as author of the work from which the above selection is taken and of another comparatively short story entitled El Capitán Veneno, 'Captain Poison.' Both of these works are novelettes of manners, and in this genre Alarcón is unsurpassed. His works of travel have also won him praise, as have some of his short stories. His longer novels: El Escándalo, 'The Scandal'; La Pródiga, 'The Prodigal'; El Final de Norma, 'The Finale of Norma'; and El Niño de la Bola, 'The Child with the Globe'; while interesting, are frequently marred by moralizings, melodramatic effects, and intemperance of language.

El Sombrero de Tres Picos, 'The Cocked Hat,' while inspired by an early tale, to which Alarcón acknowledges his indebtedness, is nevertheless original in treatment and thoroughly Spanish in character. The story is filled with Andalusian atmosphere and is told with perfect charm of manner. The scene is an old mill; the chief characters, el tío Lucas and his devoted wife, la seña Frasquita; the plot, an ineffectual attempt on the part of the Corregidor, or 'Mayor,' to win away the affection of the faithful Frasquita.

TEMA XL
(Composition XL)

Pedro Antonio de Alarcón has written many kinds of novels, but his best are without doubt to be found among those that are of a truly Spanish inspiration (inspiración). The most famous of these is El Sombrero de Tres Picos, a description of rural (rural) customs. The selection of to-day presents an excellent example of his style (estilo). The use of repetition in all this selection contributes greatly to the spirit and animation of the story. The many aptitudes (aptitudes) of the marvelous couple (pareja) are told in a very interesting and amusing way. Tío Lucas, who is carpenter, mason, blacksmith, or engineer, as the case requires, who constructs aqueducts, and who can teach a parrot to hold up its head and tell the hour by means of a sun dial, is no cleverer than his pretty wife, who can sew, sweep, wash, iron, sing, dance, play the guitar and do a thousand other things.

LECCIÓN XLI

(Lesson XLI)

PARTICIPIOS PASIVOS IRREGULARES

(Irregular Past Participles)

364. Past participles that do not end in -ado or -ido are irregular.

365. The following regular verbs and their compounds have irregular past participles:

abrir, to open	ABIERTO absorber, to absorb	ABSORTO
cubrir, to cover	CUBIERTO
escribir, ¹ to write	ESCRITO
imprimir, to print	IMPRESO

366. There are some verbs, otherwise regular, that have two forms in the past participle, one regular and the other irregular.

prender, to seize, take, catch, arrest	prendido	PRESO
proveer, to provide	proveído	PROVISTO
romper, to break	rompido	ROTO
freír, to fry	freído	FRITO

367. In the sense of 'take,' preso is usually employed adjectively and prendido as the real past participle. In the sense of 'arrest,' preso may be used participially, but is falling into disuse and is commonly regarded as an adjective.

El fuego ha prendido en la casa los dos ladrones presos

The fire broke out in the house the two arrested robbers

NOTE. — The compounds of prender, such as aprender, 'to learn,' comprender, 'to understand,' and emprender, 'to undertake,' have regular past participles.

368. The regular past participle proveído is commonly used to form the compound tenses, although provisto may be so employed. The latter is used adjectively.

Ha proveído todo lo necesario las cosas provistas

He has provided everything necessary the things provided

369. Rompido is used when the verb is intransitive, but roto in all other cases.

Ha rompido con su tío
Ha roto el vaso

He has broken with his uncle
He has broken the glass

¹ Inscribir, 'to inscribe,' and proscribir, 'to proscribe,' have also the forms inscripto and proscripto.

NOTE.—Compounds of romper are conjugated with the regular past participle.

corromper, to corrupt: corrompido

370. Freído or frito may be used in compound tenses with haber, but as an adjective only frito is used.

Han freído (or frito) las patatas patatas fritas

They have fried the potatoes fried potatoes

371. There are a number of other verbs that have two past participles, but the regular form has come to be used verbally and the irregular form adjectively. The following verbs will serve as examples:

bendecir, to bless confundir, to confuse corregir, to correct extender, to extend fijar, to fix, notice, observe oprimir, to oppress suprimir, to suppress bendecido confundido corregido extendido fijado oprimido suprimido

BENDITO
CONFUSO
CORRECTO
EXTENSO
FIJO
SUPRESO

372. There are also some irregular verbs with irregular past participles, several of which have already been studied, but which will be grouped here for convenience.

decir (§ 247), DICHO
hacer (§ 219), HECHO
morir (§ 353), MUERTO
poner (§ 233), PUESTO

solver (§§ 346, 374), SUELTO
ver (§ 296), VISTO
volver (§ 346), VUELTO and their compounds

373. Muerto, meaning 'killed,' is used in an active sense instead of matado (pp. of matar) when referring to persons, but not animals. When intransitive it means 'died.'

Han muerto al soldado
Mi amigo se ha muerto
Han matado al toro

They killed the soldier
My friend has died
They have killed the bull

374. Solver, 'to solve,' 'loosen,' is not much used, except in compounds: resolver, 'to resolve'; absolver, 'to absolve'; etc. The past participle suelto is irregular, and is often used adjectively.

Trozo de «Pepita Jiménez» por Juan Valera¹

¹ Juan Valera y Alcalá Galiano (born in Cabra, near Cordova, October 18, 1824; died, April 18, 1905) was the purest stylist among the recent Spanish novelists. Whether his long diplomatic career ("He had been legation secretary in many capital cities the world over, and minister plenipotentiary at important posts, among them Lisbon [1881], Washington [1885], and Brussels [1886], and ambassador to Austria [1893]") had fostered a tendency toward careful utterance and sobriety of expression, or not, certain it is that in no other Spanish writer of the day can be found the polish of phrase that characterizes everywhere the writings of Valera, and gives to them an eighteenth century flavor, enjoyed particularly by the literary élite. He was not a prolific writer like Galdós, nor is he enjoyed by so large a public. His "elusive and mystic idealism" is not suited to the taste of the masses.

Pepita Jiménez, his masterpiece, is a philosophical novel, and in it the author attempts to prove that a youth should be given complete freedom in the choice of his vocation, and that a priest "is born and not made." The first half of the story is told by way of letters from a nephew, destined for the priesthood, to his uncle, an ecclesiastic who had had charge of his religious education. The above selection is a portion of one of these letters.

Two other novels of Juan Valera, Doña Luz and El Comendador Mendoza, are considered masterpieces, almost, if not quite, the equals of Pepita Jiménez. They are both philosophical or psychological, rather than realistic, novels.

parece mucho más chico, pero también más bonito que el re- 8 cuerdo que tenía. La casa de mi padre, que en mi imaginación era inmensa, es sin duda una gran casa de un rico labrador, 10 pero más pequeña que el Seminario. Lo que ahora com-prendo y estimo mejor es el campo de por aquí. Las huertas, 12 sobre todo, son deliciosas. ¡Qué sendas tan lindas hay entre ellas! A un lado . . . corre el agua cristalina con grato mur- 14 mullo. Las orillas de las acequias están cubiertas de hierbas olorosas y de flores de mil clases. En un instante puede uno 16 coger un gran ramo de violetas. . . Mi padre quiere llevarme a ver sus olivares, sus viñas, sus cortijos; pero nada de esto 18 hemos visto aún. No he salido del lugar y de las amenas huertas que le circundan.» 20

TEMA XLI

(Composition XLI)

Until Pepita Jiménez appeared in 1874, Juan Valera had written very little, but this, his first novel, is his master- 2 piece. In it there is very little action; the interest is rather psychological (psicológico). In fact, many of Juan Valera's 4 novels are of this class. This makes them somewhat difficult for the general public (vulgo), and consequently his 6 readers (lectores) are limited.

The first part of Pepita Jiménez is a series of letters, 8 written to his uncle by a young man who has returned to his father's home, after several years passed in the seminary. 10 The selection in to-day's lesson is a part of the first letter, in which the young man gives a description of the beautiful 12 country which surrounds his home. He praises the delightful gardens of this part of southern Spain. He describes 14 the canals, the shores of which are covered with a thousand kinds of fragrant flowers, the olive-groves, the vineyards 16 and the farmhouses of his father's estate (hacienda).

VERBOS DEFECTIVOS O RAROS (Defective or Rare Verbs)

375. Antojarse, 'to long for,' 'desire earnestly,' 'choose,' 'occur' (to some one), is used only in the third person singular and plural of the various tenses.

Lo hace cuando se le antoja

He does it when he chooses

376. Atañer, 'to appertain,' and aplayer, 'to please,' are seldom found, and their use is confined to the third person singular and plural of the present and imperfect indicative.

377. Balbucir, 'to stammer,' and pacer, 'to graze,' are not used in the forms in which verbs ending in -cir and -cer preceded by a vowel take z before c (cf. § 337). The verb balbuciar, 'to stammer,' is more common than balbucir.

378. Concernir, 'to concern,' is used only in the third person singular and plural of the various tenses. The stem-vowel e changes to ie when accented.

379. Placer, 'to please,' is an impersonal verb rarely used except in exclamations.

¹ José María de Pereda (born at Polanco, near Santander, February 6, 1833; died March 1, 1906) was one of the masters of the modern Spanish novel. His life was spent, for the most part, in patriarchal simplicity among the mountains along the coast of northern Spain, and it is with rare power and comprehension that he describes in many of his works the customs of the people of the mountains and the "Bay."

In Pedro Sánchez Pereda has left his mountains of the north for Madrid. The above description records his own entrance into the capital, when he went there as a youth to pursue his studies in military science.

Other novels of importance from the same pen are: Tipos y Paisajes, 'Types and Landscapes'; Los Hombres de Pro, 'Respectable Folk'; El Buey Suelto, 'The Unyoked Ox'; Don Gonzalo González de la Gonzalera; De Tal Palo, Tal Astilla, 'A Chip of the Old Block'; El Sabor de la Tierruca, 'Redolent of the Soil'; Sotileza, 'Fine Spun'; La Montálvez; La Puchera, 'The Family Board'; Nubes de Estío, 'Summer Clouds'; Al Primer Vuelo, 'The First Flight'; and Peñas Arriba, 'Up the Crags.'

TEMA XLII (Composition XLII)

José María de Pereda was born, and passed most of his life, near Santander. In 1852, his parents sent him to Madrid, 2 in order to prepare (preparar) him for the army (ejército), which, however, he never entered.² After two years spent 4 in Madrid, he returned to Santander to devote himself to literature. 6

With one exception, Pedro Sánchez, all of the best works of Pereda are descriptions of the people of the mountains 8 and of the sea near which he lived. It was during his stay later used in Pedro Sánchez. The entrance into Madrid, which is described in to-day's lesson, is his own entrance of many 12 years before. His is the eagerness to (de) see the first signs (los señales) of Madrid, and his the surprise at finding neither 14 trees nor planted fields near the great city. Madrid lies, as he tells us, on a sandy, treeless hill, and the very gates of the 16 city are reached without a single detail to (para) announce its proximity. 18

SUBJUNTIVO EN CLÁUSULAS INDEPENDIENTES
(Subjunctive in Independent Clauses)

386. The subjunctive is used in independent clauses as follows:

1. With an imperative or optative idea, in the present tense, in the first and third persons when affirmative, and in all persons when negative. In the affirmative, the objective personal pronouns are regularly appended, but in the negative they regularly precede the verb. Such expressions may be introduced by the conjunction que, but are commonly used without, except in the third person.

387. A present tense (including present subjunctive and imperative) or a future tense ^{or past perfect} in the governing or principal clause requires the present subjunctive in the dependent clause, if the verb in the dependent clause expresses action that is simultaneous with, or subsequent to, the action of the governing verb. It requires, however, a past tense of the subjunctive, if the verb in the dependent clause expresses action that was prior to that of the governing verb.

A conditional or a perfect tense in the governing or principal clause may be followed by the present or the imperfect subjunctive (with little or no distinction in meaning), if the verb in the dependent clause expresses action that is simultaneous with, or subsequent to, the action of the governing verb. It requires, however, the pluperfect subjunctive, if the verb in the dependent clause expresses action that was prior to that of the governing verb.

¹ Benito Pérez Galdós (born at Las Palmas in the Canary Islands, May 10, 1845) has been called the chief of the contemporary Spanish novelists. He is certainly the most prolific. Galdós is the author of a great series of novels, known as Episodios Nacionales, 'National Episodes,' which are historical novels somewhat after the type of those of Erckmann-Chatrian. Important as is this collection of novels, it is rather from the works that comprise another collection, known as Novelas Españolas Contemporáneas, 'Contemporary Spanish Novels,' that the fame of Galdós has spread to foreign lands. These are studies of modern Spanish life and character. Throughout his works Galdós shows himself to be a profound moralist and an enemy of ignorance and intolerance. His style, while not faultless, is virile and vivacious. As a dramatist Galdós has also won his laurels, especially in the play Electra.

Gloria treats of religious toleration. The hero is a Jew, who clings to the tradition of his race, and the heroine, a Spanish girl, who adheres no less tenaciously to her own religious principles. The education of Gloria as depicted in the above selection is typical of that of many Spanish girls.

Other novels of Galdós of particular fame are: Doña Perfecta; La Familia de León Roch, 'The Family of León Roch'; Marianela; El Doctor Centeno,

TEMA XLIII
(Composition XLIII)

Gloria is a study of Spanish life and character (carácter, m.), written by Benito Pérez Galdós. Like Doña Perfecta, his masterpiece, Gloria treats of religious tolerance (tolerancia). The education of Gloria, as it is related in the selection of to-day, might be the education of many Spanish girls. While Gloria is still very young, she is sent to a seminary, where she learns a little of many things. She leaves the seminary with few definite ideas (ideas), knows nothing thoroughly (a fondo), but, like many of her Spanish sisters, can say the catechism from memory. She knows [how to] play the piano, but her knowledge is far from being perfect, and her father is not able [to] endure her musical efforts, which to him seem like the rattle of a hand-organ. "Don't tell me all music is like that," he exclaims; "do what you like, but do not play the piano [any] more."

SUBJUNTIVO EN CLÁUSULAS DEPENDIENTES

(Subjunctive in Dependent Clauses)

391. The subjunctive used dependently may stand in (I) noun, (II) adjective, or (III) adverbial clauses.

I. Subjuntivo en Cláusulas Sustantivas

(Subjunctive in Noun Clauses)

392. The subjunctive, usually introduced by que, although the conjunction may be omitted, serves as logical subject or as object of verbal expressions:

1. Of desiring (willing, wishing, preferring, avoiding, etc.).

Deseo (que) conozcas

I wish you to know

Prefiero que se vaya

I prefer that he go away

¡Ojalá que venga!

God grant that he may come

2. Of commanding (forbidding, obliging, requiring, requesting, consenting, etc.) and of necessity.

El rey mandó que hablase

The king ordered him to speak

Prohibo que V. lo haga

I forbid you to do it

Es preciso que él me oiga

It is necessary that he hear me

3. Of opinion involving approval or disapproval (praise, blame, etc.).

Apruebo que lo haya hecho

I approve of his having done so

Desapruebo que él vaya allí

I disapprove of his going there

No me parece muy justo que V. se divierta así

It doesn't seem right to me that you should amuse yourself thus

4. Of emotion (joy, sorrow, fear, anger, despair, shame, wonder, regret, etc.).

Me alegro (de) que esté él aquí

I am glad he may be you are here

~~Lo~~ siento que no le ~~haya~~ acompañado

I am sorry he ~~did~~ not accompany him

Temo de que no se vaya

I fear that he will not go away

5. Of doubt (denial, probability, and possibility). This includes verbs of thinking (knowing, declaring, believing, perceiving, understanding, etc.), when uncertainty or doubt is implied by negation, interrogation, or condition; otherwise the indicative is used.

Dudo (de) que haya llegado
 Niego que haya huido
 Es probable que venga
 No creo que sea verdad
~~Creo V. que hayan llamado?~~ Si yo creyera que viniese, le iría a esperar

I doubt that he has arrived
 I deny that he has fled may have
 It is probable that he will come
 I don't think that it is true
 Do you think that any one has called?
 If I thought that he would come, I should go to meet him

393. In expressions such as those enumerated above, an infinitive is generally used instead of a dependent subjunctive clause, if the subject of the dependent clause is the same as that of the principal clause. If the subject is different, however, the subjunctive is generally used, except in the case of verbs of commanding, etc., which often allow an infinitive construction.

Yo quiero hablar	}	I wish to speak

Yo quiero que él hable	}	I wish him to speak

oír eso sin que se me alegren³ los pies! — exclamó la hermana haciendo un gesto expresivo. — ¿Baila usted? — preguntó 4

Pero nos faltaba lo más difícil: convencer a la hermana María de la Luz. . . . Fué preciso que su prima la cogiese 8 enérgicamente por los brazos y la alzase casi a viva fuerza. . . .

El malagueño alzó un poco la voz cantando una seguidilla. 10
De pronto los cuatro pares de palillos chasquearon con brío, las bailadoras abrieron los brazos y avanzaron una hacia otra. 12
. . . Siguiéron una serie de movimientos y pasos, ajustados todos al son de la guitarra y de las castañuelas. . . . El cuerpo 14 de las dos primas tan pronto se erguía como se bajaba, inclinándose a un lado y a otro con movimientos contrarios de 16 cabeza y de brazos. . . .

Yo no miraba más que a la hermana San Sulpicio. . . . 18

¹ Armando Palacio Valdés (born at Entralgo [province of Asturias], October 4, 1853) is probably in English-speaking countries the most widely read of the contemporary Spanish novelists. In a broad sense Valdés is a realist. He does not, however, in his greater works take pleasure in depicting the ugly side of life, and a lofty idealism tempers the realism of his method of observation and treatment.

La Hermana San Sulpicio, 'Sister St. Sulpice,' is a study of life in Andalusia. Gloria, or Sister St. Sulpice, the heroine of the story, is a Sevillana, and no more vivacious, roguish, or winning personality can be found in Spanish fiction. Her mother's design to have Gloria take the veil is frustrated by the arrival of a young man from Galicia, who is captivated straightway by the charms of a woman so different from those of his native province, and who ultimately succeeds in making her his wife. In the above selection Sister St. Sulpice and her cousin, María de la Luz, are induced by the Galician and a friend of his from Malaga, Suárez, to dance for them a seguidilla.

Among the other novels of Valdés, the following are particularly admired: Marta y María, 'Martha and Mary'; José, 'Joseph'; Riverita; Maximina; Los Majos de Cádiz, 'The Dandies of Cadiz'; and La Alegría del Capitán Ribot, 'The Joy of Captain Ribot.'

² Malagueño, native of Malaga.

⁴ Cf. § 147.

Hubiera deseado que el baile se prolongase indefinidamente. . . .

20

Las exclamaciones de Suárez ¡Ole, mi niña! ¡Bendito sea tu salero! ¡Alza,¹ palomita, alza! y otras por el estilo, 22 que soltaba en las pausas del canto, me parecían groseras e impropias. Pero . . . vine a entender que eran el acompaña- 24 miento natural y obligado de aquel baile. Cuando éste terminó, . . . el malagueño . . . alargando la guitarra a nuestro 26 patrón, le invitó a que tocara para echar otro baile con la hermana; mas la madre Florentina . . . se opuso resueltamente 28 a ello.»

If I thought (subj.) that she would do it, I should ask her to dance a seguidilla. 16. Will you order the gentleman to advance?

TEMA XLIV (Composition XLIV)

It is doubtful if in the last twenty-five years a more pleasing and entertaining (divertida) novel than La Hermana San Sulpicio, by Palacio Valdés, has been written. It is a study of life in the south of Spain. Gloria's mother wishes her to (that she) take the veil (velo), but the arrival of a young man from Galicia changes everything. In the selection in this lesson Suárez invites la Hermana San Sulpicio to dance a seguidilla. When the malagueño begins to play the guitar, Sister St. Sulpice finds it completely impossible to remain still (quieta). The music is so gay that she feels like dancing. She and her cousin finally begin a seguidilla, accompanied by the clicking of their castanets. All are attracted by the grace of the dancers, who bend first to one side then to the other with contrary movements of the head and arms. To the Galician (gallego) the exclamations, which accompany the dance, seem coarse and improper, but that is because he is not acquainted with the customs of Andalusia (Andalucía), and does not know that they are the necessary accompaniment of the seguidilla.

~~SUBJUNTIVO EN CLÁUSULAS DEPENDIENTES~~

(Subjunctive in Dependent Clauses)

II. Subjuntivo en Cláusulas Adjetivas

(Subjunctive in Adjective Clauses)

394. An adjective clause is a dependent clause introduced by a relative pronoun, and takes its verb in the subjunctive when there is implied purpose regarding the antecedent, or characteri-

(2) when it is used to zation of desired qualities, rather than those actually possessed by the antecedent, ⁽¹⁾ ~~or~~ when doubt or concession is involved.

(2) Queremos una criada que hable francés	We want a servant who speaks French
(1) Yo buscaba algo que le distrajera	I was looking for something to distract him
(3) si hay quien fume	if there is any one who smokes
(3) Abre y veremos lo que haya	Open, and we shall see what there is (may be)

NOTE.—When the relative clause expresses a mere fact, or qualities actually possessed by the antecedent, the indicative is used.

Busco a una persona a quien conocía en mi juventud	I am looking for a person whom I knew in my youth
Voy al lugar donde mi padre nació	I am going to the place where my father was born
Abre y veremos lo que hay	Open, and we shall see what there is (in fact)

395. Special attention is called to the two following cases of the subjunctive in relative clauses. It is used:

1. When non-existence (or doubt concerning the existence) of the antecedent is implied by a general negation, an interrogation or a condition in the principal clause.

No hay razón que valga	There is no reason that is (of such a kind as to be) valid
¿Existe un hombre que sepa el porvenir?	Is there any one who knows the future?
Si hay quien pueda salvarla es V.	If there is any one who can save her it is you

2. Often when the antecedent is qualified by a superlative or a word of similar force. This use is confined almost entirely to the perfect tense of the subjunctive.

3 Es el mejor libro que jamás haya conocido	It is the best book that I have ever known
3 El único que hubiera podido decir algo era su padre	The only one who could have said anything was her father
3 Es la primera persona que yo he (o haya) visto aquí	He is the first person I saw here

396. In clauses introduced by donde or compound relatives implying doubt or having a concessive force ('whoever,' 'whatever,' 'whatsoever,' etc.) the subjunctive is used.

Iré donde V. quiera

Está prohibido a quien quiera que sea

Que hagan lo que puedan

Le ayudará en cuantas empresas

Spanish novel might have owed to her even more than it does. However, as it is, her work in fiction has been a large and distinguished contribution. An apostle of French naturalism, she has yet held closely enough to the inspiration of her own land, and especially of her own native province of Galicia, to produce a series of works eminently original. She has done for Galicia what Pereda did for Santander and its surroundings.

La Tribuna is the story of the daughter of a wafer maker. She enters a cigarette factory, and there becomes interested in politics, mounts the rostrum, and delivers political speeches.

Other novels of Emilia Pardo Bazán worthy of mention are: Un Viaje de Novios, 'A Honeymoon'; Pascual López; El Cisne de Vilamorta, 'The Swan of Vilamorta'; La Dama Joven, 'The Young Woman'; Los Pazos de Ulloa; La Madre Naturaleza, 'Mother Nature'; Insolación, 'Sunstroke'; Morriña, 'The Blues'; Propiedad y Familia, 'Property and Family.'

13. That was the first wafer the child had ever eaten. 14. Some people do not like wafers. 15. Does a man exist who has not known fear?

TEMA XLV
(Composition XLV)

The countess Emilia Pardo Bazán, one of the most distinguished women of the world, has done for Galicia what 2 Pereda did for Santander. In her novels, however, she did not restrict herself to her own province (provincia) as much 4 as did Pereda. In many of them the scene is laid outside of Galicia. In La Tribuna the action takes place in Marineda, 6 a name invented (inventado) by the author, and which may be in almost any part of Spain. The young girl, to whom we 8 are introduced in to-day's selection, is the daughter of a wafer vender, a very well known figure (figura) in the streets of 10 any Spanish city. She becomes a cigarette maker, leads her fellow workers (colaboradoras), and delivers speeches on 12 political topics, forgetting the days when she rose early in the morning and began stringing and arranging the wafers 14 in the tin box, while her father cooked them.

(Lesson XLVI)

E/ SUBJUNTIVO EN CLÁUSULAS DEPENDIENTES

(Subjunctive in Dependent Clauses)

CONTINUACIÓN

III. Subjuntivo en Cláusulas Adverbiales

(Subjunctive in Adverbial Clauses)

397. The subjunctive is used in adverbial clauses after conjunctions (conjunciones) expressing:

1. Time, extent, or the like, in which uncertainty or indefinite futurity is implied, such as:

a medida que, according as, as fast as antes (de) que, before así que, as soon as como, as, in proportion as cuando,¹ when en cuanto, when, as far as Escribirá antes de que venga Yo haré como V. quiera

Le veré cuando venga
Lo haré en cuanto pueda después (de) que, after hasta que, until luego que, as soon as mientras que, while siempre que, whenever

He will write before he comes
I will do as you wish I shall see him when he comes
I shall do so as far as I can

2. Purpose or result, such as:

a fin de que, in order that de manera que, } so as, so that de modo que, } de miedo que, for fear that para que, } (in order) that por que, } que, so that, in order that tal que, such that tanto (-a, -os, -as) . . . que, so much (or many) . . . that tan . . . que, so . . . that

Negatively:

no sea que, lest Hable V. de manera que yo le comprenda
Me marché de miedo que V. viniese
Le mando dinero para que V. venga
Levántate que te vea
No volveré a verle, no sea que me insulte Procure V. manejarle sin que se ofenda sin que, without Speak so that I may understand you

I went away for fear that you might come
I am sending you money so that you may come Get up so that I may see you
I shall not see him again, lest he insult me
Try to manage him without his being offended

NOTE. — In expressions of result denoting fact the indicative is used.
Habló de manera que yo le comprendí (indicative)

He spoke so that I understood him

Uno se cansa cuando estudia

One gets tired when one studies

3. Condition, such as:

a condición (de) que, on condition that dado que, in case that, supposing that en caso (de) que, in case that excepto que, except that a menos que, } unless a no ser que, } que, whether dado que lo sepa

a menos que me hable que me hable o no

con tal que venga esta noche sea que, if, whether si (never with pres. subj.), if (cf.

§ 398)

con tal (de) que, } provided that siempre que,

supóngase que suponiendo que, } supposing that supuesto que

in case that he knows it unless he speaks to me whether he speaks to me or not provided he come to-night

4. Concession or denial, such as:

aunque, although aun cuando, even though lejos de que, so far from por . . . que, however no obstante que, } notwithstanding sin embargo de que, } that a pesar de que, in spite of

No le temo, aunque sea más fuerte que yo

Aun cuando lo diga mil veces, no lo creeré

Lejos de que sea mi amigo, es mi enemigo más declarado

por rico que sea

I do not fear him, although he be stronger than I

Even though he may say it a thousand times, I shall not believe it

So far from his being my friend, he is my most open enemy

however rich he may be

N 4

398. When a negation is implied in a conditional clause (i.e. a condition contrary to fact), the imperfect subjunctive¹ is used after si), in other cases the present indicative is used.

Si él tiene dinero, paga

If he has money, he pays

Si él tiene dinero, pagará

If he has money, he will pay

Si él tuviera dinero, pagaría

If he had money, he would pay

NOTE. — Si, meaning 'if,' is never followed by the present or perfect subjunctive or by the future indicative or conditional.² If si has the sense of 'whether,' the conditional may be used.

No sabía si viviría o no

I didn't know whether he would live or not

399. The conditional, used to express a desire in a modest manner, is sometimes replaced by the first form of the imperfect subjunctive. Quisiera, from querer, is almost always so used instead of the conditional, and has become a way of politely expressing a desire.

Quisiera verlo otra vez

I should like to see it again

² Cf. §§ 132, 400, 401.

400. The first and second forms of the imperfect subjunctive are interchangeable, except in the apodosis (result clause) of a conditional sentence, where the second form is never found. Even the first form is seldom found here, being replaced usually by the conditional. In the protasis (conditional clause) either form may stand, but the conditional may not. In choosing between the two forms, euphony is the determining factor. For example, if a preceding or following word should end in -ra, the form in -se would be preferable, in order to avoid the repetition of similar sounds in close proximity.

Si { buscase } su libro, lo { encontrara } If he looked for his book, buscara } encontraría (preferable) he would find it

401. The future subjunctive denotes only a condition, or a future contingency depending upon doubt or uncertainty. It may denote either present or future time. Although once frequent, the future subjunctive is now little used except in proverbs, legal phrases, etc. It is now usually replaced by the present subjunctive (or after si, 'if,' by the present indicative).

Le diré a V. lo que él { decida } I shall tell you what he may decide decidiere
 Si cree (creyere) V. eso, se equivoca If you think that, you are mistaken

402. There still exists in Spanish a tense that has the same endings as the first form of the imperfect subjunctive, with which it is often confused. It is derived from the Latin pluperfect in -aram, -eram. It is now little used, and is usually restricted to relative clauses.

Los jinetes se dirigieron al punto The horsemen went to the spot que Íñigo señalara como el más a which Íñigo had pointed out as propósito the most suitable

Trozo de «La Barraca» por Vicente Blasco Ibáñez¹

«El ruido lento y monótono que parecía salir de entre los árboles era el de la escuela de don Joaquín, establecida en una barraca oculta por la fila de álamos. 2

Nunca el saber se ha visto peor alojado; y eso que por lo común² no habita palacios. . . . En toda la barraca no había más que un objeto nuevo; la larga caña que el maestro tenía 6 tras la puerta, y que renovaba cada dos días. . . .

Libros apenas si se veía tres en la escuela: una misma 8 cartilla servía a todos. ¿Para qué más? Allí imperaba el método moruno: canto y repetición hasta meter las cosas 10 con un continuo martilleo en las duras cabezas. . . . De vez en cuando callábase el coro y sonaba la voz de don Joaquín . . . 12 — ¿Cuántas son las obras de misericordia? . . . — Dos por siete, ¿cuántos son? . . . Y rara vez quedaba contento de las 14 contestaciones. — Son ustedes unos bestias. Me oyen como si les hablase en griego. ¡Y pensar que les trato con toda 16

¹ Vicente Blasco Ibáñez (born in Valencia in 1867) is one of the foremost of the younger contemporary Spanish novelists. He is now a resident of Argentine Republic. He has been called the Zola of Spain, and the realistic character of his work frequently recalls the method of his French prototype. Energy and vigor characterize his style.

La Barraca, 'The Cabin' or 'Farmhouse,' is one of his earlier novels, and is generally considered his best. The scene is laid in the fertile district surrounding Valencia, and the theme of the story is the persecution of an honest farmer and his family by his neighbors, who harbor the tradition that the land leased by him shall never be cultivated.

Among the other novels by Blasco Ibáñez, the following are particularly well known: Cañas y Barro, 'Reeds and Mire'; La Catedral, 'The Cathedral'; El Intruso, 'The Intruder'; La Bodega, 'The Wine Cellar'; La Horda, 'The Rabble'; Sangre y Arena, 'Blood and Sand'; Los Muertos Mandan, 'The Dead Command.'

6. If I had time, I should explain it to you. 7. If I have time, I shall send it to you. 8. Although he may command the children, they will not respect him. 9. Unless they establish a new

12. However indolent the boys are, they learn as much as the learn as much as the boys. 14. When one studies, one learns a great deal.

TEMA XLVI (Composition XLVI)

La Barraca, one of the first novels of Vicente Blasco Ibáñez, assured his reputation in the literary world. Its theme 2 is the persecution (persecución) of a poor farmer and his family by hostile neighbors. Whenever his children return 4 from school they are attacked by the other pupils, and although they defend themselves, the youngest, Pascualet, dies 6 as [a] result of the ill treatment (maltratamiento) that he receives. It is the little school of to-day's selection that the 8 children attend. One can easily imagine the school, and before the class the imperious master with his cane which he 10 carefully renews from time to time. One can imagine, too, the pupils studying together and answering in chorus. The 12 teacher interrupts (interrumpir) them, to (para) tell them that they are all dunces, and that, in spite of his efforts to 14 (para) teach them to (a) talk like [educated] persons, they learn nothing, but listen to him as though he spoke to them 16 in Greek.

² This tense in the Grammar of the Spanish Academy is grouped under the subjunctive and called Pretérito Imperfecto. In this book it has been grouped with the indicative tenses and called Condicional, by analogy with the French custom, and more in accord with Salvá, who calls it Futuro Condicional.

³ In the Grammar of the Spanish Academy, both forms of this tense, together with the one that is here termed Condicional, are grouped without distinction under one head called Pretérito Imperfecto. The form that is given first is here termed Primera Forma, and the other, Segunda Forma, in order to distinguish them. VERBOS IMPERSONALES

416. Impersonal verbs are verbs which are used only in the infinitive, participles and the third person singular of the various tenses. They properly have no subject expressed. The verbs most commonly so used are those that refer to the phenomena of nature:

alborear, to dawn amanecer, to dawn anocheecer, to grow dark deshelar, to thaw diluviar, to rain hard, pour

U
 usufructuar, 'to be fruitful,' cf.
 § 341, 2.

V
 vaciar, 'to empty,' cf. § 341, 1.
 valer, 'to be worth,' cf. § 324.
 valuar, 'to value,' cf. § 341, 2.
 vanagloriarse, 'to be boastful,' cf.
 § 341, 1.
 variar, 'to change,' cf. § 341, 1.
 venir, 'to come,' cf. § 256.
 ventar, 'to blow,' cf. § 343.
 ver,¹ 'to see,' cf. § 296.
 verter, 'to pour,' cf. § 344.
 vestir, 'to dress,' cf. § 357.
 vigiar, 'to watch,' cf. § 341, 1.
 volar, 'to fly,' cf. § 345.
 volcar, 'to overturn,' cf. § 345.
 volver, 'to return,' cf. §§ 348, 372.

 yacer, 'to lie,' cf. § 385.
 yuxtaponer, 'to put in juxtaposition,'
 cf. § 233.

Z
 zaherir, 'to reproach,' cf. § 354.
 zurriar, 'to buzz,' cf. § 341, 1.

¹ The old form of the verb was ve-er (from popular Latin vedere). Remains of the old form are still found in the first person of the present indicative and throughout the present subjunctive and imperfect indicative. Compounds of ver, such as entrever, 'to have a glimpse of,' prever, 'to foresee,' rever, 'to see again,' etc., are conjugated like ver. Proveer, 'to provide,' however, has preserved the old infinitive form and is conjugated like a regular verb, except that when unaccented i occurs between two vowels it changes to y (cf. § 9).

lloviznar, } molliznar, } to drizzle molliznear, } nevar, to snow

relampaguear, to lighten tronar, to thunder ventear, to blow
 ventiscar, to snow and blow, etc.

For haber and hacer used impersonally, cf. §§ 176-178.

NOTE. — Helar, deshelar, nevar, llover and tronar change the final e or o of the stem to ie and ue respectively when the accent falls on the syllable in which they occur (cf. §§ 343, 345, 346).

hiela, it is freezing

lueve, it is raining

417. These verbs are sometimes used personally with a subject and sometimes even with an object.

Amaneció el día
Tronaban los cañones
Llovían piedras sobre él

The day dawned
 The cannons thundered
 They were raining stones upon him

418. Amanecer and anochecer are sometimes used in their complete conjugation, with the meaning 'to arrive (or be present) at dawn' or 'at nightfall.'

Amanecí en Madrid y anocheceré en Sevilla

I was in Madrid at dawn and shall be in Seville at nightfall

419. Besides these verbs referring to the phenomena of nature there are a number of other verbs which are often used impersonally:

acaecer, } acontecer, } to happen
bastar, to suffice constar, to be clear, evident convenir, to suit, be fitting, agree importar, to matter, be important parecer, to seem, appear suceder, to happen, etc.

Sucede siempre así

It always happens thus

No importa

It doesn't matter

Por lo que veo consta que no ha llegado

It is evident by what I see that he has not arrived

NOTE. — For other impersonal uses, cf. §§ 217-218.

420. Ser and estar, followed by nouns or adjectives, are frequently used impersonally.

Es verdad
Es evidente
Era demasiado tarde
Está muy nublado
Estaba muy oscuro

It is true
 It is evident
 It was too late
 It is very cloudy
 It was very dark

NOTE. — Ser followed by de and an active infinitive is sometimes used impersonally, and the active infinitive has the force of a passive.

Es de creer
Es de querer

It is to be believed
 It is to be desired

428. Derivatives of decir are conjugated like decir, except that they have -dice instead of -di in the second person singular of the imperative. Cf. § 247.

contradecir , to contradict	Imperative Sing.	contradice
desdecir , to gainsay	" "	desdice
predecir , to predict	" "	predice
bendecir , to bless	" "	bendice
maldecir , to curse	" "	maldice

429. Bendecir and maldecir are also regular in the future and conditional, bendeciré, etc., maldeciré, etc., bendeciría, etc., maldeciría, etc. Moreover, they have regular past participles, bendecido, maldecido; the forms bendicho and maldicho are now obsolete; and the forms bendito and maldito are used only as adjectives.

430. There are ten verbs of the third conjugation which are commonly used only in the forms where the stem is followed by i. These are:

abolir , to abolish	despavorir , to become frightened agüerrir , to accustom to war	embair , to impose upon arrecirse , to become numb	empedernir , to harden aterirse , to become numb	garantir , to guarantee desmarrirse , to grow sad (or weak)	manir , to grow tender (of meats)

These verbs usually lack the present indicative singular and third person plural, all the forms of the present subjunctive, and the singular of the imperative. All other forms are regular.

 Por un beso . . . ¡yo no sé
 Qué te diera por un beso! — BÉCQUER: — Id. 4

Los suspiros son aire, y van al aire.
 Las lágrimas son agua, y van al mar. 2
 Dime, mujer: cuando el amor se olvida,
 ¿Sabes tú a dónde va? — BÉCQUER: — Id. 4

Hojas del árbol caídas
 Juguetes del viento son: 2
 ¡Las ilusiones perdidas
 ¡Ay! son hojas desprendidas 4
 Del árbol del corazón!

JOSÉ DE ESPRONCEDA (1809-1842): —
El Estudiante de Salamanca (Extract).

¡Que descansada vida
 La del que huye el mundanal rüido, 2
 Y sigue la escondida
 Senda, por donde han ido 4
 Los pocos sabios que en el mundo han sido!
 FRAY LUIS (PONCE) DE LEÓN (1527-1591): — Oda (Extract).

¿Qué es la vida? — Un frenesí.
 ¿Qué es la vida? — Una ilusión, 2
 Una sombra, una ficción,
 Y el mayor bien es pequeño; 4
 Que toda la vida es sueño,
 Y los sueños sueño son. 6
 PEDRO CALDERÓN DE LA BARCA (1600-1681): — La Vida es Sueño (Extract).

Cuentan de un sabio, que un día
 Tan pobre y mísero estaba, 2
 Que sólo se sustentaba
 De unas yerbas que cogía. 4
 ¿Habrä otro (entre sí decía)
 Más pobre y triste que yo? 6
 Y cuando el rostro volvió,
 Halló la respuesta, viendo 8
 Que iba otro sabio cogiendo
 Las hojas que él arrojó. — 10
 CALDERÓN: — Id. (Extract).

Sé cortés sobremanera,
 Sé liberal y esparcido; 2
 Que el sombrero y el dinero
 Son los que hacen los amigos. 4
 CALDERÓN: — El Alcalde de Zalamea (Extract).

MADRIGAL

Ojos claros, serenos,
 Si de un dulce mirar sois alabados, 2
 ¿Por qué, si me miráis, miráis airados?
 Si cuanto más piadosos, 4
 Más bellos parecéis a aquel que os mira, ¿Por qué a mí solo me miráis con ira? 6
 Ojos claros, serenos,
 Ya que así me miráis, ¡miradme al menos! 8
 GUTIERRE DE CETINA (1520?-1560?).

Nada te turbe;
 Nada te espante; 2
 Todo se pasa;
 Dios no se muda, 4
 La paciencia todo lo alcanza.
 Quien a Dios tiene, 6
 Nada le falta.
 Solo Dios basta. 8
 SANTA TERESA DE JESÚS (1515-1582): —
Letrilla que llevaba por registro en su breviario.

UN SONETO

Un soneto me manda hacer Violante,
 Que en mi vida me he visto en tal aprieto, 2
 Catorce versos dicen que es soneto,
 Burla burlando van los tres delante. 4
 Yo pensé que no hallara consonante,
 Y estoy a la mitad de otro cuarteto, 6
 Mas si me veo en el primer terceto
 No hay cosa en los cuartetos que me espante. 8
 Por el primer terceto voy entrando,
 Y aun parece que entré con pie derecho, 10
 Pues fin con este verso le voy dando.
 Ya estoy en el segundo, y aun sospecho, 12
 Que estoy los trece versos acabando:
 Contad si son catorce, y está hecho. 14
 LOPE FÉLIX DE VEGA CARPIO (1562-1635).

DOLORAS

Ni amor canto, ni hermosura, Porque ésta es un vano aliño, Y además	2
Aquél una sombra oscura. — ¿No es más que sombra el cariño? — Nada más.	4
Esas flores con que ufana Tu frente se diviniza, Ya verás	8
Cual son ceniza mañana. — ¿Nada más son que ceniza? — Nada más.	10
Y en tu contento no escaso; ¿Qué dirás que es un contento, Qué dirás?	12
— ¿Nada más que viento acaso? — ¡Nada más, niña, que viento, Nada más!	14
En la edad de las pasiones, A vueltas de mil enojos, Hallarás	16
Aire, sombras e ilusiones: ¡Nada más, luz de mis ojos, Nada más!	18

RAMÓN DE CAMPOAMOR (1819-1901):—

Vanidad de la Hermosura.

Volverán las oscuras golondrinas En tu balcón sus nidos a colgar, Y, otra vez, con el ala a sus cristales Jugando llamarán.	2
Pero aquéllas que el vuelo refrenaban Tu hermosura y mi dicha a contemplar, Aquéllas que aprendieron nuestros nombres . . .	4
Ésas . . . ¡no volverán!	6
Volverán las tupidas madre selvas De tu jardín las tapias a escalar, Y otra vez a la tarde, aun más hermosas, Sus flores se abrirán;	8
Pero aquéllas, cuajadas de rocío, Cuyas gotas mirábamos temblar Y caer, como lágrimas del día . . .	10
Ésas . . . ¡no volverán!	12
Volverán del amor en tus oídos Las palabras ardientes a sonar;	14
	16
	18

Tu corazón de su profundo sueño
Tal vez despertará;	20
Pero mudo y absorto y de rodillas,
Como se adora a Dios ante su altar,	22
Como yo te he querido . . . desengáñate, ¡Así no te querrán! — BÉCQUER: — Rimas .

FÁBULA

LOS DOS CONEJOS

Por entre unas matas
Seguido de perros,	2
(No diré corría)
Volaba un conejo.	4

De su madriguera
Salió un compañero,	6
Y le dijo: — Tente
Amigo, ¿qué es esto?	8

— ¿Qué ha de ser? responde;
Sin aliento llego . . .	10
Dos pícaros galgos
Me vienen siguiendo.	12

— Sí (replica el otro),
Por allí los veo,	14
Pero no son galgos.
— Pues, ¿qué son? — Podencos.	16

— ¿Qué? ¿Podencos dices?
Sí, como mi abuelo.	18
Galgos, y muy galgos:
Bien visto los tengo.	20

— Son podencos: vaya,
Que no entiendes de eso.	22
— Son galgos, te digo.
— Digo que podencos.	24

En esta disputa
Llegando los perros,	26
Pillan descuidados
A mis dos conejos.	28

Los que por cuestiones
De poco momento 30
Dejan lo que importa,
Llévense este ejemplo. 32
TOMÁS DE IRIARTE (1750-1791).

PARA LECTURA A PRIMERA VISTA (Sight Reading)

LAS GAFAS

Como se acercaba el día de San Isidro, multitud de gente rústica había acudido a Madrid desde las pequeñas poblaciones y aldeas 2 de ambas Castillas, y aun de provincias lejanas.

Llenos de curiosidad circulaban los forasteros por calles y 4 plazas e invadían las tiendas y los almacenes para enterarse de todo, contemplarlo y admirarlo. 6

Uno de estos rústicos entró por acaso en la tienda de un óptico en el punto de hallarse allí una señora anciana que quería comprar 8 unas gafas. Tenía muchas docenas extendidas sobre el mostrador; se las iba poniendo sucesivamente, miraba luego en un peri- 10 ódico, y decía:

— Con éstas no leo. 12

Siete u ocho veces repitió la operación, hasta que al cabo, después de ponerse otras gafas, miró en el periódico, y dijo muy con- 14 tenta:

— Con éstas leo perfectamente. 16

Luego las pagó y se las llevó.

Al ver el rústico lo que había hecho la señora, quiso imitarla, 18 y empezó a ponerse gafas y a mirar en el mismo periódico; pero siempre decía: 20

— Con éstas no leo.

Así se pasó más de media hora; el rústico ensayó tres o cuatro 22 docenas de gafas, y como no lograba leer con ninguna, las desechaba todas, repitiendo siempre: 24

— No leo con éstas.

El tendero entonces le dijo: 26

— ¿Pero usted sabe leer?

— Pues si yo supiera leer, ¿para qué había de mercar las gafas? 28

A QUIÉN DEBE DARSE CRÉDITO

Llamaron a la puerta. El mismo tío Pedro salió a abrir y se encontró cara a cara con su compadre Vicentico. 2

— Buenos días, compadre. ¿Qué buen viento le trae a usted por aquí? ¿Qué se le ofrece a usted? 4

— Pues nada . . . confío en su amistad de usted . . . y espero . . .

— Desembuche usted, compadre. 6

— La verdad, yo he podado los olivos, tengo en mi olivar lo menos cinco cargas de leña que quiero traerme a casa y vengo a que me empreste usted su burro. 8

— ¡Cuánto lo siento, compadre! Parece que el demonio lo hace. 10 ¡Qué maldita casualidad! Esta mañana se fué mi chico a Córdoba, caballero en el burro. Hasta dentro de seis o siete días no volverá. 12
Si no fuera por esto podría usted contar con el burro como si fuese suyo propio. Pero, qué diablos, el burro estará ya lo menos 14 a cuatro leguas de aquí.

El pícaro del burro, que estaba en la caballeriza, se puso entonces a rebuznar con grandes bríos. 16

El que le pedía prestado dijo con enojo: 18

— No creía yo, tío Pedro, que usted fuese tan cicatero que para no hacerme este pequeño servicio, se valiese de un engaño. 20
El burro está en casa.

— Oiga usted, replicó el tío Pedro. Quien aquí debe enojarse 22 soy yo.

— ¿Y por qué el enojo? 24

— Porque usted me quita el crédito y se lo da al burro.

JUAN VALERA.

MARI BELCHA

Cuando te quedas sola a la puerta del negro caserío con tu hermanillo en brazos, ¿en qué piensas, Mari Belcha, al mirar los montes lejanos y el cielo pálido? 2

Te llaman Mari Belcha,¹ María la Negra, porque naciste el día de los Reyes, no por otra cosa; te llaman Mari Belcha, y eres blanca como los corderillos cuando salen del lavadero, y rubia como las mieses doradas del estío . . . 6

Cuando voy por delante de tu casa en mi caballo, te escondes al verme, te ocultas de mí . . . ¡Ah! Pero yo también te miro ocultándome entre los árboles; ¿y sabes por qué? . . . Si te lo dijera, te reirías . . . Yo, el medicuzarra, que podría ser tu abuelo; sí, es verdad. Si te lo dijera, te reirías. 12

¡Me parece tan hermosa! Dicen que tu cara está morena por el sol, . . . pero en cambio tus ojos tienen la serenidad de las auroras tranquilas del otoño y tus labios el color de las amapolas de los amarillos triguales. 16

Luego eres buena y cariñosa. Hace unos días, el martes que hubo feria, ¿te acuerdas? tus padres habían bajado al pueblo y tú pasabas por la heredad con tu hermanillo en brazos. 18

El chico tenía mal humor, tú querías distraerle y le enseñabas las vacas, la Gorriya² y la Beltza¹ que pastaban la hierba, reso-

² From the Basque gorri, meaning 'red.'

plando con alegría, corriendo pesadamente de un lado a otro, 22 mientras azotaban las piernas con sus largas colas . . . pero luego se acordó de que tenía mal humor, y empezó a llorar. 24

Y yo también empecé a llorar no sé por qué. Verdad es que 26 los viejos tenemos dentro del pecho corazón de niño.

Y para acallar a tu hermano recurriste al perrillo alborotador; 28 a las gallinas que picoteaban en el suelo . . . a los estúpidos cerdos que corrían de un lado a otro.

Cuando el niño callaba, te quedabas pensativa. Tus ojos mira- 30 ban los montes azulados de la lejanía, pero sin verlos; miraban las nubes blancas que cruzaban el cielo pálido, las hojas secas que 32 cubrían el monte, las ramas descarnadas de los árboles, y sin embargo, no veían nada. 34

Veían algo; pero era en el interior del alma, en esas regiones 36 misteriosas, donde brotan los amores y los sueños. . . .

Hoy, al pasar te he visto aun más preocupada.

Sentada sobre un tronco de árbol, en actitud de abandono, mas- 38 cabas nerviosa una hoja de menta.

Dime, Mari Belcha, ¿en qué piensas al mirar los montes lejanos 40 y el cielo pálido?

Pío BAROJA (1872—).
